

GRANDEUR OF THIRUPPUGAZH

THE HALLOWED HYMNS OF ARUNAGIRINATHA

S.R.S. AYYAR

11021

NR

Bharatiya Vidya
Bhavan

GRANDEUR OF THIRUPPUGAZH

— The hallowed hymns of Arunagirinatha

THE KARNATIC MUSIC BOOK CENTRE

23A, Sripuram First Street,
Royapettah, Chennai - 600 014.

☎ : 28111716, 28113253 E-mail: kmbc@vsnl.net

Website : www.carnaticbooks.com

GRANDUR
OF THIRUPUGAZH

— The ballad poems of Arunagirinathar

GRANDEUR OF THIRUPPUGAZH

— The hallowed hymns of Arunagirinatha

S.R.S. Ayyar

1996

BHARATIYA VIDYA BHAVAN
Kulapati Munshi Marg
Bombay - 400 007.

© All Rights Reserved

First Edition : 1996

Price : Rs. 120/-

PRINTED IN INDIA

By Atul Goradia, Siddhi Printers 13/14, Bhabha Building, Khetwadi
13th lane, Bombay 400 004 and published by S. Ramakrishnan, Executive Secretary, Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Bombay 400 007.

*Dedicated
To my Parents*

Dedicated
To my Parents

FOREWORD

Lord Muruga is the favourite deity of the Tamils. He is known by many names. Muruga means beauty. He is supposed to be the embodiment of beauty. He is also supposed to be the Commander-in-Chief of the army of Devas. He had established six military camps (Aarupadai Veedu) covering the entire Tamilnadu for the purpose of fighting and eliminating the evil forces. There are millions of devotees of Lord Muruga and as to be expected there were many poetic compositions by his devotees. The most important of them is Arunagiri's Thiruppugazh. S.R.S. Ayyar has come forward with an analytical study of this beautiful musical composition under the title, "The Grandeur of Thiruppugazh". I hope this work will bring to the notice of other linguistic groups the beauty of Thiruppugazh and the manifold divine qualities of Lord Muruga.

C. SUBRAMANIAM

Madras

December 23, 1995

PREFACE

Thiruppugazh, the collection of divine, mellifluous Tamil musical praises on Lord Muruga, the handsome and powerful Offspring of Lord Siva, by Saint Arunagirinatha occupies a conspicuous and distinct place among the several devotional outpourings on the Lord. These hallowed hymns sprang forth from the saint's tongue as ordained by the Lord Himself. Truly Muruga chose the saint as His messenger for the spread of peace, love and kindness among the masses. And the soul-stirring Thiruppugazh songs served exceedingly well in fulfilment of this noble task.

Over the years many illustrious scholars have laboured hard in propagating Thiruppugazh and other masterly poetical creations of Arunagirinatha, which for some reason or the other, had not come before the public eye for long. It is believed that several hymns could not be traced despite persistent efforts and these priceless gems seem to have been permanently lost. The notable personalities who have put in strenuous efforts to bring Thiruppugazh into limelight are the revered Vallimalai Satchidananda Swamikal, Thiruppugazh Swamy Iyer, Thirumuruga Kripānanda Variar, 'Thiruppugazh Mani' T.M. Krishnaswamy Iyer, Vagheesa Kalanidhi Ki Vaa Jagannathan and Shri V.T. Subramania Pillai. 'Thanigaimani' Dr. V.C. Sengalvaraya Pillai, son of Shri Subramania Pillai did a yeoman service in this field and credit for creating twelve Holy Orders (Thirumurai) for Muruga, comprising Thiruppugazh and other devotional offerings, and writing well-researched commentaries thereto in Tamil, goes to Dr. Sengalvaraya Pillai. The elaborate and the commendable commentaries contained in four volumes brought out by The South India Saiva Siddhanta Works Publishing Society, Tinnevely Ltd. served as a valuable reference material to the author who owes a great deal of gratitude to the publishers of these volumes.

Thiruppugazh Anbargal is a large conglomeration of Thiruppugazh lovers spread over India and overseas. This organisation was founded more than three decades ago by Guruji Shri A.S. Raghavan of Delhi. This organisation has been engaged in conduct of classes at various centres for teaching Thiruppugazh songs which are set to melodious ragas by the Founder, group singing of hymns, training of teachers, release of Thiruppugazh-related publications and convening of seminars and symposia on Arunagirinatha's life and works. It is noteworthy that 'anbargal' who have learnt Thiruppugazh train others in far away cities like New York, Washington, Connecticut, Chicago and New Jersey in USA, Toronto (Canada) Penang (Malaysia) and Jakarta (Indonesia) and also arrange periodical assemblies; their experience has been highly rewarding. The author takes pride in his being a small link in this mighty chain of Thiruppugazh lovers. The author acknowledges the guidance and advice he received from Guruji Shri Raghavan while undertaking this project.

Many publications and audio-cassettes were made use of while drafting the various chapters, which provided valuable inputs for this work.. It is difficult to name all of them here. The author is indebted to these famed writers and noted speakers.

The book is structured in a fashion which reflects the unbiased outlook of Saint Arunagirinatha. While apparently Arunagirinatha professed Kaumara cult, owing complete allegiance to Lord Muruga and His worship, he was not averse to other cults and their followers; in fact he identified himself wholly as a staunch devotee of other deities like Ganapathi, Siva, Shakti and Vishnu as revealed by his respectful veneration towards them and appropriate epical anecdotes relating to them.

Chapter 1 seeks to provide a brief backdrop to the subject matter and gives some of the interesting facets connected with the 'advent' of Muruga into this planet. The succeeding two chapters contain biographical sketches of the life of Arunagirinatha based on traditional accounts and later studies carried out by learned scholars and researchers. Chapter 4 contains a detailed analysis of the structure and contents of Thiruppugazh songs viewed from different angles, which collectively bring out the supreme grandeur of these verses.

The saint's balanced approach towards Gaanaapathya, Saivism, Shaaktam, Vaishnavism, Sowra and finally Kaumara, as revealed in his supplications as also the exemplary manner in which he links other deities with his favourite Lord, Muruga is discussed in Chapters 5 to 10. The author's concluding observations are contained in Chapter 11. Translations of select Thiruppugazh songs and Glossary of Thiruppugazh songs referred to in this book are given in Appendix I and II respectively.

The author would like to strike a note of caution here. Appreciation of the beauty and substance of any poetry in its original form and that in a translated version would not yield satisfaction of the same degree. This is particularly so when verses like Thiruppugazh in chaste Tamil which are noted for their exceedingly rich poetical content, rhyme and phraseology are translated into English. While the author has strived to retain the flavour of the original verses while translating them into English, the readers are requested to keep this limitation in mind while going through the English translations of Thiruppugazh and other verses contained in the book.

The author expresses his deep sense of gratitude to Shri C. Subramaniam, former Governor of Maharashtra, who has written Foreword to this book. The author is grateful to Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan which agreed to publish his study on Thiruppugazh under its banner. He is particularly indebted to Shri. S. Ramakrishnan, Executive Secretary of the Bhavan who rendered assistance at every stage. The author's sincere thanks are due to Shri M.V. Arunachalam, Chairman of Bhavan's Madras Centre, who evinced keen interest in this literary venture and extended valuable support. Many well-wishers made useful comments and suggestions on reading the text and the author is thankful to all of them.

The author is conscious of the fact that the book is not an exhaustive treatise on Thiruppugazh which is weighty and all-pervasive. He would feel gratified if his modest endeavours to underscore the greatness of Thiruppugazh through this book succeed in kindling interest in the minds of those who aspire to experience the divine bliss arising out of the magnificent creations of the immortal bard, but who have had no occasion to know in somewhat greater details the origin of these songs, their structure and the message they seek to convey.

S.R.S. Ayyar

Madras

December 4, 1995

CONTENTS

CHAPTER		Page
	FOREWORD	vii
	PREFACE	ix
1	MURUGA - THE EVER-MERCIFUL LORD ..	1
2	SAINT ARUNAGIRINATHA - ..
	A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH	14
3	SAINT ARUNAGIRINATHA's LIFE - SOME INTERESTING INSIGHTS ..	22
4	GRANDEUR OF THIRUPPUGAZH ..	25
5	GAANAAPATHYA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	42
6	SAIVISM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	51
7	SHAAKTAM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	64
8	VAISHNAVISM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	73
9	SOWRA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	88
10	KAUMARA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA ..	93
11	EPILOGUE ..	117
APPENDIX I	TRANSLATIONS OF ..	119
	SELECT THIRUPPUGAZH SONGS ..
APPENDIX II	GLOSSARY OF THIRUPPUGAZH SONGS ..	127

CHAPTER 1

MURUGA - THE EVER-MERCIFUL LORD

*"The fiery Mass, That stood as Brahman
That hath no beginning
Assuming a form from formless,
From several unto One,
Thus rose a Thirumuruga
With six merciful faces and twelve arms,
For the Universe to get rescued."*¹

- Skanda Puranam.
(Kacchiyappa Sivaachariar)

In the Holy Pantheon of Hindu gods and goddesses, *Muruga*², has been given a pride of place. This is particularly discernible in the southern parts of India and some countries in the Far East, where Tamil-speaking people form a significant segment of the population. Lord Muruga is considered essentially as 'Tamil God' (Thamizh Kadavul). He is the repository of Jnana (Knowledge) and the very fountain-head of the three branches of Tamil literature - Prose (Iyal), Verse (Isai) and Theatre (Natakam). Great sages like Agasthya had worshipped Him and secured His grace. The dwarfish Agasthya, according to legends, had gone to Podhiyamalai in South and maintained the earth's equilibrium, at Lord Siva's command. The occasion was Siva's marriage with Parvathi when large multitudes of sages and devotees flocked to Kailas, causing sinkage of the earth's north side (Himalayas) and upturn of the southern portion³. Nakkeerar, Poyya Mozhi, Owaiyaar, Kachiyappa Sivachariar, Kumara Gurupara and Arunagirinatha are the other names instantly coming to one's mind; they were all close to Muruga's heart and who composed priceless and soul-stirring devotional gems in Tamil.

Muruga's glory and pre-eminence arise due to three reasons - He 'arrived' in this planet as the Son of Lord Siva, as the younger Brother of Lord Ganesa and as the Nephew of Lord Narayana. He is venerated as *Kaliyuga Varada*⁴, the God who blesses and protects those who ardently seek His grace. Kowsalya, Lord Rama's mother invoked the blessings of 'Skandha', when Rama took leave of her prior to his departure to forest as per King Dasaratha's wish.⁵ And in Bhagavad Gita, Lord Krishna declares that among all commanders, He is 'Skandha'.⁶ Muruga contains in Himself the three divine eternal functions - creation (Srishti), protection (Sthithi) and destruction (Samhara) as evidenced by the three first letters in His name: MU - Mukundan (Vishnu), RU - Rudran (Siva) and KA - Kamalan (Brahma). The three integral elements of Muruga's personality are Spear (Vel) in His hand, Peacock, His mount and Cock, which adorns His banner. Vel signifies Jnanasakti : this was given to Muruga by His Divine Mother, Parvathi wishing Him victory over asuras (demons) led by the tyrannous Soorapadma. The glittering spear of Muruga is venerated by devotees as 'Shakthi Vel' or 'Veera Vel' signifying its extra-ordinary power and strength. Cock and Peacock represent 'Nadham' and 'Bindhu'. The Peacock displays the divine shape of 'Om kara' when it spreads its magnificent plumes into a full-blown circular form, while the Cock proclaims loudly the Pranava sound 'OM'. Muruga shines as the very essence of Vedas and *mantras*⁷.

Murugu in Tamil denotes divineness, handsomeness, youthfulness, happiness, fragrance and sweetness. The Lord is the very manifestation of handsomeness, robust youthfulness, masculinity, fragrance and unmatched valour and the abode of happiness. One would be endowed with everlasting youthfulness only when he or she is not getting old. Human beings take birth in this earth, pass through different stages such as childhood, adolescence, adulthood and old age and ultimately meet with the inevitable death. They are again born in this world not necessarily in the same form as they were in their previous births⁸. This process goes on endlessly⁹. Muruga, on the other hand, has neither a beginning nor an end; He is not born nor dead¹⁰. Age does not wither Him away. This explains His evergreen youthfulness. The Sun is not visible to us temporarily at nights; for this reason one cannot conclude that Sun has ceased to exist, for when darkness engulfs a part of the globe, the Sun is shining bright somewhere else. We come to know of its existence when it rises again in the morning. Muruga's 'appearance' in this planet is analogous to this eternal phenomenon¹¹.

The epic *Skanda Purana*¹², one of the eighteen Puranas created by Veda Vyasa, vividly narrates the circumstances which led to the divine 'appearance' of Muruga, His glory and heroic achievements. He 'rose' to protect gods who were subjected to extreme tormentation and cruelty by demon Soorapadma. They all appealed collectively to Lord Siva to come to their rescue. Moved at their plight, Siva willed to bring forth a powerful divine personality, an element of Himself, but yet distinct from Him, Who would have unparalleled bravery, and Who alone would be able to slay Soorapadma and his clan. The extremely powerful spark which emanated from His third eye was carried by the Fire God (Agni) and was deposited in Saravana Lake; there arose six cute tiny tots who were looked after by six Kirthiga maidens and the Six Forms later united to become a Single Six Faced Child with resplendent beauty. Added to Siva's five faces, Sadhyojata, Vamadeva, Aghora, Tatpurusha and Ishana was Adhomukha; thus He became "Shanmukha". He is known as Saravanabhava as He emerged out of Saravana lake, and Karthikeya, since six kirthiga maidens took the six babies in their arms and showered their affection on them.

Brahma, the Creator, happened to slight the young Muruga during one of his visits to Kailasa. Muruga wished to teach a lesson to the Creator for his act of imprudence. He asked the Four-faced Creator the meaning of Pranava. When he could not explain satisfactorily, Muruga taunted Brahma and not content with that imprisoned him too. He concluded that Brahma was not fit to perform the assigned job. He then assumed the role of the Creator! Muruga freed Brahma from prison when Siva, Vishnu and Indra prayed at His lotus Feet and requested for the release of the Creator¹³.

Muruga turned a guru or teacher when He explained the essence of Pranava to His Father who received the upadesa in all humility as a disciple. He thus came to be known as *Swaminatha*¹⁴.

Another interesting anecdote links Muruga's taking a full round of the Universe, mounted on His mighty peacock. The legend has it that Sage Narada once visited Kailasa, the abode of Siva and presented Him with a divine pomegranate fruit. As is usual the case with fathers, Siva wanted to give it to His children Ganesa and Muruga, rather than consuming it Himself. In this process, He hatched a plot as a prelude to an eventful drama. He would not allow the fruit to be shared by two Brothers. Instead, He announced that the fruit would be given to either of the two, who returned first after taking a round of the Universe. No sooner Siva said this, than young Muruga started off riding on the back of His Peacock. His elder Brother Ganesa acted in a different manner. To Him, His eternal Parents, Siva and Parvathi represented the world and circumambulating them would be equivalent to the coming around the world. With this well-reasoned thought fixed in His mind, He took a round of His Parents and instantly annexed the prized fruit. Muruga, on return from His whirlwind trip around the Universe, learnt that His elder Brother had won the competition. A disappointed Muruga left Kailasa and proceeded straight to Pazhani Hill in South India. The name Pazhani is in fact the derivative of Pazham Nee {(Thou art fruit - Fruit of Jnana (knowledge)) as addressed by His Parents who rushed to Pazhani to soothe the enraged Muruga.

Soorapadma, who had the temerity to confront Muruga, despite being forewarned, became prey to His powerful Vel (spear) after a stiff fight. Muruga acted as a Supreme Commander (Deva Senapati) and freed gods from their captivity. The ever-compassionate Lord converted the two portions of His slain enemy as an integral part of Himself - one becoming Peacock, His mount and the other, Cock, adorning His banner.

Muruga's Consorts are Valli and Devayanai. They represent Ichha Sakthi and Kriya Sakthi. They were in reality Sundaravalli and Amudhavalli who were born out of tears of joy of Narayana, when He incarnated as Trivikrama. Both the celestial damsels did intense penance with the object of attaining the exalted status as Muruga's Consorts. Pleased with their prayers, Muruga appeared before them and ordained that Amudhavalli would be born in Devaloka as Devendra's daughter¹⁵, while Sundaravalli would take birth in the earth, in the hunter tribe. The Lord promised to marry both Valli and Devayanai. The marriage of Muruga and Devayanai took place at Thirupparamkundram attendant with full vedic rites. Devayanai was in fact gifted to Muruga by Devendra in grateful acknowledgment of heroism and valour displayed by Muruga as the Supreme Commander of god's forces and his triumph over the deadly demon race¹⁶. Deva Senapati thus became Devasena Pati.

Muruga's wedding with Valli is replete with many interesting interludes. Muruga chose to engage in a few frolics before accepting Valli as His Consort. King Nambeesa of Chithoor, the Head of hunter tribe, had seven sons and he was aspiring to have a daughter. He was deeply devoted to Muruga. The Sage Sivamuni, who was doing tapasya in the forest chanced to see a female deer and his mere sight resulted in the animal becoming pregnant¹⁷. The animal delivered a beautiful baby girl and left the place. King Nambeesa, who had gone to the forest with his sons for hunting saw the bewitching babe and brought it home and began to foster the child as his own daughter. As the girl was found among "Valli" vines¹⁸, she was named Valli. Valli ceaselessly nurtured the thought of Muruga even from her tender age and was determined to have Him as her Husband and none else. When she became of marriageable age, Nambeesa, in tune with the hunter tribe custom, sent her to 'Thinaippunam' (fields growing Thinai grains). She was to keep vigil perched on a high rise rostrum and protect the crops from wandering birds till the crops were harvested. It was at this time Valli got Guru Dheeksha from Sage Narada who met her and said to her that Muruga would be the ideal match for her. The words of the sage pleased Valli highly. She was in fact having this very thought for years! Narada then went to Thirutthani, where the Lord was in a composed mood after the fierce battle with Soorapadma. The sage reminded Muruga about His assurance to marry the two maidens and told that one girl remaining to be wed, Valli, was yearning intensely and persistently for Him.

Muruga's leelas began now¹⁹. He first appeared as a hunter and did not find any positive response from Valli to His clever approaches. He turned into a giant "Vengai" tree when Valli's father suddenly appeared on the scene. Thereafter, He took the form of a trembling old man and ate millet flour-honey mixture offered by Valli feigning that He was feeling very hungry. He proposed to wed her, much to the chagrin of Valli. Finally, Muruga invoked the blessings of His Elder Brother, Ganesa for success of his mission. On the fervent appeal of His younger Brother, Ganesa appeared as a wild elephant in the forest and began to chase Valli. Terrified with the mighty pachyderm's menacing advance, Valli ran for protection and came straight into the hands of Muruga²⁰.

Now that Valli had Sparsha Dheeksha (initiation by touch), Muruga appeared with dazzling six faces and twelve arms, mounted on peacock before Valli and reminded her of her past and His vow to marry her on the Earth. Nambeesa and his tribesmen's attempts to resist Muruga Who had taken away Valli could not last long. On Muruga revealing His identity, Nambeesa regretted over his folly in confronting the Lord and gave his daughter in marriage to Muruga according to custom of hunter tribe.

The learned scholar late Shri Keeran during the course of his discourses has admirably explained the esoteric meaning of Muruga's reprimanding Brahma, His slaying Soorapadma and the Lord's marrying Valli and Devayanai. The author thought it appropriate to quote these here²¹ :

"The action of Muruga in knocking at the head of Brahma and imprisoning him signifies that one should not try to belittle God with pride of knowledge; if one prostrates at His feet with love, God Himself will reach him."

"It is also not correct to say that Muruga slew Soorapadma. The Lord did not destroy him. Raavana, Mahaabali, Kamsa and the like perished, but Soorapadma did not perish. He turned into Peacock and Cock. He stood as a tree of egoism with two branches that were 'I' and 'Mine'. Skandha pierced it into two portions with His Spear (Vel) and converted them into Peacock and Cock. He did not throw him away, but retained with Himself. Human mind resembles the tree that is Soorapadma. If its branches, 'I' and 'Mine' are destroyed with Spear of Knowledge (Jnana), one can remain for ever with the Lord as the Cock and Peacock do."

"Similarly the Lord's twin weddings contain in themselves an exalted meaning. They are not ordinary marriages. The Lord is not only the Form of Siva, but of Shakti too. If Spear is Jnanashakti, Indra's daughter (Devayanai) is Kriya Shakti and Ichhashakti which causes functioning of the latter, is in the form of Valli. Further, man's needs are of two kinds. One is the basic need. The other one arises out of the quest for comforts and luxuries. The most backward in the society are like hunters. They are not capable of fulfilling their basic requirements. Valli represents this mass of people. She was hunter's daughter, who longed to reach the Lord. On the other side, there are people like Indra; they belong to the upper strata of society, they lack nothing. Devayanai represents such people; she had also done penance to reach the Lord. The Lord contained both the Women in Himself. With consistent love, Jeevaatma, regardless of body it is in, merges into Paramaatma. Before God, there is no High and Low. He is bound only by love."

Muruga's abodes are countless. He resides mostly at hill tops²². Among his holy abodes, six are prominent and these are known as Aāru Padaiveedugal. A vivid portrayal of these six sacred places is found in the opera Thirumurugatruppada, composed by Nakkeerar, the famed poet.

There is a story behind Nakkeerar's creation of Thirumurugatruppada.

Nakkeerar once challenged Lord Siva over a Tamil verse, composed by the latter Himself to help an indigent poet, which sought to convey the sense that women's hair have a natural fragrance. Nakkeerar held firmly to his ground that this was not true and declared that even the celestial women including Goddess Parvathi did not possess this characteristic. This he did despite his realising that the person whom he was opposing was none other than Lord Siva. Nakkeerar's haughtiness invited the wrath of Siva who cursed him that he be afflicted with leprosy. When he atoned for his impropriety and fell at the Feet of Siva, He beckoned him to visit Kailasa for his deliverance.

Nakkeerar started his northward journey towards Kailasa and reached the Himalayas. When he was resting at a lake side, by quirk of fate, he was captured and put into a cave by a horse-faced female *bhootha*²³, where he found himself to be the thousandth person. The bhootha was to devour all the thousand inmates. Not getting worried about his safety, Nakkeerar concerned at the plight of his fellow captives, called out Muruga for help and the divine opera Thirumurugatrupadai sprang forth from his tongue. It is said that Muruga, listening to His devotee's outpouring, rushed to the spot and rescued him from the clutches of the bhootha. Nakkeerar conveyed his intention of going to Kailasa in fulfillment of his vow and requested Muruga to show the way to Kailasa. Muruga reminded him that Kalahasti, the Dakshina Kailasa equalled North Kailasa and Nakkeerar could worship Siva in Kalahasti itself to get freed from the curse. Muruga further said to Nakkeerar that if he took a dip in the lake, he would see Kailasa and disappeared. Nakkeerar did so, and lo! he rose from the banks of Swarnamukhi (Ponmugari) river in Kalahasti, fully cured of his deadly affliction! The incident²⁴ proclaims the greatness of Thirumurugatrupadai and Muruga's extreme fondness to this devotional composition.

Coming to the six holy abodes of Muruga, these are : Thirupparamkundram, Thiruchendoor, Thiruvavinankudi (Pazhani), Thiruverakam, Kundruthoraädal (Thirutthani and several other hills) and Pazhamuthircholai. Muruga blesses His devotees who visit shrines at these places.

Thirupparamkundram is at a distance of eight kilometres from Madurai in South India. This holy place is associated with the divine marriage of Muruga with Devayanai. Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar and Sundaramoorthi Swamigal, two of the Saiva Samaya quartet had visited Thirupparamkundram. There is a sacred tank known as Saravana Poygai in the temple precincts. It is nice to see fish emerging from the tank and jumping to accept the puffed rice (Pori) offered to them!

Muruga - The Ever-merciful Lord

9

The Subramania shrine at Thiruchendoor is situated by the side of sea. From Tirunelveli in the South India, one has to travel a distance of about 60 km to reach this beautiful sea resort. Muruga annihilated the demon forces led by Soorapadma at Thiruchendoor. The Lord's heroic fight with Soora is enacted with religious fervour during the annual Skandha Shashti festival here, which draws a large number of devotees. Though the temple is in close proximity to sea, if one goes to deep interior of the sanctum sanctorum, he would be surprised to find a hillock there! Is He not the one Who ever loves to reside at hill tops? We will not find the usual 'Vel' in deity's hand at this temple, since He is depicted as one offering puja to Siva to get recompense from the sin of killing numerous lives. Jagadguru Adi Sankara had visited the Thiruchendoor temple and offered prayers. The famous hymn, Sri Subramanya Bhujangam was composed at this temple. The Sage Kumara Gurupara composed Kandhar Kali Venpa at this hallowed spot²⁵.

Pazhani is the third Padai veedu. The other names of Pazhani are Sivagiri and Sivamalai. Pazhani is at a distance of about 60 km from Dindigul in South India. While Sri Dhandayudhapani blesses devotees from the hill top, there is a Muruga temple down the hill, which is called Thiruvavinankudi. The association of Pazhani with Muruga's round the world trip has been mentioned earlier. Muruga presented Japamalai (Rosary) to Arunagirinatha in *Thiruvavinankudi*²⁶. It is believed that Sage Agasthya did penance at Thiruvavinankudi and learnt the five grammars of Tamil language under Lord Muruga.

Thiruverakam comes next. Popularly known as Swamimalai, this is located at a distance of 8 km from Kumbakonam in South India on the northern banks of the river Cauvery. The Lord here presents Himself as Gurunatha Who preached pranava to His Father, Siva ("Swami") and thus became Swaminatha. Arunagirinatha got divine "lotus Feet" darshan of Muruga here. It is believed that the sixty steps of the temple leading to the sanctum sanctorum represent the sixty Tamil months.

Kundruthoraādal is a generic term which denotes many-a-hill having holy shrines of Muruga²⁷. Thirutthani is prominent among them. Situated at a distance of 13 km from Arakonam, near Madras, Thirutthani abounds in its scenic beauty. Muruga, in Thirutthani, it is said, is in a soothing and relaxed mood. His ire over Soora and his kinsmen, whom He vanquished in battle, had cooled down. His two divine Consorts, Valli and Devayanai are with Him at this temple. Thirutthani has a unique distinction since it is the most favourite hill of Muruga among the several hills of the world. The Lord Himself has told so to Valli, as we observe from Skandha Puranam (Valliammai Thirumanam). There is a school of thought which professes that Muruga preached the essence of Pranava to His Father Siva in Thirutthani, which is also known as Santhadri and Paripoornachalam. Every year, on December 31, a large number of devotees congregate at Thirutthani. They sing Thiruppugazh while climbing the steps leading to the temple at the hill top and worship the Lord Thanigesa (Muruga).

Pazhamuthircholai comes last in the series of six holy places. This is at a distance of about 20 km from Madurai in South India. The temple of Muruga, Who is flanked by Valli and Devayanai, is located amidst quiet and beautiful landscape. At the top of the hill, is Noopura Ganga, a perennial waterfall with a temple dedicated to Raakkayi Amman. Azhagar Koil, the temple of Sri Narayana, is also near Pazhamuthircholai.

In this Kali Yuga, chanting of Muruga's Name acts as a panacea to all sufferings.²⁸ Those who display love to one and all, devoid of hatred, jealousy, passion, anger and avarice and are steadfast in devotion to Muruga, invariably get mental tranquillity and everlasting bliss. They do not even fear death²⁹. The pious saints who lived amidst us and who got Muruga's infinite grace had in fact been in direct communion with Muruga and their experiences with the ever-merciful Lord have found expression in their devotional outpourings. They have attained immortality and serve as a medium for the worldly-minded who are after ephemeral pleasures to become seekers of perpetual spiritual bliss. Saint Arunagirinatha was such an inspired and great soul.

Footnotes

1. "Aruvamum Uruvamaagi Anaadhiyai Palavaai Onraai
Brahmamai Ninra Jothip pizhambadhori Meniyaagi
Karunai Koor Mugangal Aarum Karamadhu
Pannirandum Konde
Oru Thiru Murugan Vandhu Aangu Vudhitthanai Vulagamuyya."
2. Also known as Subramanya, Karthikeya, Visakha, Shanmukha, Kumara, Skandha, Guha and Saravanabhava.
3. Arunagirinatha recalls this happening in his Thiruppugazh hymn "Ayilappu", sung at Kancheepuram.
4. "Skandhasya Keerthimathulaam Kalikalmasha Naasineem" (Skandha's sacred story removes all sins and bestows fame and name). - Skandhapurana.
5. Valmiki Ramayana - Ayodhya Kaanda - Sarga 25, Stanzas 11 and 12.
6. Bhagavad Gita - Chapter 10 (Vibhuti Vistara Yoga) - Stanza 24.
7. A vedic intonation on Muruga ends thus:
"Subramanyoham, Subramanyoham, Subramanyoham."
The repetition of Muruga's name thrice implies the reigning supremacy of the Lord.
8. Arunagirinatha says in one of his Chidambaram Thiruppugazh hymns :
('Yezhu kadal manalai')
"Number of distressful life forms I have assumed over several births would exceed the sands of seven seas."
9. "Births and deaths by turn (do I face),
In mother's womb lie I again and again,
Ocean of life this, impassable and boundless is,
Oh Murari ! have mercy and protect me".
- Adi Sankara in 'Bhaja Govindam'
10. Stanza 12 of Kandhar Anubhoothi declares this truth on unequivocal terms.
11. Note the title of Kalidasa's masterly literary piece on Muruga. He calls it "Kumara Sambhavam" and not "Kumara Jananani".
12. The credit for translating this magnum opus into Tamil, and that at the command of Muruga, goes to Kachiyappa Sivachariar, who lived in Kancheepuram and was the priest in the temple of Kumarakkottam. It is believed that his sacred book has the stamp of approval of the Lord.
13. "Piqu'd at his ignorance (of substance of Pranava)
Once did Thou dishevel the tuft of the Four-faced (Brahma)
In the wink of an eye;
The Threesome beseeching Thee at Thy Twin feet

- Did Thou set free (Brahma) from captivity..."
- Thiruezhukkootrirukkai (Arunagirinatha)
14. "Gurunatha, Who preached Upadesa mantra into the two ears of Siva to His heart's content ... " (Sivanaar Manam Kulira).
- Thiruvavinankudi Thiruppugazh.
 15. A different version the author happened to hear is that she was the daughter of Upendra, younger brother of Devendra. However, the Ash-tothara Satha Namavali dedicated to Devayanai refers to her among other names, as Vajri Sutha (daughter of Vajrapani, (Devendra), which contradicts this version. That Devayanai was the daughter of Devendra is confirmed by Arunagirinatha, when he refers to Devayanai as "Vajrapanik - kumari in his Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu. (Vajrapani - Indra) and to Muruga's wedding "Indra's daughter" in Tiruchendoor Thiruppugazh "Padar Buviyin...."
 16. Asurar Kulanthaka (Yama to the Demon Race), so eulogises Arunagirinatha in one of his compositions.
 17. Sage Sivamuni and the deer were none other than Lord Vishnu and Sri Lakshmi; Sage Kanva had cursed them to take these births.
 18. A thick, sweet and edible tuberous root.
 19. It is seen from a Thiruppugazh song "Thalai Mayir Kokkukku.....". (Pazhamuthircholai) that Muruga proceeded to wed Valli without the knowledge of Devayanai.
 20. " Lord who came as elephant and blessed young Muruga to marry that hunter girl (Valli) that very moment", runs a Thiruppugazh song in praise of Vinayaka. (Kaithala Niraikani..)
 21. Source : "Silver Jubilee Souvenir" - ' Thiruppugazh Anbargal', (Karnataka Region) September 1994 (pps. 96-101) (Free translation into English from Tamil).
 22. Devotees call Muruga as Kundruthor aadum Kumaran - Kumara who resides on every Hill.
 23. Source : Arunagirinatha's "Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu."
 24. This narration is based on Thirukkalatthi Puranam; Parangiri Puranam gives a different version.
 25. Kumara Gurupara, who was a native of Sree Kailasam Division of Sree Vaikuntam in Tirunelveli district in South India, was mute till he was five years old when his parents prayed at the lotus Feet of Lord of Chenthil (Muruga), placing the child at His holy doorstep. Responding to their devotion, Muruga not only made Kumara Gurupara to speak, but also made him a great orator and poet, well-versed in Sanskrit and Tamil.
 26. "Sadgurunatha, who gave (me a) Japamalai (Rosary)" Apagara Nindhai....
- Thiruvavinankudi Thiruppugazh.
 27. Among the numerous hill temples of Muruga, mention may be made of Thirumalai (Sri Sailam), Thiruvengadam (Tirupathi), Vallimalai, Ratnagiri, Viraalimalai, Tiruchirapalli, Thiruchengodu, Kundrakkudi and Kathirkaamam (Sri Lanka); Arunagirinatha has sung Thiruppugazh hymns in all these shrines. Temples of Muruga have also been built in several centres both in India and abroad in later years. There is a Kaarthikeya (Muruga) temple atop Parvati Hills at Pune (Maharashtra) and one located at Vetrimalai at Port Blair (Andaman Islands). In a Thiruppugazh hymn, captioned 'Kheshrakkovai', (Kumbakonamodu) Arunagirinatha concludes by addressing Muruga, as the One 'Who has temples spread over the entire world'. A statement which is true for all times to come!

28. Muruga Himself is said to have told Narada : "Those who have sought refuge in Me have no fear, they won't be left with any wants; those who are devoted to me have no enemies, they have no diseases...."
29. Arunagirinatha in the concluding verse of his Kandar Alankaram says :

" Never shall I fear Yama, who follows (me)

Holding Soola and whipping his rope

Hath I the true help of Vel

And the holy Hands of the Six-faced God,

The Offspring of the Lord Who consumed the venom

That gushed out of the ocean."

CHAPTER 2

SAINT ARUNAGIRINATHA - A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

*"Oh, Vela! (Muruga) wouldst other trifling verses Enter thence into Thine ears lovingly
In the same way as the hymns (Thiruppugazh)
That Arunagirinatha sings in Thy praise
Out of compassion (towards the earthlings)
In this vast Universe?"*¹

- A Tamil laudatory verse of early times.

If one recounts the names of great men and saints who were singularly fortunate in winning the limitless grace of Lord Muruga, the sacred name of Arunagirinatha will instantly come to one's mind. Here was a rare instance when the merciful Lord, by His own volition, chose Arunagirinatha as one of His most favourite devotees and made him His messenger for propagating universal love and brotherhood through the medium of divinely, soul-stirring Tamil hymns in His praise, known as Thiruppugazh. And Muruga did this under a most extraordinary situation as we shall see later.

Arunagirinatha's divine verses are immortal since they bear the divine stamp of Muruga. The great versifier extolled the glory of the Lord residing in His six chief abodes (Aāru Padaiveedugal) referred to in previous chapter and several other venerated spots, in more than 16,000 Thiruppugazh songs; but to its hard luck, mankind could benefit only with 1325 of these gems. The other works of the saint are Kandhar Anubhoothi, Kandhar Alankaram, Kandhar Andhadhi, Vēl-Mayil-Cheval Virutham and twenty-five compositions which come under what is known as *Thiruvaguppu*² and Thiruezhukootrirukkai.

Thiruppugazh and other heavenly works of Arunagirinatha are highly efficacious in uplifting human beings who are enveloped in the veil of illusion and who are subjected to multifarious hardships and diseases. Those who recite these devotional praises with a pure heart and unflinching devotion to Muruga invariably get their hearts' desires fulfilled, prosper in their lives and gradually, but surely, get into an unexplainable blissful state which they alone can experience. The greatness of Thiruppugazh songs is that even if one is not given to singing thanks to the complexities associated with these songs, arising out of their unique word-structure and rhythmic pattern (Chandham), it would suffice if he or she simply recites them as a prose with full devotion. The desired results would still accrue.

Saint Arunagirinatha is glorified by a number of appellations - Saarvabhowma Dindima Kavi, Ashtabhasha Parameswarar, Shad Dharsana Shanmukhar, Chandhappavala Peruman, Chithra Kavi, Chandhakkavi - to name a few. Vakkirkkaruna Giri (Arunagiri for words) - so eulogised Thayumanava. Muruga offered Upadesa to three distinguished individuals, Arunagirinatha being one of them. The remaining two are Lord Siva, His Father and Agasthya, the great sage.

Saint Arunagirinatha took birth in this ancient land of ours in the fifteenth century. Researchers differ in their biographical account of the saint-poet. The author would like to present here the traditional and widely-believed account of Arunagirinatha's life. A few interesting insights into the life of the saint, provided by a few erudite researchers after a study of ancient texts and inscriptions, are given in the next chapter.

Thiruvannamalai or Thiruvarunai was the birth place of Arunagirinatha³. A great deal of sacredness is attached to Thiruvannamalai. This is one of the Pancha Bhootha Sthalas (Centres of Five Elements). Thiruvannamalai represents Fire (Agni)⁴. The Lord Arunachaleswara (Siva) is the Presiding Deity of Thiruvannamalai temple. The legend has it that both Brahma and Vishnu failed to spot the peak or the base of the colossal Jyothi Swarupa that was Siva⁵. The eminence of Thiruvannamalai is proved by yet another general belief. There are four moksha saadhanas (means for liberation). These are: to be born in *Thiruvaroor*⁶, offering worship at Chidambaram, remembering Thiruvannamalai or breathing one's last at Varanasi (Kasi). It is apparent that remembering Thiruvannamalai for getting salvation is the easiest of the four routes and is certainly under one's control.

Arunagirinatha was born in the Tamil month of Aāni (mid-June to mid-July) on a Full Moon Day, with Moolam as his birth star. His original name was *Sonadharar*⁷. It is believed that the saint-poet was the contemporary of King Prabhudadevaraya (1422 to 1466 AD) and adorned the King's Darbar as a Tamil poet. The saint refers to King Prabhudadevaraya in one of his Thiruppugazh 'songs'⁸.

The saint's early life, according to the widely-believed accounts, was not inspiring. He is said to have indulged excessively in worldly pleasures. It was a time when the grace of Muruga had not descended on him. Many of his compositions contain references to the degrading life he led before Muruga emancipated him⁹. With the passage of time, Arunagirinatha came to be afflicted with leprosy.¹⁰ One day under most excruciating circumstances a sudden transformation took place in him¹¹. The saint realised what a miserable life he had lived so far. He felt highly remorseful. This was a turning point in his life¹². The sense of guilt overpowered his reasoning and the saint in utter despair decided to end his life. He ascended the lofty temple tower of Thiruvannamalai and leapt down with Lord Muruga's holy name in his lips.

Then the miracle happened ! Muruga was perhaps waiting for such a climax to occur in the life of the individual whom He had chosen for a special mission. It has often been seen that the God Almighty, before bestowing His grace on his devotee tests his loyalty and steadfastness of devotion and makes sure that he sincerely repents over his past misdeeds. Driven to an extreme situation, when a devotee becomes desperate and even attempts to put an end to his life, the Lord intervenes and resuscitates him. This was what happened to Arunagirinatha. Even as Arunagirinatha was about to hit the ground, Muruga had manifested Himself as Gurunatha, the Eternal Teacher at the foot of the tower. The Lord received the saint gently in His hands. Arunagirinatha stood awe-struck before the divine effulgent Form with six faces and twelve arms, which Muruga had assumed. The Lord sneered at Arunagirinatha's plan to end his life. The benevolent Lord blessed Arunagirinatha and tendered the divine Upadesa: "Remain Quiet"¹³. The saint, on winning Muruga's grace, forgot the world and surroundings and did penance for twelve years.

Moved by Arunagirinatha's intense meditation, Muruga appeared before him in radiant splendour and ordained His disciple to sing His glory for the upliftment of the mankind. Having not been exposed to the skillful art of composing hymns, Arunagirinatha conveyed his helplessness to abide by the Lord's command. Muruga then gently wrote the Pranava ('OM') on the saint's tongue with his Vel (Spear) and even prompted him by giving the opening word "Muthai"¹⁴ for his maiden musical offering. Lo! an unending stream of words in chaste Tamil with perfect rhythm began gushing forth from Arunagirinatha's blessed tongue, as though from open flood gates! The boundless grace of merciful Lord had already made its impact on Arunagirinatha.

Saint Arunagirinatha again immersed himself in meditative trance. When he emerged out of Yoga Nidra, he heard Muruga's asareeri (voice sans body) from space asking him to come to *Vayalur*¹⁵. The saint had a magnificent darshan of lord at Vayalur. There was another fond command of Muruga here. He beckoned the saint to Viralimalai. When Arunagirinatha had difficulties in finding out as to which direction he should go in the forests to reach Viralimalai, Muruga appeared as a hunter and showed him the way.

The saint visited a number of shrines, including the venerated six shrines (Aāru Padaiveedugal) and sang the glory of Muruga as ordained by Him. The divine hymns had become popular among the devotees spread over four corners of the country.

Two incidents in Arunagirinatha's life stand out in prominence, which proclaim the saint-poet's profound knowledge of Tamil, his unflinching devotion to Muruga and his limitless compassion for fellow-men.

When the sage was passing through Saniyoor, he came to know that a renowned Tamil Scholar and poet Villipputhoorār had the strange practice of inviting Tamil poets for debating contests. He used to cut off the ears of poets who were invariably defeated by him in these challenges. Arunagirinatha accepted Villipputhooräär's challenge invoking Muruga's blessings. He had quick and apt replies to all the questions of his opponent. When his turn came, Arunagirinatha commenced to recite Kandhar Andhadhi and sought Villipputhooräär's commentary stanza by stanza. And Villipputhooräär did so until he came to the fifty-fourth stanza. Here he abruptly stopped, unable to offer any explanation. Villipputhooräär accepted defeat and as already agreed, offered his ears to be sliced off. But Arunagirinatha, the repository of compassion, did not wish to be associated with such a barbaric act. He said to Villipputhooräär not to inflict bodily injury to any one henceforth and to encourage young and talented scholars and poets. It is believed that at the instance of Arunagirinatha, Villipputhooräär composed Villi Bharatham to wash off his sins.

Another anecdote in Arunagirinatha's life relates to the encounter which the saint had with a Kaali Upasaka, Sambhandandaan who lived in Thiruvannamalai. The worshipper of Goddess Kaali (Shakti) did not belong to the Saiva cult. The King Prabhudadevaraya was friendly with both. Sambhandandaan vowed that he would make the Goddess appear before the King. Saint Arunagirinatha promised that the King would be enabled to have the darshan of Muruga. On Sambhandandaan's appeal, Shakti declined to give darshan, but assured Her devotee that She would prevent Muruga from appearing before Prabhudadevaraya.

On the appointed day, both Sambhandandaan and Arunagirinatha presented themselves at the King's Court. Sambhandandaan's prayers before the Goddess for Her appearance at that venue did not succeed as anticipated; but he was inwardly happy that She wouldn't release Muruga. Arunagirinatha praised the glory of Muruga by offering Seer Padha Vaguppu and *Kadaikanniyal Vaguppu*¹⁶. There was no response since the Goddess had made Muruga a child and kept Him on Her lap. Arunagirinatha then sang Mayil Vaguppu in worshipful praise of Muruga's holy mount, the Peacock. It had the desired effect. The Peacock on hearing the hymn began dancing. Seeing the Peacock dancing, Muruga jumped off from His Mother's lap and rushed to Arunagirinatha riding on the mighty bird's back. King Prabhudadevaraya was blinded by the extremely powerful rays that accompanied the Lord's manifestation. Arunagirinatha is said to have cured the king of this malady with the Sacred Ash (Vibhoothi). The anecdote proclaims Arunagirinatha's hold over the Ishta Devata, Muruga, which arose solely out of his unflinching devotion and confidence that Lord would not disappoint him and simultaneously, Muruga's earnestness to come to the rescue of His bhaktas in times of need, wherever they are placed¹⁷.

It is believed that Sambhandandaan, irked at the defeat he suffered on the hands of Arunagirinatha, set afloat a theory to the King that Arunagirinatha alone was capable of fetching the celestial Karpaga (Parijatha) flower. When the king requested Arunagirinatha for this precious gift, the saint who had the extraordinary ability to enter into and come out of the bodies¹⁸; left his mortal coils near the temple tower and entered into the dead body of a parrot lying nearby. The parrot which life with the entry of saint's soul in its body flew to the celestial world for fetching the rare flower. Sambhandandaan, waiting for such an opportunity, made arrangements for the burial of human body that no longer belonged to Arunagirinatha. It is said that the saint completed his mission successfully and presented the heavenly flower to the King Prabhudadevaraya and even revealed his real identity. Since his earlier human frame was then not in existence, Arunagirinatha remained in parrot form. It is believed that the highly potent Kandhar Anubhoothi was sung by the saint-composer when he was in this avian form.

After completing the sacred mission assigned to him by Muruga, Arunagirinatha attained the lotus Feet of Muruga, again on a Full Moon Day in the Tamil month of Aāni with Moolam as the star - just as he was born on this day. A few others say that Arunagirinatha ever remained as a parrot on the shoulder of Thirutthani Muruga. A visitor to Siva temple at Thiruvannamalai would find a replica of a parrot at the top of the temple tower from where the saint had leapt and also the Sannidhi (temple) of Muruga, who had then come as saint's saviour, near the entrance to the Northern Tower¹⁹. In another shrine, in the temple complex, we find the image of Muruga on peacock back carved on one of the pillars and it is believed that the Lord had manifested out of this pillar when Arunagirinatha was having his encounter with Sambhandandaan. Is this not reminiscent of Lord Narasimha's thundering emergence from the pillar at the royal court of Hiranyakasipu, the demon, to confirm the statement of young Prahlada that Hari is present even at that pillar?

Footnotes

1. Arunagirinathan Akhilathalathunmai
Karunaiyinal Paadum Kavi Pol - Priyamura
Verumor Punkavigal, Velone! Nin Cheviyil
Erumo? Yenne Ini?
2. The twenty-five hymns which are classified under Thiruvaguppu are :
Seerpaadha Vaguppu, Devendra Sangha Vaguppu, Vēl Vaguppu, Thiru Velaikkaran Vaguppu, Perutha Vachana Vaguppu, Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu, Porugalatthalagai Vaguppu, Cherukkalatthalagai Vaguppu, Porkkalatthalagai
Vaguppu, Thirujnana Vezha Vaguppu, Thirukkaiyil Vazhakka Vaguppu, Vedic-chi Kaavalan Vaguppu, Sevakan Vaghuppu, Vēl Vaangu Vaghuppu, Puya
Vaguppu, Chiithu Vaghuppu, Kadakkaniyal Vaguppu, Sivaloka Vaguppu, Mayil Vaguppu, Kolu Vaguppu, Veera Vaal Vaguppu, Sivagiri Vaguppu, Thiru Chen-dil Vaguppu, Thiruppazhani Vaguppu and Thirupparamigiri Vaguppu.
3. " A bhakta of Arunai Nagar " - so says Arunagirinatha about himself in "Vedicchikavalan Vaguppu."
4. The other four centres are : Kancheepuram - Earth (Prithvi), Thiruvanaikka - Water (Ap), Thirukkalatthi - Air (Vāyu) and Chidambaram - Ether (Ākasa).
5. " (The Lord who was) Hidden to Hari and Ayan,
The Leader who directed His spark laughingly unto three worlds... "
Ari Ayan aria- Vadugur Thiruppugazh.
6. " Subservient I am to all those who were born in Thiruvarooor. "
- Thirutthonda Thogai (Sundara moorthy Swamigal).
7. It was Lord Muruga who in later life of the Saint addressed him as Arunagirinatha.
8. "Athala Chedanaar Aada..."
9. Some hold the view that such narrations by Arunagirinatha do not directly relate to him, but they point out the weaknesses and vices of average human beings.
10. The saint's own admission of this is found in Thiruppugazh hymn "Enai adaindha..". (Thirutthani)

Saint Arunagirinatha - a Biographical Sketch

21

11. A different version is that the harsh words of his elder sister inflicted a deep wound in Arunagiritha's mind, prompting him to take up ascetism.
12. Such turning points have occurred in the lives of other great men as well. A striking similarity is found in the life of Tulsidas. The saint-poet was given to mundane pleasures in his early life. He was deeply attached to his wife, Mamta Devi; so intense an attachment that he could not even bear temporary separation from her. Once, in a stormy midnight, Tulsidas wanted to meet Mamta Devi, who had gone to her mother's place. He had to cross the flooded Yamuna river to reach her village. The extremely adverse climatic conditions did not deter Tulsidas in venturing out. He mistook a floating corpse in the river as a log of wood and reached the other bank sitting on it. He again mistook a cobra that was hanging by as a rope, which he caught hold of and jumped in the open courtyard of his wife's house. Mamta Devi was stunned to see Tulsidas in such an extraordinary situation. When she came to know the devices he used for making his trip, she was in deep agony. She burst forth, albeit unwittingly, at her husband and told how worthless it was on his part to have such an attachment towards a perishable mortal body and if only he displayed a fraction of such attachment and determination towards God Almighty, his taking birth in this world would not go in vain. The words shook Tulsidas to the core and realisation dawned on him. He was transformed at that very moment. This was God's will. And the mankind got the immortal Ram Charita Manas.
13. "Chumma Iru" in Tamil. This finds a place in saint's Kandhar Anubhoothi.
14. Muthu in Tamil means "Pearl".
15. Arunagirinatha had a distinctly special attachment for Vayalur Murugan as is evident by the saint's frequent reverential references to the Lord in several hymns.
16. The Thiruppugazh hymn "Athala Chedanaar Aada..." is said to have been sung on this occasion.
17. In a Thiruppugazh hymn "Moolum Vinai" (Thiruchendoor), Arunagirinatha tells us that Muruga goes in search of faultless devotees living in different places and remains there in their company.
18. The Siddhi is known as Parakaaya Pravesa (entry into another body form)
19. Arunagirinatha venerates the Lord present at the entrance to the Northern Tower of Thiruvannamalai Temple Who rescued him, in several of his Thiruppugazh songs.

CHAPTER 3

SAINT ARUNAGIRINATHA'S LIFE -
SOME INTERESTING INSIGHTS

In the previous chapter, a biographical sketch of Saint Arunagirinatha based on traditional (Karna Parampara) belief was outlined. Many interesting insights into the life of the saint have come out of intensive research carried out by a few scholars and archeological experts. Their findings give reasonably accurate clues to Arunagirinatha's birth place and period of his life as also other relevant particulars, based on stone inscriptions, bequests and ancient texts. Foremost among such researchers was late Shri T.A. Gopinatha Rao, who belonged to the Department of Archeology. Rao has revealed that in one of the stone inscriptions found in Mullandhiram (also known as Prabhudadevarayapuram) in North Arcot District of Tamil Nadu, there is a reference to the gift of a plot of land in 1550 AD. by a brahmin woman to a temple dedicated to one of her forefathers Dindimakavi Annamalai Nathar. He has proved that the said Annamalai Nathar was none other than the Saint Arunagirinatha.

One of the inscriptions on the walls of Siva temple at Puthoor near Thiruvannamalai region (1370 A.D) refers to the gift of Puthoor temple and matam to one Somanatha Jeeyar by the then King Veera Pokkana Udaiyar. Saint Arunagirinatha has honoured Somanatha who was a great devotee of Lord Arunachaleswara in one of his Thiruppugazh songs, "Oru Vazhi Padaathu" (Somanathan Matom). Mullandhiram mentioned earlier is in proximity to Puthoor. From the inscriptions it is noticed that a few of the poets who lived in these places were known as *Dindima Poets*¹.

Mahavidwan Raghava Iyengar has done a yeoman service in research into Tamil literature and has provided many a-valuable clue on the life of Saint Arunagirinatha. Raghava Iyengar in his book on Saāsana Thamizh Kavi Charitham has written a long essay on Arunagirinatha. In the fifteenth century one Rajanatha Kavi had composed a Sanskrit opera entitled Chaluva Abhyudhayam. In that opera, Rajanatha Kavi speaks highly of his father Arunagirinatha with many appellations such as Saarvabhowma Dindima Kavi, Ashtabhasha Parameswarar etc. Rajanatha Kavi further says that his father was regarded high in Chera, Chozha and Pandya Kingdoms. From the similarity of time and place it is clear that Arunagirinatha referred to by Rajanatha Kavi is the same Saint Arunagirinatha, composer of Thiruppugazh songs. Raghava Iyengar confirms the above theory by referring to a devotional verse composed by Paghazhi Koothar in which a reference is made to the 'poet who earlier sang, playing the Dindima Vaadya'; this, according to the researcher, is an obvious reference to Saint Arunagirinatha.

Shri C.V. Narayana Iyer, Professor of History, who continued the above research, has also proved that the Dindima Kavi is none other than Saint Arunagirinatha.

Valuable glimpses on the life of Arunagirinatha come to light from other sources. From the Foreword to certain Sanskrit plays, it is observed that the saint's family was earlier settled in Varendra Agrahara in Rajshaki Taluk of Bengal and it settled in the place known as Metthaipadi near Thiruvannamalai. Vibhaga Ratna Mala is a book written by someone who came from Arunagirinatha's lineage. According to this book, a Chozha King who went on a pilgrimage to Varanasi (Kasi), brought eight brahmin families who lived in the banks of river Ganges and were well-versed in Vedas, to the South and the migrants settled in *Metthaipadi*². One of these was known as Somanatha. Arunagirinatha who came in this lineage is said to have been ill-treated by his aunt and not being able to put up with the harassment, he spent a night at Siva Temple at Puthoor. Siva, it is believed, showered His grace on him and made him a great poet. Vibhaga Ratna Mala also says that Arunagirinatha was honoured by King Prabhudadevaraya who ruled Vijaya Nagara empire at that time.

Stories of the saint's life thus differ. But this is not, on any account, a deficiency to be viewed seriously. For, when one dives into the ocean of divine literary works of Arunagirinatha with interest and gets enchanted with their beauty and elegance, he would not worry needlessly to ascertain the precise biographical accounts of the immortal bard who created them. We experience the sweetness of honey or, smell the fragrance of jasmine without going to the question of origin of sweetness in honey or fragrance in jasmine. Such matters, of course, are of interest to select group of persons, who by their tireless efforts add to the storehouse of knowledge with their well-founded research and useful findings. The admirers of Thiruppugazh on that score are indebted to the researchers and scholars who have provided valuable clues to the saint's life, after mature studies.

Footnotes

1. Dindimam is small percussion instrument. The poet who engages in debate, playing simultaneously the instrument is known as Dindima Kavi (Dindima poet). Arunagirinatha refers to Dindimam in his Thiruppazhani Vaguppu. That the Dindimam was prevalent in Ramayana days is evident from a reference to the instrument in Valmiki Ramayanam. [Sundara Kaandam, 10th Sarga (Line 44)]
2. The author chanced to come across a publication wherein a slightly different version is given. According to this, Chozha King Rajendran III while returning from Varanasi (Kasi) brought with him seven Bengali Brahmin families belonging to Kashyapa, Gowthama, Chandilya, Saavarna, Sree Vatsa, Bharadwaja and Sankrithi Gothras and settled them in Thondai mandala. Rajanatha was among these. Arunagirinatha was born to Rajanatha and Abhirami, also known as Mutthammai. The real name of Arunagirinatha was Sonadharar and his birth place was Mullindaram. He was the Tamil poet adorning the Royal Court of Prabhudadevaraya (1422-1446 AD), also known as Veera Vijaya Viroopaksha. Prabhudadevaraya was the son of Vallalan III, the king of Hoysali. Arunagirinatha belonged to Gowthama Gothra (sect) and professed Saama Veda.

Tiruchendur

CHAPTER 4

GRANDEUR OF THIRUPPUGAZH

" Neither do you need Vedas
 Nor knowledge of all (64) Arts,
 Nor music and Naada,
 Nor spiritual Texts;
 Listen thou (all) daily to Thiruppugazh
 Which extols the glory of the Holy Feet
 Of the Brave (Muruga)
 Who hath attained the fame
 As the Primeval Preceptor (to Siva)."¹

- A Tamil laudatory verse of early times.

Saint Arunagirinatha extolled the glory of Muruga through exquisite Tamil hymns of praise which collectively come under Thiruppugazh. These paeans as also other creations of the saint were the medium through which he established direct communion with his Ishta Devata. The laudatory offerings of Arunagirinatha come in the sacred lineage of Thevaram, the Tamil hymns in glory of Siva, sung by Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar,² Thirunavukkarasu Swamigal or Appar Swamigal as he was known (a contemporary of Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar) and Sundaramoorthy Swamigal, as well as Thiru Vachakam, sung by Maanikka Vachaga Swamigal, and other priceless Tamil devotional hymns.

'Thiruppugazh' when literally translated would nearly correspond to 'The Propitious Praise'. Any devotional offering is bound to be magnificent, grand and sacred. More so, when it is offered to Muruga, who is considered as Muzhu Muthal Kadavul (God who is Infinite and Whole) and Saviour of mankind in this Kaliyuga. Arunagirinatha's creations possess added divinity since his maiden hymn was itself initiated by Lord. The Lord's grace has made these verses immortal, elegant and unparalleled. In stanza 15 of Kandhar Alankaram, Arunagirinatha reveals the three noble spots where Muruga had placed His holy Feet; these are: Peacock (the lord's mount) during travels, celestial subjects (devaas) and Thiruppugazh. This proves unambiguously the divine accreditation that is given to these sacred verses. The magnificent raga attunements and intricate rhythmic pattern of songs give a vivid insight into the South Indian musical system of yore.

Thiruppugazh indeed represents a synthesis of Vedas and mantras. One who dwells deep into the philosophical content of Thiruppugazh songs would find that these verses constitute the very essence of tenets contained in Vedas, Upanishads, Aagamas and Puranas. All through his works, Saint Arunagirinatha underscores the need for human beings to get elevated through love and eschewal of carnal desires and egoism. His hymns serve as pole-star to guide humanity which aspires to rise up from its dreary existence.

Arunagirinatha adopts a golden mean when he worships Lord Muruga, his favourite deity and other gods and goddesses. For him, Muruga alone is the ultimate, Parabrahma. But while he gives this supreme status to Muruga, he respects and adores other deities who are equally venerated by disciples adhering to different systems³. While Arunagirinatha apparently identifies himself as the follower of Kaumara system, he is adopting a wholesome medial approach when it comes to his treating other deities. Here lies his unique path of devotion. His hymns bear the stamp of his rare individuality. The samarasa bhava (feeling of equality) of Saint Arunagirinatha abundantly revealed in his songs draw people of different disciplines into the fold of Thiruppugazh.

The method which Arunagirinatha adopts is to link his Ishta Devata with other gods and goddesses by mentioning His family relationship with them. This is indeed an admirable way! The saint knows that Muruga would be pleased when He is addressed as Vinayaka's Brother; Lord Ganesa at the same time would be extremely happy when He hears His younger Brother's name linked to His. Similar approach is made when Muruga is addressed as Siva's divine Son or Uma's (Parvathi's) dear Offspring or Narayana's valiant Nephew⁴. While doing so, Arunagirinatha would sing to his heart's content the glory and greatness of Ganesa, Siva, Parvathi or Narayana with extensive anecdotes from epics and eventually conclude with reference to the relationship Muruga has with any of them! The more of this we shall see in coming chapters.

Thiruppugazh songs are marked for their elegant phraseology and word-structure, unequalled lyrical grace, deep spiritual fervour, sweet melody and unique rhythm. The words used by Arunagirinatha are mostly of ancient Tamil, at times with liberal sprinkling of Sanskrit terms⁵. A fair degree of proficiency in Tamil literature and poetry is a pre-requisite for understanding the real import of these words. In the absence of such skills, it is likely that the words and phrases are wrongly segregated or recited, thereby jeopardising the true substance of what the saint wished to convey. It is for these reasons Thiruppugazh is referred to as Iruppaval (Iron rice flakes), denoting the inherent strength and depth of words contained in these hymns. Many-a-time a single alphabet would form a word, while some words would really be tongue-twisters. Arunagirinatha's expertise in conveying a whole lot of anecdotes from epics in as many minimum number of words as possible becomes evident when one recites these hymns and the scenes portrayed by him come to the mind clearly. The words and phrases he has used represent the quintessence of his thoughts and feelings.

The poetic beauty of Thiruppugazh songs is verily the connoisseur's delight. The meters of these verses are of varying types. Most often they fall in four categories : (a) hymns comprising just four lines, (b) those having four stanzas of two lines each, totalling eight lines, (c) hymns having eight stanzas of two lines each, totalling sixteen lines, and (d) those consisting of eight stanzas of three lines each, totalling 24 lines. The lengthy songs have lines as much as 48 (eight stanzas of six lines each)⁶ and 72 lines (eight stanzas of nine lines each)⁷; these are, however, smaller in number. The opening words of each line in songs coming under category (a) rhyme with each other. Such rhymes occur at the beginning of the first, third, fifth and seventh lines of songs under category (b). The first, fifth, ninth and thirteenth lines of hymns categorized under (c) have rhyming words at the beginning.

In verses included in category (d), the opening words of the first, seventh, thirteenth and nineteenth lines are set to rhyme.

The devotional content of Thiruppugazh songs has no parallel. The central theme of these hymns is Arunagirinatha's absolute and unreserved surrender to Muruga. This is on par with the Saranaagathi philosophy of Vaishnavites. The saint firmly believes that Muruga would respond to the sincere call of a devotee who surrenders to Him with absolute faith and unbiased love. The path of devotion (Bhakthi Marga) depicted in these songs would lead one to God-realisation and liberation. Some songs contain passages which closely resemble namaavalis (a row of names or synonyms) in praise of a particular deity, say Ganesa, Siva, Parvathi, Vishnu or Muruga. By chanting these holy names and offering flowers (archana), a devotee can get the grace of his Ishta Devata (deity of one's choice). It is doubtful whether any other sacred hymn confers a similar advantage to devotees having different Ishta Devatas. It looks as though Arunagirinatha, with the grace of Muruga, foresaw what was in store for mankind in farther years to come in Kali Yuga—harassed mass of people, with hurry encompassed into their existence and hurdles coming in the way of righteous acts and thus made Thiruppugazh an easy and convenient devotional means for their upliftment, out of unbounded compassion.

Let us look at Arunagirinatha's philosophical thoughts which are reflected in his sacred hymns. The saint did not believe in yogis who engage themselves in self-inflicted tortures aimed at prolonging the transient physical frame. He also wanted to get out of delusion created by mind which treated the self, the body and other objects of the Universe, as separate and distinct entities. His antipathy towards undisciplined yogic practices and his ardent desire to become "Siva yogi" are clearly brought out in Thiruppugazh song 'Anitthamaana' which he sang in Thiruvaanaikka shrine:

Stating that he does not want to become a 'fatigued and foolish yogi, who practises stoppage of breathing by blocking nostrils, adopts fruitless methods and takes in plenty of medicinal herbs to prolong this ephemeral body', Arunagirinatha seeks the grace of Muruga "to destroy the pains arising out of mūlam (im- purity) and maaya (illusion) and to make him a 'Siva Swaroopa Maha Yogi' possessed of Jnana (knowledge), Aachara (disciplined routine) and Sraddha (endeavour) and who transcends the reach of the mind which differentiates the self, the body and all other objects in the Universe."

In the above verse, the saint has delineated the characteristics of yogis who practise yoga with the aim to prolong the life⁸ and the enlightened Siva yogis who have Muruga's Lotus Feet as their sole ultimate objective. He wants to be one among the latter, and his choice serves as an ideal pointer to seekers of spiritual bliss.

In his hymn 'Ari Marugoné...' devoted to Vayalur Muruga, Arunagirinatha requests his favourite deity, for upadesa (divine preaching) on the intricacies of 'Pathi Pasu Paasam', the three eternal concepts. He tells the Lord regretfully, "I, who haven't (thought and) spoken even on a day (about) Thy holy Feet, this humble (man) who knoweth not even a little, (Muruga) may I receive (from you) Pathi Pasu Paasopadesam!"⁹. The saint in the hymn 'Dasaiyaagiya' sung at Karuvor implores the Lord to wipe out his egoism (characteristic of 'Pasu'), release him from the bonds of attachment ('Paasam') and bless him to reach the 'Anubhooti' stage when he would remain constantly meditating upon the God Almighty ('Pathi'), Who is comprehensible through 'Jnana' (knowledge) and Who constitutes the Whole and is Formless.

In the first half of many of the Thiruppugazh songs, the Saint Arunagirinatha usually describes the sad plight of human beings who take birth in this world. The saint in many of his hymns has vividly portrayed the lengthy and the painful process of life and death of human beings taking birth in this world. The ordeal begins right from conception and the individual thereafter passes through a series of stages; a darling babe in arms later going on all fours; energetic lad; happy, handsome and robust youth, adult adept in skills and a householder and lastly the trembling old man. Arunagirinatha elaborates how the life is wasted by men who blinded by lust and passion, indulge themselves in ephemeral worldly pleasures, assuming that the body is immortal. They amass wealth, toiling and moiling. They flatter people who in fact do not deserve to be praised, in order to earn their livelihood¹⁰. Simultaneously, they suffer from a wide variety of bodily diseases, which sap their energy. We are bewildered at the long list of diseases which the saint-poet gives in hymn after hymn. As the days pass by, without the individual's contributing anything significant for being born in this world, old age sets in with its inevitable consequences. Arunagirinatha, in his own inimitable style, has described the manifestations of old age in many songs: The dark, black hair has turned white as crane, teeth have come off, the radiance of eyes has dimmed resembling spongy cotton, the facial glow has vanished, the back is bent as though it is a bow, walking with the aid of a stick has become necessary, and the person is declared as 'old man' and he becomes an object of ridicule. Around this time, diseases gain momentum and strike him with added force and the man becomes a tattered, helpless creature.

After discussing the various sufferings that men have to undergo, the saint, towards the end of the first half of the songs, seeks the grace of Muruga to keep him away from vices and diseases and pleads for grant of specific favours from the Lord. This is what every devotee would aspire for. Then follows, in the second half, the worship of Muruga usually characterised by a graphic description of one or two anecdotes extracted from great epics such as Ramayana, Mahabharatha, Skandapurana etc., where the saint ultimately links his favourite Lord with Ganesa, Siva, Parvathi and Narayana, as indicated earlier.

Humility was the hall-mark of Arunagirinatha. By his self-abasement in many of his Thiruppugazh verses, the saint-poet shows the worldly-minded the way to attain the grace of Muruga. It would be a grievous error to link the saint, who was the embodiment of piety and knowledge, with the series of negative traits which he has attributed to himself in these hymns. The characteristics narrated by him self-deprecatingly are directed at those men and women, who tend to be egoistic and feel proud over their superiority in education, knowledge, strength, beauty or wealth, without the least thought that he or she owed these to the largesse of Muruga or their own Ishta Devata (chosen deity for worship). They are blissfully unaware that they are living in a fool's paradise and that their ephemeral acquisitions and achievements vanish into thin air the moment the God, who provided these, withdraws His grace.

Let us see a couple of Thiruppugazh songs where Arunagirinatha engages in self-deprecation, bearing in mind the facts mentioned in preceding paragraph.

"I have no strength (of devotion), I am virtueless, I am incompetent, I have not done anything remarkable, I don't have true devotion, I don't engage in subtle meditation, I don't have a place even in heaven. I am stranger to charity and I lack articulateness to sing(in) fine Tamil", so says Arunagirinatha when he stands before the Lord at Pazhani, in the hymn beginning "Thidamili...."

In the hymn "Seeralasadan....", again sung at Pazhani, Arunagirinatha decries himself by saying: "I am a dullard who hisses with fury, doer of misdeeds, one who lacks morality, who is spiteful engaged in harmful acts, one who has the nature to seek only the disease that is birth; one who has not even little of greatness, morals, discipline, righteousness and excellence, the evil person who combines ferocious falsehood in his utterances, ignorant and dissipated who does not desire to worship at Thy (Muruga's) Feet."

Arunagirinatha in effect advises us to ruthlessly avoid all the vices and weaknesses enumerated by him and follow humbly the path of love and right conduct, if we are to win the grace of Muruga. The mankind should ever be indebted to the saint for showing to it an ideal way of living through Thiruppugazh.

The author has had occasions to come across certain critical comments made by some persons who apparently after a study of Thiruppugazh with reference to its poetic content, seem a little uncomfortable over the saint's explicit narration of matters which appeal to senses in some of the songs, notwithstanding the fact that these are condemned at the same breath by the saint-poet. These analysts also wonder whether it was necessary for Arunagirinatha to give a detailed account of a number of diseases in his hymns. They have felt that for these reasons expunction of certain portions becomes necessary while rendering the songs.

The author's intention is not to join issue on the above observations, since these are based on perceptions of individual minds. He would, however, like to state that Arunagirinatha was an Aāsu Kavi and songs came to him voluntarily as they were. Thiruppugazh songs are not to be regarded as ordinary lyrics that are composed by a lyricist and later on some one infuses music into them. In the latter case there is always the question of ethics and public acceptance. The fact that Thiruppugazh songs have stood the test of time for six centuries bear ample testimony to their divinity. When a devotee like Arunagirinatha who, as is widely believed, was initiated in the sacred task of singing Muruga's glory by the Lord Himself, pours out his heart at his favourite deity, no barrier comes between him and the Lord. The inhibitions in regard to physical appearance and utterances arise out of one's own mental make-up and reflect the not-so-mature outlook of the individual. These do not apply to great men and liberated souls who are far above these illusions. Readers can find situations, which are similar in nature, in Jayadeva's Geetha Govindam (Ashtapadhi), the epic Bhagavatham and Adi Sankara's Soundarya Lahiri. If the basic difference between the outlook of these pious and great men and we the ordinary men is properly understood, it would not be difficult to get over the discomfiture referred to in the earlier paragraph. On the same strength, Arunagirinatha's vivid narration of diseases is also not inapt, since these have been, in one form or another, afflicting the human beings and we may say that the saint, in all his kindness towards the humanity, was praying to Lord Muruga to free them specifically from each of these diseases. The author also does not believe that those who sing Thiruppugazh songs are compelled to omit certain portions.

Thiruppugazh songs attract the musically-minded on more than one count. First, their superb raaga attunements. The traditional way of presenting the hymns is of course by following age-old Panns. Arunagirinatha in his Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu has given a full list of raagas prevalent at that time.

These are Varaali, Sikhandigai, Seekhamaram, Vibhānjigai, Gaudi, Bhairavi, Lalithai, Kaisikai, Gowli, Malahari, Bhowli, Ghana, Varaadi, Pada Manjari, Dhanaasi, Panchami, Desi and Kurinji. The descriptions as to the derivatives, grammar and character of these raagas, given by the saint speak of his mature understanding of music and its related aspects. The uniqueness of Thiruppugazh songs is that they are adaptable to be set in various raagas, as obtaining in Carnatic as well as Hindustani style. What is required is that while setting them to particular notes or raagas, there should be no rupturing of words. If that happens, the meaning and content may undergo change with their adverse repercussions. And, of course, they should be in harmony with *laya*¹¹.

The beauty of Thiruppugazh songs, next to raagas, lies in its laya or rhythm (Chandham). This is an aspect which would easily baffle the uninitiated. A vivid description of Thaalas which were prevalent during Saint Arunagirinatha's period as also their grammatical structuring can be found again in Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu. This hymn refers to Pancha Thaalas (five time measures), namely, Urgaditham, Chacchapudam, Saasapudam, Shadpitha puthikam and Sampatthu Vettam. These Thaalas are believed to have emerged out of the five divine faces of Siva, viz., Sadhyojata, Vamadeva, Aghora, Tatpurusha and Ishana. Several bhoothas and vethalaas were said to be producing sound in conformity with these Thaalas, either by tapping both their palms or using cymbals made of bronze, in harmony with the music of an instrument known as chacchari. Muruga is said to have relished the incoherent utterings of these creatures (which they regarded as songs) accompanied by rhythmic tapping of their palms in sheer ecstasy in the battle field¹². Thiruppugazh songs reveal themselves as masterly creations in the art of time measures (which is an integral part of chaste music), set as they are in 35 basic Thaalas, 175 Thaalas formed out of tempo variations and in 108 Thaalas which are known as Maarga Thaalas as also in *Sankeerna Thaalas*¹³.

The devotional poems or other verses usually contain an identification mark (Mudra as it is known), revealing the identity of its versifier. For instance, Saint Thyagaraja's compositions invariably contain his Mudra 'Thyagaraja' and Sri Muthuswamy Dikshitar's krithis carry his Mudra 'Guru Guha'. The last stanza, usually the tenth, of Thiru Jnana Sambhandar's Thevaram songs contain the name 'Jnana Sambhandhan'. Thiruppugazh songs differ in this respect. They do not bear Arunagirinatha's name. Most of them end in the word Perumaale ('the great individual', when loosely translated) while a few conclude with Thampiraane (The Lord)¹⁴. In fact these serve as means of identification of Thiruppugazh songs, apart from, of course, other masterly poetic aspects connected with these songs.

Arunagirinatha while extolling the glory of Muruga residing in various holy places has, quite often, admired the natural beauty and vegetation that surround the shrines. These find a lucid expression in his verses revealing the saint's poetic imagination. Thirupparamkundram, according to the saint, is "resourceful and abounds in woods with trees whose heights touch the moon and the sun"¹⁵. Rising plantain trees and turmeric and ginger crops are referred to in a Thiruchendoor hymn.¹⁶ Pazhani is said to have groves of jack fruit trees with honey flowing down from ripe jack fruits and thick growth of groves of arecanut trees¹⁷. The saint finds a vast number of mango groves in *Swamimalai*¹⁸. The Chozha region is eulogized as the area where fine quality of paddy is grown in fields because they contain the accumulated essence of ripe mangoes which burst¹⁹. Viralimalai is characterised by cool groves which are not affected by sunshine; they flourish and rise sky high, looking green, and plenty of watery flowers bloom in lakes resulting from daily incessant rains²⁰. Arunagirinatha mentions about groves of fragrant jasmine flowers which have flourished as thick forests and presence of beautiful gardens in *Vadamullalavayil*²¹. Many more such examples can be given. The picture which the saint has presented gives us an idea of the then prevalent abundance of natural wealth and unpoluted environments. It is a moot point whether we can boast of such a phenomenon today.

One incidental observation which the author would like to make is the occasional occurrence of alien words such as *Salaam*²² and *Shabhashi*²³ in Thiruppugazh songs, which is indicative of the religious climate prevalent during the life time of Saint Arunagirinatha. The saint himself addresses his Lord as *Raavuthan*²⁴.

What is that one gets if he recites or sings Thiruppugazh? As Arunagirinatha says in one of his songs, "devotees of East, West, South and North proclaim the 'pictorial- poetry-oriented' Thiruppugazh as marvellous"²⁵. Such is their popularity and charm, possessing as they are, mantra effects. The songs yield immense benefits to the good and pious people. On the contrary, the sacred hymns will not be kind to those who scoff at them and at devotees who recite them. In Arunagirinatha's words:

"To heads of those who are irate (with devotees singing the glory of Muruga)

To kinsmen of those who are inimical (to devotees of Muruga)

To the lives of killers and to those who deride (Thiruppugazh)

To those who speak ill of (devotees of Muruga), Thiruppugazh will be Fire, let's understand that....."

"(Thiruppugazh) will fulfil all desires (that the devotee of Muruga has in mind)

And melt one's soul,

(Thiruppugazh) will sever the murky chain of births

Thus not to be born again,

*(Thiruppugazh) will burn away even Fire and crush the mountain....."*²⁶

Such is the greatness of Thiruppugazh. It is believed that even to recite these hymns, the grace of Muruga is necessary. As the old Tamil adage goes, it is rare that one gets birth as a human being in this world and it is rarer that he be born without any physical deformities. Arunagirinatha has shown an ideal way to get benefit out of this rare distinction conferred on those who have taken birth in this Universe. That is to sing the glory of Muruga through Thiruppugazh and other devotional gems composed by him with a feeling of devotion. Muruga would readily respond to the simple respectful prayers of his devotees and as many elders have pointed out, it is immaterial whether he or she is adept in the musical aspects associated with these verses.

The presentation of a few extracts from Thiruppugazh songs reflecting the saint's anguish over the endless cycle of births and deaths the human beings are subjected to, numerous diseases afflicting them, the unlimited wants of men and the dread of death, would be an appropriate ending of this chapter. By his sincere entreaties to his Lord, Saint Arunagirinatha pleads for release of human beings from such ordeals and miseries.

(i) To Swaminatha, the presiding deity of Swamimalai, the saint requests that the Lord of death be kept away from him:

"Let Kaala²⁷ not near me,

(Muruga) Bless me Thee (with wisdom) to surrender

At Thine Twin Feet....." ²⁸

(ii) Tormented by diseases which afflict the human body in every birth, the saint pleads with the Lord of Thirutthani that he be freed from such afflictions:

"Let not diseases afflict me at every birth,

(Muruga) Grant me Thee succour at Thine

Feet....." ²⁹

(iii) The prayers of Arunagirinatha in one of the Thiruppugazh songs offered to the Lord manifested in Virinjipuram (Kharapuri) are indeed heart-warming and could verily be one among our daily prayers. He prays:

"Let all (my) woes cease

And all virtues come (to me)

Grandeur of Thiruppugazh

37

Let me be fit to achieve fame in the earth;

(Muruga) bless me to remember ever

With love Thy lotus Feet....." ³⁰

(iv) Addressing the Lord at Thiruvavinankudi, the saint-composer says:

"Caught in the (web of) dreaded delusion

Wandering aimlessly is this underling in the earth

(Muruga) come Thee saying: "Don't despair!"

In my mind for knowledge to flourish

And for hurdles to crumble,

(Muruga) Bestow me the bliss of Jnana

That springs forth from Thine grace" ³¹

(v) Arunagirinatha displays his despair and helplessness when he pours out to the Lord at Thiruvavarunai:

"..... the body that's packed

With wrathful diseases of several crores,

Impossible it's for me,

Having no clear conscience,

To carry it any longer

And wander in this world:

With my tongue to praise

Thy propitious Thiruppugazh

(Muruga Thee) Give me Siva Jnana Siddhi....." ³²

(vi) Arunagirinatha enumerates pathetic situation of men arising out of their unending stream of wants, in one of his Thiruppugazh Songs sung at Kathirkaamam. See his eloquent description:

" Clothes do I need to attire (myself)

*Sumptuous food to satisfy the mighty hunger,
For a lustrous body,*

*(Need I) water (for bathing) and (costly) dress;
Remedies to destroy diseases affecting the body,*

*A young woman (wife) to remain indoors,
A home of my own to sleep;*

Having gain'd all these (facilities)

*Become I a householder, getting immersed
In that delusory ocean (called household)*

*And support the vast kinsmen;
(My) life will (thus) pass away in waste;*

(Muruga, hence) Thee beckon me and Bestow me a compassionate heart

And Consciousness of Jnana,

*Tossed about am I,
Because of Fate,*

*In the mountainous whirlwind of births,
(I am) Waiting for the day*

When (Muruga) Thee'd give me succour ! " 33

Arunagirinatha thus presents a candid picture of all that happens right from the day one is born in this world, and his trials and tribulations. The saint conveys the message that only way for the worldly-minded for emancipation is adherence to good thoughts and deeds, display of fellow-feeling towards others and constant remembrance of Muruga and recitation of holy hymns on Him. Thiruppugazh is an exemplary means to win His grace - that is its singular grandeur.

Footnotes

1. *Vedham Vendaam Sakala Vitthai Vendaam Geetha
Naadham Vendaam Jnana Nool Vendaam Aadhi
Gurup pugazhai Mevuginra Kotravan Thaal Pottrum Thiruppugazhai Keleer Dhinam."*
2. Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar lived in the early part of the Seventh century. He was born in Sirkazhi in South India. What is remarkable about the saint-poet is that he had the taste of milk of Siva Jnana offered at the hands of Goddess Parvathi Herself, when he was just three. The child, so blessed, sang his maiden hymn beginning with the words Thodudaiya Chevian (Lord having ears adorned with stud) when Siva and His holy Consort gave him darshan mounted on the majestic Bull - a privilege which Jnana Sambhandhar's orthodox father, who was with the child, did not have. There is a school of thought which considers Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar as Muruga's incarnation since Goddess Parvathi had offered divine milk to him. Tamil appellations of the saint - Aaludaiya Pillaiyar and Puramerithaar Thirumaganaar have arisen because of this belief. Saint Arunagirinatha's reverential references to Jnana Sambhandhar also seem to support this theory. Adi Shankara has referred to Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar as Dravida Sisu in his Soundarya Lahiri (Stanza - 75). It is a coincidence that number of Thevaram Songs composed by Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar and Thiruppugazh songs of Arunagirinatha is the same - 16,000.
3. The six Samayas (Shanmathas) or cults established by Adi Shankaracharya are : Gaanapathya (relating to Ganesa), Saiva (relating to Siva), Saaktha (relating to Shakti or Parvathi), Kaumara (relating to Kumara or Muruga), Vaishnava (relating to Vishnu) and Sowrya (relating to Surya or Sun). A few scholars perceive a common mission between Adi Sankaracharya and Arunagirinatha through a comparative analysis of the approaches of two great gurus and their devotional works.
4. Arunagirinatha addresses Muruga as "the Grandson of Menai" in couplet 29 of 'Thiruvelaikkaaran Vaguppu'. Menai is the mother of Goddess Parvathi (Muruga's Mother) and Himavaan's wife.

5. Please see Footnote 11 on page 61, Chapter 6.
 6. "Ethir porudhu...." (Kodumkunram Thiruppugazh)
 7. "Edhamuru..." (Viralimalai Thiruppugazh)
 8. This branch of yoga goes by the name "Hatha Yoga".
 9. Pathi : God Almighty (Paramaatma); Pasu : Individual (Jeevaatma); Paasam: Attachment.
 10. Arunagirinatha has given an impressive list of flatteries in the Thiruppugazh hymn "Mughilum Eraviyum" (Thirutthani). Unmerited persons are adulated as cloud (in benevolence), the Sun (in the dazzle of fame), brilliant pearl (in sweetness), Manmatha (in handsomeness), Karna (in charity), etc.
 11. A well-known vocalist of the Carnatic music has brought out an audio cassette of Thiruppugazh, where the songs are admirably rendered in a pure classical kutcheri style. Thiruppugazh Anbargal's way of presenting these songs has no parallel.
 12. "Paanigal kottum Peygal Pithatrum
Paadalai Mechum Kathirvela." Kavi Uduthum (Chidambaram)
 13. Six Angaās (components) to Thaalas are Anudhritham, Dhritham, Laghu, Guru, Plutham and Kaakapaadham. Thaalas prevalent today mostly occur in Laghu, Dhritham and Anudhritham. The seven Thaalas that are prevalent today are Dhruvam, Madyam, Rupakam, Thriputai, Ata, Jambai and Ekam. Because of variations of Jaathi (caste) namely Thisram, Chathusram, Misram, Sankeernam and Khandam, the Aksharās of laghu change as under:
- | | | | |
|------------------|---|----------|--|
| Thisram Laghu | 3 | Aksharās | |
| Chathusram Laghu | 4 | Aksharās | |
| Misram Laghu | 7 | Aksharās | |
| Sankeernam Laghu | 9 | Aksharās | |
| Khandam Laghu | 5 | Aksharās | $\frac{\text{Misra}(7)+\text{Thisra}(3)}{2}$ |
- The combination of seven Thaalas with five Jaathis produce 35 Thaalas (7x5). These 35 Thaalas expand to 175 (35x5) when they adapt themselves to the tempo of these five Jaathis.
14. There appears to be some exception to this: The author chanced to see Arunagirinatha's Mudra, that is, his own name, appearing in a Thirutthani Thiruppugazh, 'Varikkalai Inigaraana'. At the end of Mayil Viruttham, the saint has given his name, as having sung these hymns. In Periamatam Thiruppugazh starting with Kalahavizhi, the saint addresses Muruga Himself as Arunagirinatha.
 15. "Kanakan thiral....."
 16. "Kamala maadhudan....."
 17. "Thakara Narumalar....."
 18. "Paadhi mathi....."
 19. "Aangudal.....", (Thirumandhurai)

Grandeur of Thiruppugazh

41

20. "Kodaadhavanaiye....."
21. "Anichevviar....."
22. "Avaamaru....." - (Swamimalai) -Thiruppugazh and the Tenth Viruttham of Mayil Viruttham.
23. "Pacchai yon giri...." - Thirunallar Thiruppugazh.
24. Raavuthan - Horse rider
- Kandhar Alankaram - stanzas 37, 50.
25. Bhakthar Gana Priya - Thiruchengode Thiruppugazh.
26. Chinatthavar Mudikkum....
- Thirutthani Thiruppugazh
²⁷ Lord of Death, Also Known as Yama.
28. "Paathi Mathi Nathi....." - Swamimalai Thiruppugazh.
29. "Irumalu Roga....." - Thirutthani Thiruppugazh.
30. "Oruvarai Chirumanai....." - Virinjipuram Thiruppugazh.
31. "Sivanaār Manam Kulira....." - Thiruvavinankudi Thiruppugazh.
32. "Valivaadha Pitthamodu....." - Thiruvavinankudi Thiruppugazh.
33. "Udukka Thugil Venum....." - Kathirkaamam Thiruppugazh.

CHAPTER 5

GAANAAPATHYA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

*"Thou art Brahma, Thou art Vishnu,
Thou art Rudra, Thou art Indra,
Thou art Fire, Thou art Air, Thou art the Sun, Thou art the Moon, Thou art
Brahm, Bhooahu, Bhuvah, Swah and Om."*¹

- Ganapathi Atharvaseersh.

If we are to mention the sacred name of a Hindu deity without whose grace no human attempts would ever succeed, the name of *Sri Ganapathi*² comes at once reverentially in our minds. The foremost to be venerated at the beginning of all auspicious functions right from initiating one's child into learning (Vidyaarambham) is Ganapathi, who is the remover of obstacles coming in the way of successful conduct of these functions. Apart from numerous temples solely devoted to Lord Ganapathi, we will find always a Ganesa shrine in all major temple complexes and the worship of Ganesa precedes that of other deities in accordance with Vedic dictum. In fact this is the privilege which the divine Parents of Ganesa has granted to Him. In villages particularly in South India, one will notice idols of Ganesa installed at the foot of peepul trees near the river banks giving a high degree of visibility to the idol of the Lord.

Ganapathi is regarded as 'Mangala Moorthy' - the repository of propitiousness and the provider of knowledge, success and prosperity to those who worship Him ardently. He wards off all hurdles. Ganesa is the personification of Om-kara and the omnipresent Brahman. Ganapathi Atharvaseersh proclaims that Ganapathi constitutes the Five Elements, namely, Prithvi, Aap, Agni, Vayu and Aakash and the four types of Vaani, viz. Paraa, Pashyanthi, Madhyamaa and Vaikhari. The Lord is generally believed to be divine Brahmachari (bachelor); there is, however, a view that Vallabai is His divine Consort. Several Sanskrit pieces of literature extol the glory of Ganapathi, viz. Ganesa Samhita, Ganesa Thaapaneeey, Ganesa Purana, Mudgala Purana and Vinayaka Maahatmyam. By His very name, it is evident that the Lord is the leader of all ganas. Those who primarily worship Ganapathi and regard Him as the Absolute Supreme are followers of Gaanaapathya Cult, one of the six cults evolved by Adi Sankaracharya, referred to in Chapter 4.

While the Lord is venerated by His devotees spread all over the country (and in several countries abroad), in India, the State of Maharashtra has perhaps a much larger following of *Gaanaapathya*³, where eight famous holy shrines of Ganapathi (called Ashta Vinayak) are located. These are at : Morgaon, Theur, Lenyadri, Ozar, Ranjangaon, Pali, Mahad and Siddhatek. The presiding Lord at these sacred shrines is known as Moreshwar, Chintamani, Girijatmaj, Vigneshwar, Mahaganapathi, Ballaleshwar, Varad Vinayak and Siddhivinayak, in that order.⁴

Ganapathi manifests Himself majestically with an elephant head and four hands. One of the tusks is featured to be broken. Ganesa Purana associates this with the Lord's battle against the demon Gajamukhaasura. (See footnote 5 page 49). In certain temples, He is shown to have six hands. In Ranjangaon shrine in Maharashtra, the deity has five trunks and ten hands. The Lord's mount (Vahana) is mouse (Mooshika)⁵. But in Morgaon, one of the eight famed temples of Vinayaka mentioned earlier, Ganesa has adopted His younger Brother Muruga's gorgeous mount, Peacock, as His mount. In certain other temples, Ganesa's mount is shown as lion. In the famous Sthaanumaalayan temple in Suchindrum, near Kanyakumari in South India, Ganesa is sculptured on a pillar in a rare feminine form and He carries the name 'Vigneshwari'.

Arunagirinatha has given Lord Ganapathi the rightful exalted status. In his poetical creations like Thiruppugazh, Kandhar Alankaram, Kandhar Andhadhi, Kandhar Anuboothi, Vel-Mayil Virutham, Cheval Virutham and Vedicchi Kaavalan Vaguppu, the saint makes reverential references to Ganapathi. The saint's intense devotion to Vigneswara, the omni-potent, is evident from these hymns. He fondly says 'our Ganapathi' in certain hymns. The impressive physical manifestation of the Lord, His heroic acts as found in puraanaas, a series of Lord's favourite food items, the ideal manner of worshipping Ganapathi - all these are presented magnificently in these verses. The saint is apparently happy and proud that his favourite deity, Muruga, is the younger Brother of such a valiant and benevolent god, Vinayaka. The style in which the saint has portrayed Ganapathi is indeed inimitable and makes deep imprints in the minds of those who recite these songs.

Let us see a few graphic descriptions contained in some of the hymns:

(a) "(Ganesa) Who consumes handful of fruits, *appam*⁶, rice flakes and puffed rice; He resides in the wisdom of disciples who learn; if one calls out at Him as *Karpagam*⁷, his distresses vanish quickly; He was the very first who wrote the entire Triple Tamil (Mutthamizh)⁸ appropriately on the supreme mountain (Meru); the extremely brave who smashed the wheel-bolts (acchu) of Siva's chariot when He started off to destroy the Three worlds (Muppuram): one who appeared as elephant in the forest when (His younger Brother) Subramania was in anguish (arising out of love with Valli) and blessed young Muruga to marry that hunter girl (Valli) that very moment".

- "Kaithala Nirai Kani"

(Thiruppugazh)

(b) "(Ganesa) Who for the sake of (younger) Brother
Appeared in the forest;
Who came in possession of the divine Fruit
By circumambulating the Father;
(The Lord) who is a Stable Support for devotees;
(who is) Five-armed and elephant-headed"

- "Vumbar Tharu Dhenu Mani....."

(Thiruppugazh)

(c) "The Ocean of Grace" that is unparalleled

'Vignasamarthar',
 who hath, as His food,
 Sugarcane, flat beans, delicious fruits,
 Jaggery, ghee-mixed daal,
 Til, puffed rice, rice flakes,
 Red gram and tender coconut;
 'Bee-pollute'⁹, green gram, varieties of appam,
 Raw rice, Pittu¹⁰, cucumber, (grounded) flour, etc.;
 Roots that are distinct
 And fine edibles and chickpea gram..."

- "Pakkarai Vichitramani...."

(Thiruppugazh)

(d) "I won't forget to circumambulate the venerated, elephant-headed, single tusked Ganesa who has a holy Hand, which gladly takes the luxuriously-offered nectar, triple fruits¹¹, appam, fresh milk, honey, long and twisted *murukku*¹², sugarcane, laddu, colourful and lustrous rice, daal, rice flakes, til, puffed rice, matchlessly delicious plantain fruits, and tender coconut; (Ganesa) whose trunk penetrated into the ocean containing unparalleled makara fishes¹³."

"(I won't forget) to offer flowers that are fitting, to recite devotional hymns in praise (of the Lord), to perform *thoppanam*¹⁴ holding both the ears with fully raised hands and to do *kuttu*¹⁵, and to perform archana at (the Lord's) lotus-like beautiful Feet, adorned with anklets." - "Ninathu Thiruvadi...."

(Thiruppugazh)

(e) "(Ganesa) Who takes chickpea gram (kadalai), puffed rice, flat beans (avarai), varieties of fruits, sugarcane etc., who has a belly having many curves, who has a marvellous mummadham, who has small eyes like lotus petals and who has an elephant's head."

- "Kadalai Pori Aval...."

(Pazhani Thiruppugazh)

(f) "(Ganesa) who has the head of an elephant, which has force (Madham) gushing forth from it, and who wrote the ancient great epic "Bhaaratam" on the mighty Meru mountain that day....."

- "Maaya Vaadai....."

(Thiruchendoor Thiruppugazh)

(g) "Ganesa, being worshipped with floral offerings at His two holy Feet; (the Lord) who took into His big belly plenty of pure puffed rice, rice flakes, red gram daal and green gram; (who was) being offered as holy food (neivedyam) triple fruits¹⁶ with a loving heart; (Lord) who wrote, with His single hefty tusk, the whole story of Gurūnathas (that are Pandavaas) on the northern Meru mountain, even as the sage (Vyasa) narrated it; "

"(That) matchless elephant (Ganesa) began trumpeting looking at the tempestuous speed of the Peacock, with fully spread plumes, which took round of the Universe surrounded by lengthy oceans in the wink of an eye - (the peacock) rode by Muruga, Who fought against the four demonic regiments comprising elephants, chariots, horses and infantry."

- "Vadhai Pazhaga....."

(Thiruppugazh - common hymn.¹⁷)

(h) "(Ganesa) Who once upon a time broke His tusk and wrote Bhaaratam, which was to shine outside the Meru (mountain), who has the complexion of Bhaanu (Sun), and who has a diminutive vaahana (mount) (mouse)." - "Cheer Chirakku meni...."

(Pazhamuthircholai Thiruppugazh.)

(i) "Ganapathi Who has the holy mouth which devours til, puffed rice, appam, fruits, sugarcane, jaggery, coconut, chickpea gram (kadalai) and sugar candy into His large heavy belly; Karpaga Vinayaka who has a gorgeous trunk which takes in rice balls; (who is) three-eyed; our brave single-tusked, elephant-headed, mountain-sized god who has glowing spots (on His masthaka)."

- "Punamadandhaikku...."

(Kancheepuram Thiruppugazh)

(j) "The Lord (Prabhu), known as Vigna Vinayaka, who has the beautiful face of an elephant; the glorious (god) who holds Ankusa and Paasa in His hands; (who is) single-tusked; big-bellied; three-eyed; valiant Ganapathi (King of Ganaas), destroyer of destiny and passions of those who worship Him; our Vinayaka, Nakkar (Siva)'s son, Karpaga Vinayaka, who is of mountainous size."
- 'Anjana Vel Vizhi....'

(Thiruvaanaikka Thiruppugazh)

(k) "(Vinayaka) Who slew the audacious Gajamukhaasura
Who, confronting (the Lord), waged a battle;
(Vinayaka) who broke a hefty tusk of His own
And wrote the story of Bhaarata on mountain Meru;
(Vinayaka) who placed on earth Sivalinga
That was lovingly worshipped by mighty Raavana
By adorning it with fresh garlands;¹⁸
(The Lord) who hath three eyes;
Would support (my endeavour)."

Cheval Viruttham Kaappu.

Apart from above, Arunagirinatha directly and simply addresses Muruga as the younger Brother of Ganapathi in several Thiruppugazh songs. The saint also invokes the blessings of Ganapathi before he starts his Kandhar Andhadhi, Kandhar Alankaram and Kandhar Anuboothi. There is a reference to Vinayaka in Vedicchi Kaavalan Vaguppu too.

Thus we see in Arunagirinatha's works, a liberal quantum of impressive prayers at the lotus Feet of Ganapathi. Truly they reflect the saint's unflinching faith in the Supreme Lord's grace for making his mission a success - the noble mission to sing the glory of Muruga for the benefit of mankind. That Ganesa showered His unlimited grace on the saint is proved by the invaluable immortal gems that sprang forth from Arunagirinatha's sacred tongue. The saint's references to epics relating to Ganesa and His valiant actions amply reveal his profound knowledge of these ancient literary works. The exhaustive list of Ganesa's favourite food items as given by Arunagirinatha would serve as an ideal check list for all His devotees offering neivedyam to the Lord. And one should offer thoppanam and knock at his forehead (kuttu) while worshipping Ganesa, as the saint has narrated in one of his hymns. The saint's Samarasa bhava is evident in all his songs. For these reasons, Thiruppugazh readily appeals to individuals professing absolute faith in Ganapathi and Gaanaapathya cult. They find in these compositions sublime prayers of Ganapathi and other puraanic anecdotes relating to their favourite deity, conforming to their beliefs and conventions.

To Ganapathi, the very Lord who is venerated among all gods, His omnipotent Parents, Siva and Parvathi, meant the basic enlivening forces of the Universe. While singing the praises of Ganapathi, Arunagirinatha being aware of this supreme truth, remembers Lord Siva with a deep sense of adoration. This forms the theme of the next chapter.

Footnotes

1. " Thwam Brahmaa Thwam Vishnusthvam Rudrasthwaamindrasthwaamnisthvam Vaayusthvam Sooryasthvam Chandramaasthvam Brahmabhoorbhuvahaswarom."
2. Also known as Ganesh, Vinayaka, Vignahar, Prathamesh and Vigneswara.
3. The mass worship of Ganapathi in Maharashtra can be partly attributed to Lokmanya Tilak, who during the freedom struggle used the public (saarvajanik) Ganesh Chaturthi celebrations as a medium for spreading patriotism among people. These celebrations take place even now with great éclat.
4. There are legends associated with these eight holy shrines. It was in Morgaon that Ganesa vanquished the wicked king Sindhu and rescued gods held in captivity by him. The Lord is believed to have killed Gun, the son of King Abhijit in Theur; Gun had forcefully removed the precious stone Chintamani from sage Kapila. Ganesa is said to have manifested in Lenyadri after Goddess Parvathi did penance for twelve years to beget a son like Ganesa. Ozar is the holy place where Ganapathi is believed to have killed King Abhinandan who aspired for immortality. The story goes that Siva paid reverence to Ganesa in Ranjangaon, thereby enabling Him to vanquish Tripuram (Three worlds). To fulfil the wish of His ardent devotee, Ballal, Ganesa assumed the name of Ballaleshwar in Pali. The Lord responded to the severe penance observed by sage Gruhatsamat in Mahad. Lord Vishnu is said to have got enlightenment in Siddhatek.

- 5 There is a story behind Ganapathi taking mouse as His mount. Gajamukhasura tormented gods. Indra and other gods prayed at the feet of Ganapathi and appealed to Him to remove their woes. Responding to their prayers, Ganapathi fought valiantly against the demon. During this battle, the Lord took off one of his tusks and lashed at Gajamukhasura, which pierced his chest. Feigning death he left the demonic body and turned himself as a mouse. The demon in the rodent form attempted to confront the Lord. Ganapathi sat on it and commanded it to bear him and thus it became His mount.

- 6 Appam is a sweetened round-shaped mini cake of rice flour and jaggery usually fried in ghee.

- 7 Karpagam: A celestial tree, which fulfils the desires of aspirants.

- 8 Iyal, Isai, Natakam (Prose, Verse and Theatre).

- 9 'Bee-Pollute' - Honey

- 10 Pittu - A rice preparation.

- 11 Plantain, mango and jack-fruit.

- 12 Murukku: A flat, twisted, spiral, fried savoury, made of rice and black-gram flour.

- 13 The legend has it that Vishnu assumed the form of a mighty tortoise when the manthara mountain used as a rotating rod for churning the Ocean of Milk by gods and demons started to sink. Vishnu in the form of tortoise brought the mountain up, enabling devas to have the taste of nectar on completion of the churning. The giant creature which remained under the ocean began tormenting the Universe. On gods' appeal, Siva sent Ganapathi to tame the tortoise. The Lord used His trunk to syringe off the entire ocean. In this process, the troublesome tortoise too entered Ganesa's trunk. Ganapathi thereupon let off the water He had taken in His trunk. The tortoise hit the ground and got smashed. Ganapathi pierced it with His tusk and gave its outer shell to Siva, Who wore it on His chest.

- 14 Thoppanam or Thoppukkaranam and kuttu are exclusive forms of worship of Ganesa. In thoppanam, the devotee holds the lobe of his left ear with the raised right hand and that of his right ear with the raised left hand. He stands and sits (with only his feet touching the ground) before the deity this way, for a fixed number of times.

- 15 'Kuttu' is the gentle knocking at both the ends of the forehead with one's closed fists.

Both the forms of worship convey one's regret over past sins and misdeeds and seek Ganapathi's blessings for the righteous conduct and fulfillment of other desires.

- 16 See Footnote No. 11 above.

- 17 Apart from specific Thiruppugazh songs in praise of Muruga sung by Arunagirinatha in various shrines, he has also praised the glory of Lord in hymns which are not directly linked with any particular holy place; these come under "common hymns."
- 18 The story goes that while Raavana was returning to Sri Lanka with Siva Linga, which he had obtained from Lord Siva, with intention to install it in Lanka, Ganapathi appeared in the form of a Brahmin lad. Raavana asked the "Lad" to hold the Sivalinga for a while saying that he would return shortly. He told Ganesa not to keep the Sivalinga down. But Ganapathi kept it on the earth before Raavana returned. Raavana's efforts to lift the idol were in vain; it became elastic as cow's ears. The place where this incident occurred is 'Gokarnam' and Sivalingam is 'Mahaa Bala Lingam'.

Palani (Tiruvaavinankudi)

CHAPTER 6

SAIVISM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

*"Venom is Thy food, serpent Thy ornament,
The elephant hide Thy garb,
And a giant bull (Thy) mount;
Oh, Sambho! what then wouldst Thou give me?
Bestow unto me only the devotion to Thy lotus Feet."*¹

- Sivananda Lahiri (Stanza 87) (Adi Sankara)

If one scans through Thiruppugazh songs intently and with an inquiring mind, he would not fail to perceive a consistently overriding influence of Lord Siva² on Arunagirinatha. He would in fact get an impression that the saint does not really make any distinction between Siva and His divine Offspring Muruga. Arunagirinatha, deep into his heart, ever remembers that Muruga, though presents Himself in a different physical state, is an integral part of Siva. Muruga, as stated in Chapter 1, manifested in this Universe emerging out of the powerful third eye of Siva, Who out of compassion towards the celestial beings, willed that the Supreme Power that was emerging from Him would annihilate the demon race and restore freedom to gods in distress. That the saint regards Siva and Muruga as a single divine personality is evident from many of his compositions, a few of which are given below.

i) "Should I, without chanting "Hara Hara Sivaaya" on every day and without understanding the truth of six Samayaas (cults), perish shamelessly, standing day after day in front of houses which offer me food!"

- "Karuvin Uruvagi" (Pazhani Thiruppugazh)

ii) Muruga is addressed as "Leader who burnt Tripuram" (Three worlds) and the saint worships Muruga saying : "Siva Siva Hara Hara Devaa Namoh Namah" in Chidambaram Thiruppugazh "Avaguna Virahanai...."

iii) "(Muruga) is the one who is the Basic Substance of Five Syllables "NAMASIVAYA"".

- 'Bhumiyaathanil' (Kailaimalai Thiruppugazh).

iv) In Swamimalai Thiruppugazh "Avaamaru", Arunagirinatha deprecates himself as one who is "the source of darkness" (to mean that he is fully ignorant) and "who never recalled the holy name of Sivaaya" and requests Muruga to call him and bestow His blessings.

The divine Five Syllables, NAMASIVAYA, known as Panchaakshara is a highly efficacious mantra, relating to Siva, which is capable of giving salvation (mukti). This mantra, together with Sacred Ash (Vibhoothi) has been the solid support behind many-a-saivite savant.³ Arunagirinatha who is fully conscious of the potency of Panchaakshara and the greatness of Thiruvannamalai, where the Lord Arunachaleswara (Siva) resides majestically, has devoted almost a full Thiruppugazh verse beginning "Jaya Jaya Arunatthiri"⁴ glorifying both. In this hymn too the saint sees Siva and Muruga as One Single Supreme God. The chanting of the transpositive version of the five syllables of NAMASIVAYA, viz., SIVAYANAMA, MASIVAYANA, NAMASIVAYA, YANAMASIVA, VAYANAMASI and SIVAYA NAMASTHU, as given in this hymn, coupled with remembrance of Arunadri (the saint has repeated this name several times in this verse) are the sure means of emancipation. It is remarkable that in the stanza where he underscores the greatness of Arunadri (which is synonymous with Siva) the concluding phrases are by way of paying obeisance to Muruga, "who slew the demons taking shelter behind the mountains of Krowncham and Ezhugiri."

The first four lines of the short Thiruppugazh hymn "Sikaram Arundha" (Mayapuri) contain Arunagirinatha's exposition of the greatness of two syllables of the powerful Panchaakshara, viz., Si and Ma. Chanting of 'Si', says he, brings forth Siva Jnana (Realisation of Siva) and action and desires (arising out of mind, word of mouth and body) are shattered into pieces; by pronouncing "Ma", mahamaayai (the great delusion) is destroyed.

In the Thiruppugazh hymn "Madhiya Manniguna" sung at Chidambaram, the saint explains the relationship of Panchaak- shara and the Five Elements and yearns to merge into Siva in the form of Linga:

"Prithvi (Earth) which seeks the support of Moon has five gunaas (characteristics)⁵ and (that the Earthern Region) is quadrangular in shape. It contains 'Na' of Panchaakshara in itself and Nivritti which is the first of the Panchakalaas (The Five Arts)⁶;

"Ganga ('App' - water: Watery Region) has four *gunaas*⁷; this denotes 'Ma' of Panchaakshara;

"Agni (Fire : Fiery Region) which is located in front of Watery Region signifies 'Si' of Panchaakshara; this Region has triple qualities⁸ and is triangular.

"The Chandamaarutham (storm - vaayu - Airy Region) which possesses the capacity to burn (things) has two characteristics⁹ and is a brilliant hexagon. It denotes 'Va' in Panchaakshara.

"The widely spread Aakasa (Ether - Etherish Region) which signifies 'Ya' in Panchaakshara has one matchless characteristic,¹⁰ is a massive globe comprising Sun and Moon and hence circular in shape.

"Two are the horses (Idai Kalai and Pingalai) which gallop fast to reach the crest of the glowing Mass through twin routes (Rechakam and Poorakam). (Taming them) and experiencing the (divine) Jyoti of Grace by vanquishing of indriyaas (sensory organs), when shall I merge unto Bindhu Naadha (Lingaakaara Siva) with the power of mantras which would gladden the Deities of Solar and Lunar (and Agni - Fire) Regions!".

It is thus evident that in Arunagirinatha's perception, Siva and Muruga were not separate divine manifestations. He saw Siva in Muruga and Muruga in Siva. For him they were the two forms of Parabrahma. The question may then arise why did he sing the glory of Siva in exclusion. The answer is not too far to seek. The saint was known to be balanced in his attitude and approach towards cults professing different faiths. He was quite at ease with Saivism as with Gaanaapathyam, described in the previous chapter, or his own apparent choice Kaumara. The saint shows us the way how to be tolerant to those who venerate different dieties. In author's opinion, Arunagirinatha perhaps got an abundant degree of satisfaction and happiness by singing again and again the glory of Lord Siva, as distinct from his favourite deity Muruga, primarily because of the divine emergence of the latter from Siva. He repeatedly addresses Muruga as the Offspring of Siva, as the One who preached the Pranava to His Father, and the One who took round of the Universe to get the prize fruit from His Father. The saint's unique technique, as already mentioned, is that he will first offer his worshipful praise on Siva, portray vividly His majestic physical form, recount epical anecdotes which focus on the Lord's leelas and heroic acts and finally link Siva and Muruga by referring to their holy Father-Son relationship.

Arunagirinatha brings before us the handsome features of Siva, when he says :

*"(Siva) Who wears matted locks, holds venom (in His neck), wears (the garland of) serpents, wields the majestic Parasu (mazhu), adorns Crescent (on His Head), embodies purity, holds damaruka producing different sounds, holds animal (stag), carries Agni (Fire) in His hand, wears around the neck (the garland of) human skeletons, possesses the Bow (Meru mountain) which bears the Earth, and Who bears (on His tuft) the unique Ganga (river) branching off in different directions."*¹¹

Arunagirinatha in one of his hymns reminds us of the occasion when the heavenly subjects and their sworn enemies, asuraas (demons) started churning of the Ocean of Milk. While this process was on, a dark deadly venom called 'Aalahaala' suddenly emerging out of the ocean encircled the atmosphere threatening the safety of the very Universe. In the words of Arunagirinatha, "distressed (at this development), Indra and gods present there called out (at Siva as) "Hara Haraa, Siva Sankara, Sankara!" and Siva devoured the venom that sprang forth."¹² Noticing Her Husband's unusual act, Parvathi¹³ quickly gripped the Lord's neck firmly so as to prevent the dangerous material from getting inside His body. Lo! the blue-coloured venom remained permanently in Siva's neck, yielding Him the name Neelakanta (Blue-throated Lord).

The story goes that while gods wanted desperately a powerful divine personality who would put an end to the atrocities of Soorapadma and his kinsmen, and were certain that Siva alone could help them to remove their woes, the Lord of their hearts was in deep meditation in Kailas. At the same time Parvathi, the daughter of Himavaan, the king of mountains, was performing a penance in its severest form to have Siva as Her Husband with Her heart solely fixed on Siva¹⁴. With no end in sight for termination of their hardships, gods thoughts of a plan for bringing together Siva and Parvathi. They despatched Manmatha, the god of love, to the place where Siva was in meditation.

Now let us hear Arunagirinatha. In his Thirutthani Thiruppugazh "Iruppaval" the saint reminiscences the above occurrence and tells us about Siva and what He did at that time. "(Siva) who in a moment's time burnt, with the third eye on His forehead, robust Manmatha, who with his natural grace hid himself and sent (five) flowery arrows from his sugarcane-bow (on the Lord)." The saint goes on further to describe the Lord as One "Who resides in mountain" (Kailas) and One "Who gave one portion to Uma"¹⁵, who had been brought up in Himalayas."

In Aykudi Thiruppugazh "Vaatpada", Arunagirinatha recalls the sacred story of Maarkkandeya, who is regarded as one of the immortal beings (Chiranjeevi). At the time of birth itself Maarkkandeya was foretold that he was destined to live for only sixteen years. On completion of sixteen years, Yama appeared on the appointed day to take Maarkkandeya's life. He attempted to drag his victim towards him throwing his powerful paasa, taking no cognizance of Maarkkandeya's Siva pooja then going on. The ardent devotee prayed to Siva. See the graphical manner of Arunagirinatha's narration :

"(Siva) who kicked off with His long (holy) Feet (that) fierce-looking Yama, who like a hissing, deadly cobra angered at being trampled over was following the young lad (Maarkkandeya) saying (I won't leave you!)."

This anecdote shows that Siva's grace can even change one's destiny. And Siva was eminently qualified to reprimand the Lord of Death as He Himself looks after laya or Samihara of all the animate objects of the Universe, among the triple eternal functions of Srishti (creation), Sthithi (preservation) and laya or Samhara (destruction)¹⁶. He would not tolerate infliction of injury on, or harassment of His devotees, and Yama was no exception¹⁷.

Arunagirinatha's capacity to recall the interesting anecdotes concerning Siva in his hymns is indeed unlimited. The imperious Raavana once during the course of his digvijaya (victory tour) happened to notice that Mount Kailasa, the holy abode of Siva, was obstructing the path of his flying vehicle Pushpaka. He got down from his vehicle and attempted to lift the Kailasa nonchalantly, with the object to re-locate it in a different place. Annoyed at Raavana's indiscreet action, the Lord of Kailasa, pressed the mountain with the tip of a finger-nail of His leg. This inflicted a great pain to the demon king and in desperation he began to sing the glory of Siva with all sincerity repenting over his folly. Pleased at his prayers, Siva released Raavana from his agony.¹⁸ Arunagirinatha is reminded of this happening when he worships Muruga at Chidambaram, where the presiding Lord Siva is depicted in Cosmic Dancing posture (Nataraja). The saint addresses Muruga as "the Basic Substance of the Five syllables "SIVAYANAMA" and the son of "HARA SAMBHU" (Siva), the possessor of Graceful Feet, who made Raavana's body fall to the ground when he tilted the mountain (Kailasa) violently and took it on his shoulders."¹⁹

A brilliant portrayal of Lord Siva and His heroic deeds is found in one of Arunagirinatha's 'common' Thiruppugazh songs : "Naraiyodu Parkkazhāndru". In this song, the saint describes Siva as one who -

- preached the glorious syllables (Panchaakshara) to the Threesome who knew the content and the word, in order to enhance their fame;
- embodies the green-complexioned Goddess on His one side;
- went around the world accepting Bhiksha that was made available;

- stabilised the Universe by consuming the venom which emerged out of the ocean;
- burnt Tripurams which possessed the faculty to fly around;
- ties serpent around the hip beautifully in a fitting manner;
- places the Crescent aesthetically on the glowing matted locks in harmony with the Ganga residing thereat;
- wears Arugu, Nocchi and Thumbai on His Body, along with the serpent; and
- is worshipped by Vishnu and Brahma during their daily visits."

One of the easier ways to win the grace of Lord is to seek the company of His devotees (Satsang) and to remember them with veneration. The God is pleased with those who respect His chosen devotees. Arunagirinatha, conscious of this fact, remembers the three great saivite saints in his laudations. These saints are Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar, Sundaramoorthy Swamigal and Maanikkavaachaga Swamigal. Together with Thirunaavukkarasu Swamigal (Appar), they constitute the four pillars of the saiva cult edifice. Arunagirinatha regarded Thiru Jnanasambhandar as the re-incarnation of Muruga. In Pazhani Thiruppugazh "Karuvu Uruvagi", he addresses Muruga as 'One Who on that day appeared in Pugaliyur' - an obvious reference to Thiru Jnanasambhandar, born in Sirkaazhi, also known as Pugaliyur. In another hymn, "Neittha Churi Kuzhal", sung at Vayalur, he equates Sambhandhar and Muruga when he addresses him as "Uma's Son" and "the handsome (individual) who lived in Sirkaazhi, also known as Piramaapuram". The saint sings the glory of Sambhandhar in Stanza 29 of Kandhar Andhadhi too, where he categorically declares that Sambhandhar is none other than Muruga.

Sundaramoorthy Swamigal, who had the rare privilege of engaging himself in service of Siva in Mount Kailasa was forced to take birth on the earth, as ordained by the Lord. His fault was that he set his eyes lovingly on two celestial help-maids of Goddess Parvathi, namely Kamalini and Anindhidhai. The women too were equally enchanted with Aalaala Sundara as he was then known. At the request of his devotee, Siva assured that He would resuscitate him at the appropriate time.

In fulfilment of the assurance, Siva appeared just at the time when Nambiaarooran (Sundaramoorthy Swamigal's original name) was about to get married. Arunagirinatha in a Thiruppugazh song brings before us the picture of Lord Siva, Who had assumed the form of a grand old man advancing to the entrance of the marriage hall hurriedly when the young Sundara was about to wed. The aged Brahmin flashes before the men and women assembled there an old tattered and folded palmyra leaf inscription which reads : "For the entire world to know - This boy is my slave !". The youngster snatches away the leaf wilfully from the old man and tears it off. The old man, shaking his limbs violently, shouts: "Is it fair (to tear the document) ?"²⁰.

What followed was the 'old man's' startling revelation that the original testimony was still intact in Thiruvonnainalloor and what was destroyed was only a duplicate. They all proceeded to Thiruvonnainalloor. The vedic scholars who acted as jurors to the dispute whether Nambiaarooran was the slave of the 'old man', were convinced of the latter's claim when the original testimony was produced before them. They decreed that Nambiaarooran was indeed the slave of the 'old man'. Nambiaarooran later came to know that the 'old man' was none other than Lord Siva, when He appeared before him with His divine Consort Parvathi, mounted on the Bull. The Lord commanded Nambiaarooran to sing His glory in Tamil. Sundaramoorthy Swamigal's maiden Thevaram hymn which started with the word 'Pitthaa' (one who raves) was initiated by Siva Himself; that was how the saint had earlier called Him pooh-poohing His claim that he was His slave.²¹

Later Nambiaarooran married Paravaiyar and Changiliyar, who were Kamalini and Anindhidhai in their ethereal lives. It is said that Paravaiyar, on learning Her Husband's marrying Changiliyar declined to stay with him. Arunagirinatha says: "Pleased with Sundara's hymns, Siva went by foot to mediate".²² And there was rapprochement.

The king of Chera Region, Cheramaan Perumal was a friend of Sundaramoorthy Swamigal. When the time for Sundaramoorthy Swamigal's re-entry into Kailasa arrived, Siva sent the White Elephant along with devaas to fetch Swamigal. When Cheramaan Perumal heard this, he mounted on a horse, whispered Panchaakshara into its ears and reached Kailasa. Arunagirinatha has referred to the King's friendship with 'Aaroorar' (Sundaramoorthy Swamigal), his leaving for Kailasa mounted on horse and his singing hymn impromptu²³ in Thiruppugazh hymn 'Naadha Bindhu Kalaadhi' (Thiruvavinankudi). Paravaiyar and Changiliyar too assumed their original forms as Kamalini and Anindhidhai and reached Kailasa.

Arunagirinatha remembers Maanikkavaachaga Swamigal, the composer of honey-sweet Thiruvaachakam in his hymns. In "Seetha Vaasanai" sung in Madurai²⁴, the saint portrays Siva as "Pittha"²⁵ who, shone as a Gurumoorthy to Maanikkavaachaga born at Thiruvaathavoor and preached the path of jnana to him and Who cheered Himself at His holy leela which made the skulk of foxes into horses, Who accepted the golden shawl presented by Paandyan out of love, and Who danced and carried sand at the banks of Vaigai river and ate 'Pittu' offered by (the old woman) Vandhi who had the 'Pittu' business".

In the above narration, Saint Arunagirinatha reminds us of the occasion when Lord Siva, to protect His disciple Maanikkavaachagar, who had spent the Exchequer's money for spiritual causes, produced horses which were in fact foxes. When they became foxes again overnight, the king began to torment Maanikkavaachagar, which prompted Siva to create floods in Vaigai river. And the surging flood waters entered the town. The king ordered citizens of the town to come forward and block the leakage. An old lady named Vandhi who earned her livelihood by preparing and selling Pittu did not have anyone who could volunteer to do the filling job. Siva in the form of a labourer carried the sand on her behalf and all that He asked for and got for this work was Pittu made by the old woman.

It is truly said "Anbe' Sivam" (Siva is Love). The Lord is pleased with those who display uninhibited love and steadfast devotion towards Him, regardless of what he offers to Him while worshipping Him. The caste, colour or creed of the devotee is also not of any relevance²⁶. Kannappa Naayanar, belonging to the hunter tribe is a shining example of such an ardent devotee who obtained the grace of Siva.

The hunter-devotee, Thinnanaar (as he was then known) worshipped the idol of Sivalinga by showering it water which he had filled in his mouth, offering pork as the neivedyam (holy food) and doing archana with flowers which he had placed in his tuft. Yet the Lord accepted these happily and asked the learned priest, Sivagopachariyar, who usually performed the pujas, to see for himself Thinnanaar's devotion next day, by hiding himself.

When Thinnanaar came to worship Siva, he was shocked to notice blood oozing from one of the eyes of the idol. He squeezed some herbs and applied the essence to stop the flow of blood, but in vain. He at once plucked one of his eyes with the aid of his arrow and stuck it on the idol. The blood stopped and Thinnanaar began dancing rejoicingly. But his joy was short-lived for he saw the blood oozing from the other eye of Sivalinga. With determination to offer his remaining eye too to the Lord, Thinnanaar, placed his left leg on the idol's holy eye, lest he should miss the exact spot when his both eyes were taken out, and was set to execute his plan. Just then, Siva emerged out of the Sivalinga and called out, "Stop, Kannappa!". Kannappa attained immortality, to the joy and surprise of Sivagopachariyar witnessing the devotee's innocent and daring acts, out of extreme devotion.

Arunagirinatha has condensed the sacred story of Kannappa Naayanaar in just four scintillating lines in Chidambaram Thiruppugazh "Maccha Mecchu..."²⁷.

From what has been discussed in the foregoing paragraphs, it would be evident that Arunagirinatha's mental outlook and stance towards Saivism and Siva in his Thiruppugazh psalms go in harmony with the tenets enshrined in Saiva Samaya Siddhantha (the philosophy of saivite cult). The saint endorses the noble path of devotion adopted by great saivite saints who sang the glory of Siva and chanted the powerful Panchaakshara mantra, as revealed by his frequent references to the lives of Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar, Sundaramoorthy Swamigal and Mannikkavaachaga Swamigal in his verses. The apostle knew that the way for spiritual elevation and god-realisation shown by these liberated souls was the true and ideal one - the way leading to the exalted position of "Siva Swaroopa maha yogi." That was the status he sought from his favourite deity through his fervent supplications.

We shall see in the next chapter that the benevolent and all-powerful Siva derives energy for His functioning from Shakti, His divine Consort.

Footnotes

1. "Asanam Garalam Phani Kalaapo
Vasanam Charma cha Vaahanam Mahokshah
Mama Daasyasi Kim Kimasthi Sambho
Thava Paadaambuja Bhaktimeva Dehi."
2. Siva : Also known as Sankara, Neelakanta, Mahaadeva.
3. Sundaramoorthy Swamigal, one of the Holy Trio who sang Thevaaram on Siva says :

"I've only your Holy Feet fix'd in my mind
 Cleansed of all other attachments,
 Not only hath I benefited by taking birth (in this world),
 But attained hath I the status of being not born again henceforth,
 Oh! the sublime Lord of Paandikkodumudi
 Who is venerated by wise men in Thirukkaraiyoor,
 If ever it happens that I forget you,
 (My) tongue will (still) pronounce "Namasivaaya"
 —Namasivaya Padhigam.
4. Arunatthiri (Tamil) - Arunaadri (Sanskrit)- Aruna Hill (Thiruvannamalai or Thiruvavarunai).
5. Sound, touch, light, taste and smell
6. Nivritti, Prathishtha, Vidya, Shanthi, Saadhyathetha - These are the Panchakalaas.
7. Sound, touch, shape (colour) and taste
8. Sound, touch, shape (colour)
9. Sound and touch
10. Sound
11. "Kodiya Maraliyum...." - Thiruchengodu Thiruppugazh. This narration is loaded with a number of Sanskrit terms proclaiming Arunagirinatha's mastery over Sanskrit.

12. "Alaga Bhaaram Aalaindu...." - Thiruchendur Thiruppugazh.
13. Also known as Uma, Gouri, Bhavaani.
14. It is said that Paarvathi did not even eat any leaves during the penance. Hence the name 'Aparna'.
15. Since Siva has given a portion (left side) of His body to Uma (Parvathi). He is known as "Ardhanareeswara" (Semi-Female Lord). There is a legend behind this. Sage Bringi circumambulated only Siva, excluding Parvathi. Noticing this, the Goddess sat in close proximity to the Lord. Thereupon the sage took the form of a wasp (Bringam) and passed between the Two. The Goddess enquired why the sage was avoiding Her. The Lord replied that those who wish to get their desires fulfilled worship Her and those who aspire for salvation pray to Him. Parvathi on hearing this explanation, did penance at the place known as Kedaaram and secured the left portion of the Lord Himself for Her.
16. Srishti and Sthithi are attended to by Brahma and Vishnu.
17. Thirunaavukkarasu Swamigal (Appar), a contemporary of Thiru Jnana Sambandhar and one of the three saints who sang Thevaram, thunders boldly: "We are not subjects of anyone, we won't dread Naman (Yama), nor would we suffer tortures in the hell."
Adi Sankaracharya in his "Sivananda Lahiri" says : "Oh, the Husband of Bhavaani! Whosoever worships Your lotus Feet - from him the Lord of Death flees apprehending another kick at the chest!" (Stanza : 65).
18. Those who visit Suchindrum (near Kanyakumari) in South India during the two 10-day Festivals of the local famous Siva temple, one in the Tamil Month of Marghazhi (December-January) and another in Chitthirai (April-May) would be thrilled to see Siva and Parvathi coming majestically in a grand procession around the main streets of the village on the Seventh day night, seated on the silver kailasa mount (Vaahana). The vaahana has Raavana at its front side, with his ten heads and twenty arms, holding a veena in his hand; he is apparently singing the glory of the Lord Who saved him from near collapse.
19. "Eluppu Thol Mayir....." -Thiruppugazh.
20. "Irul alaga..." - Thiruvaranai Thiruppugazh.
21. Readers will notice a similarity between Sundaramoorthy Swamigal's initiation into the holy mission of singing Lord's glory and that of Arunagirinatha's. The opening words of maiden hymns of both the saints were supplied by their favourite deities.
22. "Kondhala Olai..." - Ilanji Thiruppugazh.
23. It is believed that Cheraamaan Perumal sang Thiru Kailaaya Jnana Ulla while he was at the entrance of Kailasa, waiting for his friend Sundaramoorthy Swamigal's arrival.
24. This is an apt co-incidence that Arunagirinatha remembers Maanik-kavaachagar and leelas of Siva that are connected with Maanik-kavaachagar in Madurai, a town where the divine drama took place.

25. The allusion here is to the appellation used by Sundaramoorthy Swamigal (See page 58).
26. Lord Krishna says : "If one offers Me with love and devotion a leaf, a flower, a fruit or water, I will accept it."
- Bhagavad Gita. Chapter 9, (Raja Vidya Raja Guhya Yoga) Stanza 26.
27. Readers will find a comparison of Kannappa Naayanaar in Sabari, the old woman who offered fruits devoutly to Lord Rama, after tasting each of them; Rama gladly accepted what His devotee offered.

CHAPTER 7

SHAAKTAM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

*"We prostrate before Thee, Naaraayanee!
 Who is encircled by the Peacock and the Cock,
 Who holds the mighty spear (Vel)
 And is faultless,
 And Who hath assumed the Form of Kowmaaree." ¹*

*- Devi Maahatmyam,
 (Chapter 11, Stanza 15)*

Adi Sankaracharya on commencement of his magnificent 'Soundarya Lahiri', a devotional outpouring at Goddess Parvathi or Shakti, glorifies the gracious combination of Siva and Shakti and says that if Siva does not manifest Himself along with Shakti, He wouldn't be able even to stir from where He is situated. Shakti is the Driving Force of all animate objects in this Universe. The Lotus Feet of the Universal Mother is worshipped by "Hari Hara Brahma" (Vishnu, Siva and Brahma). In stanza 28 of the same Hymns, the seer-poet extols the glory of the Goddess's ear-rings and says that when Brahma, Indra and other gods meet with their disaster at the time of the great deluge (Pralaya) despite their having tasted nectar, nothing happened to Siva though he took the deadly poison, thanks to the prepotency of the Goddess's ear-rings.

Thus it is difficult to comprehend Siva as a distinct entity separate from Shakti. It was mentioned in the previous chapter that Parvathi occupies the left portion of Siva's Body and thus She is an integral part of the Lord². The Goddess is all-pervasive³ and ever compassionate to Her devotees, as a mother is towards her children. Lalita Sahasranamam describes Her as "Aabrahma Keeta Janani" - She is the creator of everything in this Universe. "Devi Maahatmyam" which is incorporated in Maarkkandeya Puranam contains 700 mantras (hence known as "Saptha Sathi") in worshipful praise of the Goddess and one of the divine Forms assumed by the Goddess, as mentioned in this holy scripture is Koivmaaree, whose descriptions are akin to those of Muruga. According to Srimad Bhaagavatham, Sri Lakshmi, the divine Spouse of Vishnu, who had incarnated as Rugmini feared that Raavana had come in the form of Sisupalan (who was to wed Rugmini as planned by Her brother Rugmi). She prayed at the Holy Feet of Shakti (Parvathi), the Family Deity, to remove her fears and sought the blessings of the Goddess for Her marrying Sree Krishna. Her prayers were promptly fulfilled. And in the same epic, we find mention of the pretty womenfolk of the cowherds' colony (where Lord Krishna grew as the son of Nandagopa), offering prayers to Goddess Kaathyayani (Parvathi) for Lord Krishna to become their Husband.

Among the Tamil literary masterpieces on the Goddess, Abhirami Andhadhi and Abhirami Pathigam sung by Abhirami Bhattar are remarkable for their poetic excellence and devotional content⁴. Sri Ramakrishna Paramahansa, the most distinguished devotee of Kaali (Parashakti) was in direct communion with the Goddess.

In Chapter 1, it was mentioned that Goddess Parvathi presented the powerful 'Vel' (Spear) to Muruga and wished Her brave Offspring victory over Soorapadma. The 'Shakti Vel' presented by 'Shakti' Herself pierced through the monster's body and made it into two halves. The courage and valour of the Divine Mother who slew the mighty Mahishaasura replicated in an abundant measure in Her Son Muruga who fought a whole army of asuras led by Soorapadma and annihilated them to the gods' rejoicing⁵.

Arunagirinatha remembers the Divine Mother in veneration in several of his Thiruppugazh verses when he prays at the holy Feet of Muruga. The saint quite often describes certain characteristics or leelas of Lord Siva as those of Parvathi in Thiruppugazh hymns; in effect he perceives a Siva-Shakti manifestation in these instances. In a Thiruppugazh hymn of Thiruchendoor, "Moolum Vinai", Parvathi is referred to as One "Who consumed the dark venom", whereas it was Siva who did so on the occasion of churning the Ocean of Milk⁶. In the same song, the saint calls Her as "Durga who kicked off to the ground Kaala (Yama) who came (to take the life of Maarkkandeya) at the termination of set period according to planetary position⁷. Though it was Siva who did this act, it was the Goddess's leg that actually kicked off the Lord of Death, since Parvathi has occupied the left portion of Siva's Body⁸.

The portrayals of Parvathi as One "Who bent Meru mountain and burnt Tripuram" and "Who has a throat which contains the deadly venom"⁹ and One "Who sports matted locks"¹⁰ - all relate directly to the venerable Spouse of Devi; the fact that Arunagirinatha attributes these to Shakti amply proves that they are organically fused together. Indeed the Universe exists because of this Holy Union.

Arunagirinatha presents a fine portrait of Parvathi in his Thiruppugazh psalm "Kombanaiyar" sung at Thiruchendoor. This goes thus :

*"Sankari who danced
Like a whirling top"¹¹,
Chief of Vethaalas;
Anklets she wears
On the Lotus Feet
That are propitious;
Holds Sula in Her Hand,
Faultless, dark-complexioned
Durga, who strikes terror
Mahakaali, Yogini;
Once when (She) found
That Thou (Muruga) art to Combat the inebriated Soora,
Presented Vel
That prophesied victory (unto Thee),
As if to say,
"Hail, hail (Thee) my Son!"*

Arunagirinatha derives extreme pleasure in addressing Muruga as the Offspring of Goddess Parvathi. In doing so he uses different appellations of the Divine Mother. It is amazing to notice that the saint has an endless repertoire of Holy Names of Shakti, both in Tamil and Sanskrit. The author thought it appropriate to cull 108 of such appellations found in various Thiruppugazh hymns. This will as well serve as an Ashtothara Satha Namaavali of Goddess. These Holy Names follow (arranged alphabetically) :

- | | |
|----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1. Aala Bhojani | 22. Durgai |
| 2. Aaru Samaiyatthi | 23. Gayatri |
| 3. Abhinavai | 24. Girikumari |
| 4. Abhirami | 25. Gowri |
| 5. Adi Shakti | 26. Gunadhari |
| 6. Amalai | 27. Imagiri Kumaaratthi |
| 7. Ambai | 28. Jnanapoorani |
| 8. Ambigai | 29. Kaadugaal |
| 9. Anagai | 30. Kaalakhandi |
| 10. Andhari | 31. Kaali |
| 11. Anubhavai | 32. Kaarani |
| 12. Anudhayai | 33. Kalyani |
| 13. Bhagavati | 34. Kapaali |
| 14. Bhairavi | 35. Komalai |
| 15. Bhavani | 36. Kumari |
| 16. Bhayankari | 37. Kundali |
| 17. Chamundi | 38. Lokaa Loki |
| 18. Chandikai | 39. Maalini |
| 19. Chandrasekhari | 40. Maari |
| 20. Devi | 41. Mahamaayi |
| 21. Dighambari | 42. Maheswari |

68

*Grandeur of Thiruppugazh*43. *Makara Kundali*70. *Poorani*44. *Malaikumari*71. *Rudri*45. *Malaimagal*72. *Saamadevi*46. *Mangalai*73. *Saambhavi*47. *Manomani*74. *Sakala kaarani*48. *Manthra Sabhashaa Bhaashini*75. *Samaya Nayagi*49. *Maragatha Vadivi*76. *Sankari*50. *Matha Maadhavi*77. *Sarveswari*51. *Maathangi*78. *Seela Seelitri*52. *Naarani*79. *Shakti*53. *Naga bhooshanatthi*80. *Sivai*54. *Namohari*81. *Sivakama Sundari*55. *Neela Sundari*82. *Sivakami*56. *Neeli*83. *Sivapatthini*57. *Nimali*84. *Sooli*58. *Niranjini*85. *Sooraari*59. *Nishkali*86. *Sundari*60. *Parvathi*87. *Tharuni*61. *Panchavi*88. *Thrinayani*62. *Parabrahmi*89. *Thiru Saraswati*63. *Parai yogi*90. *Thriambagai*64. *Paramakalyani*91. *Thribhuvani*65. *Parameswari*92. *Thripurai*66. *Parashakti*93. *Thrisooli*67. *Paripura Natani*94. *Uma*68. *Peria Naayagi*95. *Vaachaama Gocharaa*69. *Pingalai*96. *Vaalai*97. Vaani

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------|
| 98. Vaaraahi | 104. Vibhanji |
| 99. Vanchi | 105. Vimali |
| 100. Veda Nayagi | 106. Viraagini |
| 101. Veda Vidakshini | 107. Yaamali |
| 102. Veda Vitthagi | 108. Yogini |
| 103. Vethaala Nayagi | |

Each of the above naamas is a highly powerful mantra and is pregnant with meaning and substance. They convey Arunagirinatha's perception of the omnipotent, omniscient Parashakti, Who creates, cares and causes cessation of this Universe. She represents the six cults, (Gaanapathyam, Saivam, Shaaktam, Vaishnavism, Kaumaram and Sowryam) - "Aaru Samayatthi" and "Samaya Nayagi" as the saint portrays. She is Veda Nayagi, leader of four vedas which proclaim Her glory. The Goddess is ever youthful ('Tharuni', 'Kumari', 'Vaalai'). She is tendril-like ('Vanchi'), beautiful ('Abhirami', 'Maragatha Vadivi', 'Sundari'), three-eyed ('Thrinayani') and One who transcends vocal or visual descriptions ('Vaachaama Gochara').

Some of the other Holy Names of Shakti contained in Thiruppugazh hymns are equally magnificent and they bring before us the dazzling divine form of the Goddess, apart from proclaiming the adeptness of Arunagirinatha in his choice of words. When he calls out at Parvathi as 'Karunai Vizhi Karpagam', we envisage the Goddess Whose eyes shed compassion and Who is ever willing to fulfil the aspirations of Her devotees.¹² She is "Kadia Vidatthai Podhindha Kandhari" (One Whose throat contains the deadly venom) and 'Ambuya Maalai Bhooshani' (One Who wears the garland of lotus flowers). On another occasion, the saint refers to Her as "Sakala Bhuvanamum Udhaviya Pathivraithai" [The virtuous Spouse (of Siva) Who created the whole Universe]. The lyrical beauty in the Goddess's appellation "Tharuna Satha Dhala Parimala Paripura Sarani", (One whose Feet are ever-youthful, lotus-like, fragrant and are adorned with anklets) is marvellous.

The saint commences his "Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu" with reverential prayers to the Goddess; twenty Holy Names find a place in the beginning of this composition. In Thiruvelaikaran Vaguppu, Arunagirinatha refers to Muruga as One Who addresses Parvathi, Who is green-complexioned (Shyamala complexion) and fragrant and Who resembles a beautiful koel, as "Mother".

The prayers contained in 'Devendra Sangha Vaguppu' are noted for their beauty and grandeur and one would rarely come across such Devi hymns in other Tamil texts. In this magnificent literary creation, Arunagirinatha describes the Goddess, among others, as One Who "slew Hiranya, holds human skeleton, dances, shines in vedhaantha, wears bangles, has flowing tresses, has complexion resembling fire, has propitious and delicate Feet, slew demons, is peacock-like, has threadlike waist, shields me (devotees) from the dreaded messengers of Lord of Death, gives alms to those who beg for it, bestows bliss on the silent Jnaanis who fix their minds on the Goddess's Feet, puts an end to human sufferings, wears serpents and protects the Seven Worlds and the Seven Seas out of compassion."¹³

Vel Vaangu Vaguppu is yet another composition by Arunagirinatha, where we find a magnificent array of significant appellations¹⁴ of Goddess, "Ambigai", who is "Inexplicable, Matchless, Unwavering, Unblemished, Untarnished, Embellished, Three-eyed, Stag-eyed, Exceedingly beautiful and Superior to Sri Lakshmi". The Goddess, "sensitizes everything" (in the world) and is "the Seed (origin) of Jnana" and resides in space that is Jnana". She "explains the grammatical components of Theatre." She is One "Who has occupied the left portion of Lord (Siva) Who wears deadly cobras as ornaments in His forest-like (thick) matted locks" and the Goddess Herself is "wearing serpent whose hoods spit small sparks of fire as (Her) shoulder chain." (Parvathi) who was 'Yama to Kaala' (Lord of Death) himself, has "Directions that are desires as Her apparel" and "holds Paasa and Ankusa in Her hands." She "shines with two Hands that depict Abhaya and Varadha". "Ambai" has "the greatness as that of mother who knowing the desires of Her devotees fulfils them instantly."

The worshipful praise of Shakti thus goes on infinitely in Arunagirinatha's works, affirming the saint's limitless devotion towards the Goddess and his abiding faith in Shaakta cult.

While remembering the Goddess in his hymns, Arunagirinatha quite often links Her with Her Divine Brother, Vishnu. For instance, in a Pazhani Thiruppugazh "Iru Kanaga", the saint refers to the Goddess as "Anantha Sayanakali Kooraari Sodhari" (Sister of Hari Who reclines happily on Adishesha) and in a Thiruvarunai Thiruppugazh "Amudhamooru", as "Kuralu Roopa Murari Sahodari."¹⁵ The saint goes further when he describes Her as 'Thigiri Meru Kaiyali' in the same hymn, meaning one who holds Chakra in Her hand. That the Goddess reflects 'Thirumaal Amsa' (Element of Vishnu) is revealed by this description, since Vishnu is One Who has Chakra (the Divine Discus) in His Hand. Again, readers might have noticed that in Devendra Sangha Vaguppu, the saint has portrayed Parashakti as one who slew Hiranya. Here again, it was Vishnu, in the form of Narasimha, who killed Hiranya. The saint does not thus see any difference between Shakti and Vishnu.¹⁶ That leads us to the discussion on Vaishnavism and Arunagirinatha.

Footnotes

1. "Mayoora Kukkuta Vrithé Mahaasakthidhare Anaghé Koumaaree RoopaSamsthaané Naaraayani Namosthu Thé."
2. The first ever Thevaram Song which came from the holy tongue of Thiru Jnana Sambhandhar starts with 'Thodudaiya Chevian', namely "(Lord) who is having 'Thodu' (ear-stud)". This ornament is worn by women and what the little child saw was "Ammaiyappan" (a combination of Mother and Father).
3. She is Meenakshi in Madurai, Kamakshi in Kancheepuram, Maariamman in Samayapuram, Karumaariamman in Thiruverkkadu and Kanya Kumari in Kanyakumari (all in South India), Visalakshi in Varanasi (North India), Mahalakshmi in Bombay (Western India) and Kaali in Calcutta (Eastern India). The Goddess also has shrines in several other holy places, where She shines with different Holy names.
4. Abhirama Bhattar was born in Thirukkadavur in South India some 270 years ago. Once on a New Moon Day (Amavasya), it so happened that Abhirama Bhattar declared to the King Sarabhoji of Thanjavoor that that day was Full Moon Day (Pournami). To substantiate his claim he sang Abhirami Andhadhi (In Andhadhi type of verses, the last word of a stanza forms the first word of the subsequent verse) comprising 100 stanzas and when he sang the 79th stanza, the Goddess removed Her ear-stud and hurled it in the sky. Lo! The moon shone with its radiance! The king and the people honoured the revered poet. The poet also extolled the glory of Abhirami in his Abhirami Pathigam, in which he fervently appeals for the grace of the Goddess. Pathigam consists of 22 verses, each of 16 lines. In one of these verses, Abhirama Bhattar addresses his favourite deity as "Kumari, who gave Kumaara Deva (Muruga) who resides in all hills and blesses the devotees ever." We also notice similarities of the Goddess's descriptions by Abhirama Bhattar and Arunagirinatha in their hymns.

5. Those who have witnessed the famous Durga Pooja celebrations particularly in Calcutta would have noticed that along with the majestic idol of Durga depicted as slaying Mahishasura (buffalo-faced demon), idols of Ganesa, Lakshmi, Saraswati and Karthikeya (Muruga) adorn the holy spots.
6. See page 54 (Chapter 6).
7. See Page 55 (Chapter 6).
8. "Kaalaanthaki", as mentioned in couplet 19 of Vel Vaangu Vaguppu.
9. "Thalai Valai" - Kancheepuram Thiruppugazh
10. "Karunai Chiridhum" - Thiruvvarunai Thiruppugazh
11. The reference seems to be to the dance performed by the Goddess in competition with Siva. When Her divine Husband performed Voordhuwa Thandava, at the end, femininity prevented Parvathi to continue further.
12. See Chapter 6, page 62 Footnote 15.
13. Abhirama Bhattar also refers to the Goddess's protecting the Fourteen worlds (Seven Worlds and Seven Seas) in the Abhirami Andhadhi. (Stanza 13).
14. The sequences of appellations and descriptions have been changed to suit presentation of the divine attributes in an appropriate prose form.
15. The reference is to the incarnation of Vishnu in the form of dwarfish Vamana, seeking three feet of land from the proud King Mahaabali. Assuming the giant Trivikrama shape, He measured the Heaven and the Nether World. To keep up the promise, the king desired that the Lord place His Foot on his head. Vishnu acceded to the request.
16. Abhirama Bhattar too has such unified perception, when he says in his Abhirami Andhadhi that the Goddess relaxes on the Snake-Bed in the ocean. (Stanza 35).

Swamimalai

CHAPTER 8

VAISHNAVISM AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

*"Narada! Neither do I dwell in Vaikunta
Nor in the hearts of yogis
Settle I in those places
Where my devotees sing my glory" ¹,*

This declaration of Lord Narayana to Sage Narada clearly brings out the importance of Hari Nama Sankirtan. Realising the potency of the Holy Name of Narayana, which runs into thousand (Hence the name of *Sahasranama*²), limitless devotees, over the ages, have crossed the mighty ocean of samsara and obtained immortality by constant worship of the Lord through sacred hymns composed by them. Their devotional outbursts are indeed a boon to the suffering masses in Kali yuga. To list the names of such pious and liberated souls would indeed be a formidable task. Epics and other sacred texts mention the names of Prahlada, Narada, Paraasara, Pundarika, Vyasa, Ambarisha, Suka, Sounaka, Bheeshma, Thalpya, Rugmaangatha, Arjuna, Vasishta, Vibheeshana, Dhruva, Ajamila and Gajendra (the elephant) and many others who are dear to Narayana. Many holy personalities have subsequently taken birth, who obtained the infinite grace of the Lord and in whose lives certain dramatic events had occurred in one way or the other, revealing the Lord's abiding interest in them. In fact, a few devotees like Purandaradasa were brought into the holy assembly of Bhagavathaas, from their mundane existence.

The narration of a few instances which reveal the utmost devotion of these Bhagavathaas and the way Lord Narayana played into their lives might be apt.

Jayadeva, the author of Geeta Govinda or Ashtapadhi had a unique experience in that Sree Krishna Himself appeared in the form of Jayadeva when he had gone to the river to have his bath and incorporated two lines in the seventh stanza of the 19th Ashtapadhi, starting with "Chaarū Seele, Priye". Meera, who spent all her days in singing the glory of Her Giridhar (Sree Krishna) drank the deadly poison as directed by her husband and still survived thanks to the grace of her favourite deity.³ Lord Rama paid all the dues on behalf of His disciple Bhadrachala Ramdas (who had spent the Exchequer's money in renovation of temple for Sri Rama) to the Nizam King Dhaneesha and got him released from prison. When Saint Thukkaram appealed to Panduranga to protect the Maratha warrior Shivaji from enemies, Panduranga took the form of Shivaji on horseback whom Aurangazeb's men chased mistaking the rider as Shivaji. While they were taken to a different location and most of them met with their end, Shivaji was meditating in peace in the temple of Panduranga in Pandharpur. The miserly jeweller, Raghunatha Rao whose sole aim in life was to amass wealth by lending money at usurious rates of interest became Purandara Dasa, the Pithamaha of Carnatic music and composer of many-a-musical gem with the Lord's divine intervention. Saint Tyagaraja, one of the renowned Musical Trinity, had received the darshan of Rama, Lakshmana and Sita. The young Godha or Andal, the daughter of Periazhwar, one of the twelve vaishnavite saints who sang Naalaayira Divya Prabhandham in praise of Thirumaal, was so intensely attached to Sree Krishna that she used to wear the flower garlands made by her around her neck first, fantasise her beloved wearing them and then offer them to Sree Krishna, Who accepted them gladly⁴. We saw the story of Tulsidas, the great author of Ram Charita Manas, in Chapter 2. The Saint Jnaneswara, the author of priceless literary work "Jnaneswari", had made a buffalo chant vedas, in a crisis situation, with the grace of Lord.

It would not be an exaggeration to say that Saint Arunagirinatha easily joins the galaxy of such pious vaishnavite saints and devotees, when one sees his brilliant narrations of Thirumal, His divine attributes, leelas, heroic acts and epical anecdotes in Thiruppugazh and other compositions. In all these instances, the saint sings the glory of Thirumaal (Vishnu) and addresses Muruga as the Nephew of such a glorious, heroic Divine Personality. Some narrations are brief, while others are fairly lengthy. Stories connected with Ramayana, Mahabharatha, and Srimad Bhagavatham find places repeatedly in Thiruppugazh hymns. The way the saint has narrated them has no parallel. What appears elaborately in these scriptures are extracted and presented in beautiful summary forms, without sacrificing the essence of the original texts. Those who recite them get a clear, unambiguous picture of sequences. Simultaneously, they derive the benefits accruing from recital of the original holy epics. We shall see in this chapter a few specimens of such magnificent narrations.

(a) The entire Ramayana is contained in the Thiruppugazh hymn "Aalahaala" (Thiruchengodu). See how Arunagirinatha narrates the story :

(Sri Rama) (who was) "Born as the Son of Dasaratha
Acclaimed by heavenly subjects;

(Who) protected the Holy Sacrifice
Performed by the Supreme Sage (Viswamitra);

(Who) with touch of holy Feet
Transformed the stone (that was Ahalya)
Into its original form;

(Who) Smashing the bow in Mithila
United in holy wedlock

With resplendently beautiful damsel (Sita)'

(Who) On return to the town (Ayodhya)
Was directed by Step mother (Kaikeyi)
To proceed to the forest;

(Who) Went into exile
Accompanied by the younger Brother (Lakshmana)
And the Earth's Daughter (Sita);
Shot off arrows
Killing Vaali living in forest;

(and Who) Went in search of Raavana
And slew him."

The narration resembles a Samkshepa Ramayana (abridged version of Ramayana), justifying recitation as often as possible.

The Thiruppugazh hymn "Kunagi Oru" contains a brief summary of Ramayana, right from Ayodhya Kaanda to Uddha Kaanda. In this song, the saint brings before us the scenes of Kaikeyi telling Sri Rama that He is being exiled, the Lord's leaving Ayodhya with Sita and Lakshmana abiding by His step-mother's words, His killing of the charming delusory deer Maareecha and the brave Khara, Dhooshana and others, His slaying Vaali, building a bridge over the seas with the help of Hanuman and other monkeys, crossing the ocean, Rama's destroying the demon clan, and His vanquishment of the angry Raavana, "whose ten stone-embedded mighty crowns came tumbling down with a single arrow coming forth from the Lord."

Besides the above narrations of the entire Ramayana in a synoptic manner, Arunagirinatha has touched upon several occurrences related to the epic in many of his verses. We notice the saint's limitless poetical imagination in his fine portrayal of Kowsalya beckoning the child Rama to her side with all her motherly affection and tenderness. ("Thondhi Chariya" - Thiruchendoor Thiruppugazh). Perhaps the saint's wish was to visualise and present before us the handsome divine form of Baala Rama, since Baala Krishna and His leelas are fairly well-known to devotees! There are hymns, among others, which refer to Rama's slaying of the demoness Thaataka, His converting the stone into Ahalya with touch of Feet, His keeping vigil during Sage Viswamitra's Yagna, encounter with Soorpanaka, Raavana's sister, death of Vaali at His Hands, despatch of monkeys to Eastern, Southern, Northern and Western directions in search of Sita, Hanuman's meeting of Sita in Lanka and his handing over of Rama's holy signet-ring, killing of Raavana, and coronation of Vibheeshana. Even the incident relating to Rama's pardoning the sinful crow⁵ which caused injury to His Consort when He was asleep, and His awarding a token punishment to it when it fell at His Feet seeking mercy, is referred to in a Thiruppugazh verse. ("Paathi Mathi Nathi" - Swamimalai). The story of Lava and Kusa, the young sons of Sri Rama, engaging in a battle against their brave Father and emerging victorious is mentioned in Thiruppugazh "Piraviyaana" (Chiruvai).

(b) Arunagirinatha provides us a wonderful gist of Mahabharatha in "Modhu Marali" Thiruppugazh. It goes thus :

"Dharma⁶ lost kingdom following his defeat in the game of dice and accepted twelve years of forest life. While spending days with affectionate and comely Draupadi in *Viraatarajya*⁷, Duryodhana and his men drove away with cows (belonging to Paandavas), which were redeemed after confrontation. (At the end of the stipulated period), a matchless emissary⁸ was deputed (to Duryodhana), seeking the right to rule. The emissary returned when the request was turned down with the challenge of a valiant fight (to secure the right). The contentious sons of Dhritharaashtra, Duryodhana and others, who came to the battle were killed, while other kings and their troops were reduced to dust. The great Thirumal (Vishnu) acted as the charioteer to the victorious archer Vijayan (Arjuna)."

All the essential aspects of the story of Mahabharatha - the victory of the right and virtuous over the wrong and wicked - are brought before us in a succinct manner.

(c) Now let us have a look at the saint's description of the emergence of Lord Narasimha in response to the appeal of His young devotee Prahlada. We find this exquisite and rare narration in the Thiruppugazh, "Iru Kuzhai meedhodi."

"Whilst the scholar well-versed in Vedas

Taught "Hiranya Roopaa Namu",

The inimitable child (Prahlada) repeated;

"Hari Hari Narayana!"

[The angry father (Hiranya)

Questioned Prahlada]

"Who's that? What basis hath thou?"

(To worship Him)

"Tell me, Is He in this (pillar)?"

Said (Prahlada):

"He's the Leader present in All objects in the Universe!"

Went (Hiranya) and struck

At a mighty pillar;

Out came with speed of hurricane

The flaring Narasimha

Who tore off the demon's body

With (His sharp) finger-nails."

Could anyone have given a better and clearer picture of the incarnation of Lord Narasimha and Prahlada's devotion? Perhaps not. What is outstanding in this hymn is the way the saint has contained the actual dialogues between the teacher and the pupil and between Hiranya and Prahlada.

(d) Arunagirinatha reminds us of the story of Gajendra Moksha (Emancipation of Gajendra, the elephant), contained in Srimad Bhagavatham, in one of his supplications "Pagartharkkaridhaana" sung at Pazhani.

Caused by Sage Agasthya's curse, Indradyumna became an elephant. When caught by a crocodile, the elephant in agony called out "Aadhi Moolame" (Vishnu). In the words of the saint, "(the Lord) Who out of love came in the wink of an eye to bestow grace on the Elephant (Gajendra) which was caught by a male crocodile having sharp jaws." The animal was thus rescued.

The Lord Krishna Himself has underscored the benefits one would receive by reading the story of Gajendra and it is our good fortune that Arunagirinatha has incorporated this pious scriptural piece in his hymn.

(e) In "Kacchani"..., a Thiruppugazh relating to Thirutthani, there is a beautiful narration of the leelas and divine personality of Sree Krishna. The saint, in this psalm, refers to Sree Krishna's removing the curse cast by Sage Narada on Nalakoobaran and Manigreevan, who had turned into marutha trees. Kesava, (Krishna) who had been tied (by His mother Yasodha) to a pounding-stone "as a punishment for desirously stealing curd from milkmaids' houses", went along with it and "performed a benevolent act consciously" (He along with the stone went between the two trees making them slump and they regained their human frames); "Kesava, who rides on the brave Garuda mount"; "Achyuta (Krishna) who has His divine slumber on the poisonous snake (Adishesha) forming the Bed in the Ocean of Milk."

(f) We get vivid descriptions of leelas of Sree Krishna in yet another hymn "Thakara Naru Malar" (Pazhani). The seven divine attributes highlighted in this song are : (i) the Lord who played flute with expertise, while He lifted the Umbrella that was (Govardhana) mountain and herds of cows collected beneath it⁹, (ii) the Lord who went of His own accord to the house of Vidura¹⁰, (iii) the toddler who suffered beatings as a punishment for stealing butter, (iv) colossal Personality (Trivikrama form), (v) the slayer of the demon Madhu (hence the name 'Madhusoodhana'), (vi) the Lord having complexion as that of cloud and One Who holds Discus, Conch Shell, Mace, Sword and Bow and (vii) One Who danced with rhythm "Dhimita Dhimi" atop the gorgeous hood of the Serpent (Kaaliya)¹¹.

(g) The heroic acts and the the childish pranks of Krishna are narrated by Arunagirinatha in the Thiruppugazh song "Vanchanai Minjiya" (Pazhani), He says, "Thirumaal (Vishnu) who became victorious after His killing Sakataasura deputed by Kamsa,¹² who seated in a kurundha tree, engaged Himself in frolic with the womenfolk of cowherds' colony by making them blush¹³, and who (later) made them happy with His keeping company with them lovingly in His handsome form and with His music (flute)."

(h) The saint has described in a Thiruppugazh verse¹⁴ how even the animals, mountains, birds and trees underwent metamorphosis when they listened to the sweet divine music emanating from Sree Krishna's flute - the tiger cubs living in dens sucked the udders of cows, while tigresses suckled the calves, mountains melted, the trees in the forest blossomed, the passionate and outrageous male elephants walked off with their female counterparts and birds flying high up in the skies reached the ground.

(i) Arunagirinatha in his hymn "Karuvin Uruvaagi" (Pazhani) qualifies Sree Ranganayaaka (of Sri Rangam) as "Peria Perumaal" (The Mighty Lord) - the way vaishnavites refer to Him. The usage of this phrase proves the saint's familiarity with the native customs relating to particular sects, apart from his desire to identify himself as a person belonging to that group, while worshipping their favourite deity. Arunagirinatha's devotion to Sree Ranganatha becomes further explicit when we notice the penultimate stanza of the Thiruppugazh song 'Kurudhipulaal'. (Thiruvaanaikka). Here he qualifies Sree Ranga Raja as One "at the holy Feet of Whom the Brahmins who are adept in Six Angaas (Branches) and yaagas prostrate, chanting "Hari Hari Govinda! Kesava!." There is a reference to the Lord of Sri Rangan in Kandhar Andhadhi too. (Stanza 98).

(j) Arunagirinatha recalls the instance of gods and asuras (demons) churning the Ocean of Milk in his hymn "Kaalanaar" (Thiruchendoor), when he says that "while Siva accepted the Aalahaala venom, Aadi Maayan (Vishnu) who has His divine slumber on the roaring seas joyfully distributed the nectar to gods who stood in fear, so that they might live (for ever)".¹⁵

Arunagirinatha does not seem to be satisfied with the recounting of the wonderful feats of Sree Krishna. This is evidenced by his narrations, verse after verse. Seven such divine acts are incorporated in the Thiruppugazh hymn "Muruga Mayoora". Sree Krishna is described in this hymn as One Who -

- sucked the life out of the fiend (Poothana) deputed by the sinner-uncle (Kamsa) who conspired to slay Krishna, disregarding the fact that Krishna was his Nephew (sister Devaki's son);
- twisted and severed the tuskers of the enraged elephant which advanced to attack the Lord;¹⁶
- with His valour made the fruits of Vila tree fall to the ground;¹⁷
- fought with the huge winged-crane and tore apart the bird's beak (to its death);¹⁸
- went crawling between the two giant marutha trees (and made them slump);¹⁹
- kicked off Sakata (cart);²⁰ and
- fought with the wrestlers.²¹

We get a sacred darshan of Vishnu in our minds when we recite the Thiruppugazh verse "Paatrukkanangal" sung by the saint at the Muruga shrine at Paakkam. In this supplication, Muruga is addressed as the Nephew of Thirumaal (Vishnu) who "shines with the sword of gold of unsurpassed purity (Naandhakam), the Chakra²² or Discus (Sudarsanam), the Conch Shell (Paanchajanyam), the Mace (Kowmodhaki) and the Bow (Kodhanda) and is adorned with gold ornaments and Who reclines over the Bed that is the ireful serpent (Adisesha) with sharp, spear-like eyes, on the Ocean of Milk, tossed over by waves which look as though they are the extended arms that worship Achyuta (Vishnu)."

The saint describes Vishnu as "Thulaba mani maarban" (the Lord Whose chest is adorned with Thulasi garland), "Chakradharan" (Who holds Discus), 'Hari', "Murari" (Enemy of Muraasura) and Sarppa Thuyiladharan' (Who has His slumber on the serpent - Adisesha), in his Thiruppugazh hymn "Kalabamani" (Thirumayilai).

The five incarnations of Vishnu, namely *Koorma*²³ (Tortoise), *Matsya*²⁴ (Fish), *Varaaha*²⁵ (Boar), *Vaamana*²⁶ (the Lord in dwarfish form) and *Narasimha*²⁷ (the Lord in the form of Man-Lion Combination) find mention in a single Thiruppugazh "Maadhar Mayal".

It was mentioned in Chapter 1 that Muruga's divine Consorts, Valli and Devayanai were in reality Sundaravalli and Amudhavalli, who were born out of tears of joy of Narayana, when He incarnated as Trivikrama. From this it becomes clear that Thirumaal (Vishnu) and His Spouse Sri Lakshmi are Muruga's Father-in-law and Mother-in-law. Arunagirinatha reminds us of this relationship (as distinct from his usual narration, namely Uncle-Nephew relationship) in his hymn "Athala Chedanaar Aada..". Here he makes entreaties to his favourite deity Muruga to come before him dancing, amidst a large number of gods and goddesses and others (who too are to dance along with Muruga). After naming Adisesha, Meru mountain, Kaali (Parashakti), Siva, Bhoothas and fiends, Saraswati, Brahma, heavenly subjects and Moon in this category, the saint mentions about Muruga's Mother-in-law (Sri Lakshmi) Who is seated on the red lotus and Father-in-law, Who had taken *Viswaroopa*²⁸ (Universal Form) and lastly the (Lord's) peacock.

The saint proceeds further to give a fine portrayal of Thirumaal in the same hymn - Thirumaal who helped in the destruction of mighty troops belonging to the enemies (Kauravaas) who were challenged by Bheema carrying always the mace on his shoulders, (the Lord) who played His flute to bring back the herds of cattle which had fled in distress, (Krishna) who acted as the charioteer for Arjuna and blew the golden Conch (Paanchajanya) which gives out Vedic reverberations, (Thirumaal) who sleeps in the Ocean (of Milk) tossed over by waves, (Trivikrama) who has the holy Feet which measured the (entire) Universe, and (the Lord) who has Garuda, as His mount.

The saint remembers reverentially the leelas and heroic acts of Thirumaal on a number of occasions in his Kandhar Alankaram and Kandhar Andhadhi.

Arunagirinatha's other compositions like Vaguppus and Virutthams also contain epical anecdotes and other attributes concerning Thirumaal. These are presented below:

Name of Vaguppu	Anecdotes/attributes referred
(i) Seer Paada Vaguppu	(a) Gajendra Moksha (Emancipation of Gajendra, the elephant). (b) Incarnation of Vishnu as Narasimha, Vaamana and Sri Rama.
(ii) Bhootha Vethala Vaguppu	(a) Vishnu's Five Weapons (Conch Shell, Discus, Bow, Sword and Mace). (b) Distribution of nectar by Vishnu to Indra and other gods at the time of churning of the Ocean of Milk.

- (iii) Porkkalatthalagai Vaguppu (a) Sree Krishna's acting as Emissary of Paandavaas,
 (b) Lord's assuming Viswaroopa form,
 (c) Annihilation of Kauravaas.
- (iv) Sevakan Vaguppu (a) Lord Rama's slaying of Raavana.
- (v) Vel Vaangu Vaguppu (a) Mahabharatha War and destruction of Kauravaas,
 (b) Sree Krishna's acting as Arjuna's charioteer,
 (c) Gopi Vasthraapaharanam by Sree Krishna,
 (d) Flautist Sree Krishna's lifting of Govardhana mountain,
 (e) Child Sree Krishna's going between two marutha trees,,
 (f) Lord's slaying of Sakataasura, Bakaasura and Poothana,,
 (g) Encounter with the enraged elephant sent by the inimical Kamsa, the Lord's uncle.

(vi) Mayil Vaguppu(a) Garuda's releasing Lakshmana from the Naaga Paasa directed by Indrajit (Raavana's son) (anecdote from Ramayana).(vii) Vel Viruttham(b) The Five Weapons of Vishnu and His reclining on Adishesha on the Ocean of Milk, with Sri Lakshmi massaging the Holy Feet of the Lord.(viii) Mayil Viruttham

(a) Incarnation of Vishnu as Narasimha and reference to Sree Krishna as Devaki's son.

(b) Reference to Vishnu as the Enemy of demons, Madhu and Kaidavaa.

(c) Vishnu's Five Weapons.

Arunagirinatha thus excels in extolling the greatness and glory of Thirumaal (Vishnu) in his literary masterpieces. While doing so, the saint virtually identifies himself with the noble Azhvars, who sang Divya Prabhandham in Tamil in praise of Thirumaal. In fact, there is a school of thought which avers that Arunagirinatha consciously concludes many of his Thiruppugazh hymns with "Perumale" - an appellation usually ascribed to Thirumaal, (e.g. Srinivasa Perumal, Varadaraja Perumal etc.), out of his devotion to Vishnu. The greatness of the versifier lies in his extra-ordinary skill in giving graphic accounts of a number of notable occurrences which find a place in epics like Ramayana, Maha Bharata and Srimad Bhagavatham. The range of the saint's coverage of such events is quite wide and his vision is incomparable. For instance, at one time he sees Sree Krishna as a toddler stealing butter and curd and getting punishment from Yasodha; on the next occasion he sees Him distributing nectar to gods, assuming the form of Mohini; he then switches on to the scene where the Lord visits Duryodhana as the Emissary of Paandavas and later assumes the role of Arjuna's charioteer. The saint seems to be highly enchanted particularly with the Lord's incarnations as Rama and Krishna, judged by his repeated portrayals of these two divine forms and many heroic events relating to Them in several Thiruppugazh verses as well as other compositions. All these narrations are marked not only for their story value, but for their lyrical beauty and spiritual fervour too.

Prayers to Sun-God, as incarnate of Soorya Narayana (Vishnu) residing in Solar Orb (Savitr Mandal) form integral part of the daily worship by many devout people. Arunagirinatha has fittingly glorified the Sun-God on a number of occasions, as we shall see in the next chapter.

Footnotes

1. "Naaham Vasaami Vaikunté
Na yogee Hridayé Ravou
Madh Bhakthaa Yatra Gaayanthi
Thatthra Thishtami, Naarada."
2. Arunagirinatha mentions this holy name in Thiruppugazh "Anithamaana" (Thiruvanaikka)
3. In Meera's own words, "Vish kaa Pyaala Raanaaji Ne Bheja, Peevatha Meera Haasi Re!"
(Raanaji sent the cup of poison and Meera drank it laughingly).
4. Hence called "Choodikkoduttha Naachiyaar".
5. Jayantha, the son of Devendra, is believed to have taken the form of a crow.
6. Dharmaraja (Udhishtira), the eldest of Paandavas; the others are Bheema, Arjuna, Nakula and Sahadeva.
7. The pact with Kauravas was that after completion of twelve years in forest, Paandavas should lead one year's 'Anjyatha Vaasa' (living incognito); if their real identity was found during this period, they were to spend another term of twelve years in forest. The Paandavas spent the thirteenth year in Viraataraja, assuming different names and taking up different vocations.
8. The reference is to Sree Krishna, who stood by righteous Paandavas in their struggle for justice.
9. According to Srimad Bhagavatham, Indra, the King of Gods, brought heavy rains in Ambadi, the colony of cowherds, which continued incessantly for seven days. Krishna, who was just seven years old then, held the mountain aloft with His left hand all these days and protected the cows and their owners. Indra finally accepted defeat and fled and rains stopped.

10. The occasion was when the Lord went as emissary to Duryodhana. (See page 77 of Chapter 8).
11. The thousand-hooded black serpent Kaaliya, according to Srimad Bhagavatam, had occupied Kaalindhi waters and its presence made the surroundings obnoxious. Sree Krishna decided to send the irksome reptile away from that place and 'Kaaliya Mardhana' followed. The Lord's act of subduing Kaaliya took the form of a graceful dance, accompanied by music and drumming by celestial subjects. Melppattoor Narayana Bhattadhiri in his 'Narayaneeyam' has given a brilliant account of this divine dance in Dasakam 55.
12. Kamsa, the maternal uncle of Krishna, had become inimical towards Krishna ever since he heard an asareeri (voice sans body) prophesying that the eighth child of Devaki (Kamsa's sister) would kill him. The deputation of Sakatasura was a part of his plan to take the life of his divine little Nephew. The child Krishna was resting under a Cart (Sakata), when the demon sent by Kamsa, entered that cart and attempted to slay Krishna. Krishna kicked off the vehicle with His tender Feet, as if He was expressing His displeasure in not getting His food in time. In this process the demon met with his inevitable death.
13. The reference is to "Gopi Vastrapaharanam" ('Theft of clothes of Gopi women), when young Krishna took away clothes of womenfolk of cowherds' colony while they were bathing in Yamuna river and perched Himself on a nearby tree. The clothes were returned, when they shed all their inhibitions and made fervent appeals to Lord.
14. "Kalabham Ozhugiya" - Thiruchendhoor Thiruppugazh.
15. Vishnu assumed the form of a bewitching beauty, "Mohini" in this connection and hoodwinked the unintelligent demons while distributing the nectar. The transformation of Vishnu in the feminine form created a longing in the mind of Siva to see the graceful Divine Lass. The effulgent and powerful presiding deity of Sabarimala in Kerala, Dharma Saastha is the divine Offspring of Siva and Vishnu (in Mohini form). Arunagirinatha has referred to Dharma Saastha in Stanza 13 of his Kolu Vaguppu; he calls the Lord as "Midalirai Viralari Vimalargal Arul Suthan" (The Son of mighty Siva and brave Vishnu, the pious gods).
16. The elephant referred to here is Kuvalayaapeetam.
17. Kamsa had sent two demons to slay Krishna - Kapitthasura took the form of a Vila tree, while the other, Vathsasura transformed himself as a calf. Krishna flung the 'calf' on to the 'tree', instantly killing both the demons.
18. Sree Krishna's killing of Bakaasura.
19. See page 79 Chapter 8.
20. See Footnote 12 above.

21. Kamsa had invited Krishna and His Brother Balarama to his Assembly, when They had to engage in a wrestling combat with wrestlers like Chanoora, Mushtikan etc. sent by Kamsa. The Divine Brothers annihilated the opponents.
22. Legend has it that Vishnu worshipped Siva daily with thousand lotus flowers, seeking from the latter the Chakra which had cut across the neck of the powerful Jalandharaasura and killed him. One day when Vishnu found that one flower was short, He offered His eye to compensate for the shortfall. Pleased with Vishnu's prayer, Siva presented the Chakra to Him. These prayers are said to have taken place at Thiruveezhimizhalai. This occurrence has not escaped the attention of Arunagirinatha. The latter half of Thiruppugazh hymn "Padar Bhuviyin.." (Thiruchendoor) refers to this story.
Adi Sankara has also referred to Vishnu's offer of an eye in lieu of lotus flower to Siva in his Sivananda Lahiri. (Stanza 82).
23. See Chapter 5, Page 49. Footnote 13.
24. The demon, Somukha had snatched the veda texts from Brahma and disappeared into the sea. Thirumaal took the form of a giant fish, went deep into the sea and recovered the vedas, slaying the demon.
25. Thirumaal took the form of a Boar and brought back the Universe that had been taken away by the demon Hiranyaksha, killing him.
26. See Chapter 7, Page 72. Footnote 15.
27. Chapter 8, Page 77.
28. The reference seems to be either to the colossal form Sree Krishna took and appeared before Arjuna during the Maha Bharata War (Bhagavad Gita - Chapter 11) or the Trivikrama form He assumed to subdue the demon King Mahaabali..

CHAPTER 9

SOWRA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

(Oh! Lord Soorya!)

Thou epitomizeth Soorya Ashtakshara mantra;

(Who) Possesseth the body of golden hue;

(Thou art the very) Personification of Brahma, Vishnu and Siva;

(And) The giver of wisdom and deliverance!"

— Sri Muthuswami Dikshitar's
Nava Graha Kirthana¹ devoted to the Sun,
"Soorya Moorthé".

The Sun is venerated universally as the visible god, appearing as he is, before the people all over the world everyday. All animate objects derive their source of energy from the Sun for their very existence. The Four Vedas and epics extol the glory of the Sun and many devotional offerings and mantras, such as Surya namaskara, devoted to Sun, exist. The Sun bears seven names, namely Savitha, Bhaga, Poosha, Vishnu, Kesi, Vaiswanaran and Vrishakapi.

Raghu Vamsa, the dynasty of Lord Rama starts with the Sun. When Lord Rama's repeated endeavours to slay Ravana failed, it was Aditya Hridayam, an exclusive supplication in praise of the Sun expounded by sage Agasthya which enabled Him to vanquish the mighty King of Lanka. The sacred mantra expounded by the sage would bring forth victory, give immense benefits, destroy all sins and eliminate mental worries and bodily afflictions. The Sun has a central place in the astrological science. The presiding Lord of the highly potent Gayatri Mantra is Savitha, the Sun. The solar energy has come to be recognised as a prime source of energy, which finds application in an extensive range of areas. And the Sun has been one of the oft-repeated themes in the literary compositions of poets.

Tiruttani

Arunagirinatha has recognised the greatness and glory of the Sun, judged by the repeated mention of the Sun and other mythological anecdotes linking Sun in many Thiruppugazh hymns and other works.

Rig Veda declares the Sun as one of the triple Fires (Agni). Arunagirinatha has referred to these triple Fires, the Sun, Moon and Agni, which are the eyes of Siva. In the Thiruppugazh hymn Kurudhi Mala Jala (Pazhani), the saint portrays Muruga, "as the Son of beautiful Daughter of matchless King of Mountains (Himavaan) and Who shares the left portion of the body of Siva, having three eyes, namely the Sun, Moon and Fire (Agni) and who is the Sister of Vishnu, the cloud-complexioned". The Goddess Parvathi manifests Herself between the Sun and Moon².

Arunagirinatha says, "The Lord (Muruga) possesses the Divine Form having brilliance as that of one crore Suns"³. "His holy and handsome Feet flash the brilliance as that of the Sun"⁴. "His Spear (Vel) possesses the solar radiance"⁵. The saint says with a magnificent poetical imagination that the dazzling Sun, perceiving the Lord's Spear, hides himself⁶. The Lord's six Faces shine with the radiance of the Sun⁷. Muruga wards off difficulties arising out of adverse movements of nine planets including Sun, says the saint in Kandhar Andhadhi (Stanza 48). In this, he refers to Saturn as the son of Sun. In line 22, he qualifies Yama, as the son of Sun.

While speaking of Muruga's mount, the Peacock and His banner, the Cock, the saint has made repeated references to the Sun. "When the mighty bird traversed through the whole Universe, the solar regions were shattered to pieces and they flew heavenward and each Sun rolled and fled seeing the (Lord's) peacock at their proximity and Muruga, amused at this sight, laughed"⁸. When the Cock, adorning Muruga's banner, roared, it hurt the Sun, who has the chariot driven by seven horses and it also scared the Eight Elephants⁹. While describing the radiance of Lord's mount, in Seerpadha Vaguppu, Arunagirinatha compares it to that of multicrore rising Suns.

Now let us have a look at the epical anecdotes relating to the Sun that are found in Thiruppugazh verses.

The episode of Siva shattering the teeth of Sun at the Daksha's *Yagna*¹⁰ is referred to in Thiruppugazh hymn "Adhi Madham Kakka" (Kancheepuram) and in Kandhar Andhadhi (Stanza 23). The saint says that Muruga bestows benefits to brahmins who offer Havirbhagam (cooked rice) to the Sun - the brahmins who protect Upadesa and sacred thread and who offer water to the red (radiant) Sun which acts as its weapon to remove the obstacles created by demons (asuras)¹¹.

The saint is reminded of the morning worship dedicated to the Sun, performed by sages, when he prays at Thiruvanaikka Shrine¹². Here he addresses his beloved deity as the Nephew of Sri Rama, Who killed the ferocious demoness Thataka, who came opposing Him while He was protecting the glorious Yagna venue in the forest inhabited by sages — the sages who, waking up at the morning, bathed and facing East, chanted meditational hymns on the Sun, *Aadityaya*¹³, and offered Tharpana (offer of water), did Gayatri japa and made floral offerings.

Addressing Muruga again as the Nephew of Ramachandra (Lord Rama) and while narrating Ramayana briefly in the Thiruppugazh song "Surul alaga bhaara" (Pazhani), Arunagirinatha refers to the help Lord Rama received from Hanuman, who was "the Minister at the Palace gate of Sugreeva, the son of Soorya"¹⁴. That Sugreeva belongs to the solar family (Soorya Amsa) is also mentioned in 'Karuvadaindhu' (Thirupparamkundram) and 'Gathiyai Vilakku' (Pazhani) Thiruppugazh songs.

Two interesting occurrences in the great Mahabharatha War, having a link with the Sun find mention in two Thiruppugazh songs.

The first one refers to the occasion when Lord Krishna hid the Sun with His Discus. It happened on the thirteenth day of the battle at Kurukshetra. Jayadratha of Kaurava Forces had killed Abhimanyu, the brave son of Arjuna. A greatly sorrowful and infuriated Arjuna swore that unless he slew Jayadratha on the following day before the sunset, he would jump into the fire and die. Lord Krishna happened to witness this scene. When Kauravas heard about Arjuna's intention, they kept Jayadratha the next day in a protected seclusion.

Suddenly the darkness enveloped the battlefield and every one thought that the Sun had set. What actually happened was that the Sun had been concealed by the Discus directed by Lord Krishna. Jayadratha came out and with the hint thrown by Lord Krishna, the Divine Charioteer of Arjuna, the latter slew the enemy who had taken the life of his son on the previous day. When the desire of Arjuna was fulfilled and his life under threat was saved, Lord Krishna directed the Discus to return to Him and the Sun shone brilliantly, revealing that the sunset had not yet occurred. Kauravas felt let down by Lord Krishna's action. This incident is narrated beautifully in just three lines in a Thiruppugazh hymn¹⁵.

The second incident deals with Lord Vishnu's giving darshan to Karna, who had been attacked by Arjuna. In Vayalur Thiruppugazh "Kuyilo Mozhi Ayilo", Arunagirinatha reminisces this scene and portrays Karna, the fallen hero, as the King of Angadesa and the son of "the Sun"¹⁶ who flashes thousands of dazzling rays, who is capable of erasing darkness at the sunrise and who moves in rapidity, being in possession of chariot driven by seven horses".

Thus we see in Arunagirinatha's Thiruppugazh and other masterpieces a liberal dose of devotional offerings and mythological anecdotes connecting the powerful and energy-giving Sun. The saint's respectful veneration of the Sun would equal that of those who worship Sun as the ultimate Parabrahma, the living god who makes his presence felt every moment. The survival sans the Sun is indeed inconceivable. As was mentioned in Chapter 1, Muruga's incarnation is comparable to the phenomenon of sunrise. One could imagine the magnitude of the brilliance of Muruga and His spear by the saint's description in several hymns that they equal the brilliance of multitudes of Suns. One single Sun situated at a far distant sky shines with extreme radiance and emits heat that is sometimes unbearable. The dazzle, potency and power of combination of several Suns that are attributed to Muruga proclaims the all-powerful nature of the Lord. Arunagirinatha establishes this truth admiringly in Thiruppugazh through repeated narrations linking Muruga and the Sun.

Footnotes

1. Sowraashtaarna mantraathmané Sowvarna Sivaroopaathmané Bhaaratheesa Hari Haraathmané Bhakthi Mukthi Vidharanaathmané.
2. "Nirai Tharu..." (Thirumayilai Thiruppugazh).
3. "Vidha misaindhini..." (Pazhani Thiruppugazh).
4. "Surudhi Mudi..." (Pazhani Thiruppugazh).
5. "Pancha Paathakan..." (Pazhani Thiruppugazh).
6. Vel Vaguppu (Stanza 6).
7. "Aruvarai....." (Vayiravivanam Thiruppugazh).
8. "Jothi Mandhram..." (Thiru Ambar Thiruppugazh).
9. Vedicchi Kavalan Vaguppu - Line 23.
10. Daksha, Uma's father performed Yagna without inviting Siva or offering Him the due share in the austerities. The enraged Siva caused extensive destruction to Daksha's Yagna.
11. Kandhar Andhadhi - Stanza 40.
12. "Velaippol Vizhi..." (Thiruppugazh).
13. Aaditya - The Sun.
14. 'Paruthi Magan', says Arunagirinatha. The legend has it that Rikshavirasa was a monkey which emerged out of tears of Brahma; when this monkey took a female shape, it had contact with Sun and thus Sugreeva was born. (Abhidhana Chintamani)
Ramayana also alludes to Sugreeva as the Sun's offspring.
15. "Seeraana Kolahala..." (Viralimalai).
16. While mentioning that Karna is the son of the Sun, Arunagirinatha reminds us of the legend of Kunti, who with the objective to test the mantra expounded by the Sage Durvaasa, chanted it meditating upon the Sun. The Sun instantly appeared before her leading to the birth of Karna. As Karna is the son of Sun, he has kavacha and pendants as those belonging to the latter.

CHAPTER 10

KAUMARA AND ARUNAGIRINATHA

*"Those who repeat the holy name of
 The Lord holding the triumphant spear, Friendly who is to (His) devotees and
 Who wiped out the demon race;
 Wouldn't get into the endless ocean of life
 Nor would they suffer in this earth anguish
 That stems from all-destroying penury."*¹

— Kandhar Alankaram
 Stanza 33

Saint Arunagirinatha, as was depicted in one of the previous chapters, regarded Lord Muruga as the ultimate Parabrahma. To him Muruga was "the be-all and the end-all" and he treaded along the path of selfless love and unflinching devotion with the sole object to achieve his goal. In fact the mission to spread the universal love through the medium of Thiruppugazh was assigned to Arunagirinatha by the Lord Himself. The sequences relating to other deities like Ganesa, Siva, Shakti and Vishnu appearing in his hymns ultimately converge into a common Entity, namely Muruga. The singular and steadfast devotion of the saint towards Muruga is understandable, for, as we have seen earlier, Muruga was his Saviour and His intervention at a crucial moment changed the very course of the life of the saint - from a distressful and disgusted living to a highly elevated and blissful way of life.

Arunagirinatha never felt satisfied with his singing the glory of his favourite deity. However much he may sing His praise, the saint always felt that they were inadequate. His unfulfilled desire gets explicit expression in his hymns. For instance, the saint cries out passionately at Muruga residing in Devanoor² shrine:

"When shall I sing Thy praise to my heart's content, with my mind firmly fixed on Thee, as Skandha, as the great (Lord) Who has the Peacock as Mount, and as the Friend Who is held dear (both) by the deer-like Devayaana, who was seated on the boisterous, mountainous, heavenly elephant (Ayraavatha) and the deer-like hunter girl (Valli), who resided in the hill (Vallimalai)?"

Indeed the divine attributes of Muruga are so vast and limitless that none can ever hope to succeed in his endeavours to glorify them to the full extent. Arunagirinatha's prayer referred to in the preceding paragraph corroborates this phenomenon.

Arunagirinatha's fine narrations on Muruga's handsomeness, His valour and heroic deeds, elegance of Lord's divine physical form, and innumerable epical references pervade through all Thiruppugazh songs and other compositions. The saint's excellent delineation of the distinctive divine features of his favourite deity could be seen in his Thiruppugazh hymn, "Vizhaiyum manidharaiyum". The description resembles a miniature Paadhaadhi Kesa Sthothra (worshipful piece describing Head to Foot). In Arunagirinatha's perception as contained in this verse, Kumara's (Muruga's) six faces are inexplicable; His forehead is attractive; He has twelve long delicate flower-like eyes; ornaments like chutti, which are interspersed with gems, adorn Him; twelve pendants (kundalaas) shine dazzlingly; earrings are set with diamonds; His arms resemble lotus flowers; He wears a golden sacred thread; His adornments around the waist are worthy of laudations; His twin holy Feet (are venerable), the anklets are studded with pearls; (He is seated on) the gorgeous peacock, holding spear in His crimson Hand - the Lord is very embodiment of an all-pervasive beauty.³

In the Thiruppugazh hymn "Bhuvikkun", Arunagirinatha furnishes twelve brilliant appellations of Muruga, all ending with a common word, "SWAMI", which in Tamil means 'Lord'. Muruga, as portrayed in this laudatory piece, is the Lord Who :

- appeared as the Son of Siva;
- dances atop the peacock;
- resides gloriously in our hearts;

- enables His devotees to see the brilliance of His Divine Form;
- cuts at the very root of births;
- smashes all sins;
- shines as the essence of austerities that sages perform;
- pardons (devotees') omissions;
- restored the heavens to gods and ensured them stability;
- annihilated the demons;
- has ordained the mission for me; and
- appeared in Saravana and acted as the Preceptor to His Father.

In a *Viralimalai Thiruppugazh*⁴, Arunagirinatha presents an elegant portrayal of Muruga. The Lord's six holy Faces, which are worshipped by gods, carry the crowns studded with fine and distinct precious stones of nine varieties. His twelve shoulders reflect the prowess of mighty Veera Lakshmi. The two holy Feet exude the sweet smell of kadappa flowers, accompanied by wasps' singing of Sree Raga. The limitlessly affectionate hunter-girl Valli, and Devayanai, the daughter of Indra having cloud as mount, remain at the right and the left sides of the Lord, as stable support to devotees. The Lord's Vel (Spear) dispenses justice after probe. The saint also remembers Muruga's mount, peacock. Muruga's divine form, as depicted by Arunagirinatha, is the very personification of the Absolute Jnana, handsome and famed. It is so handsome that the saint regrets that the Brahma, the Creator, has not given him four thousand eyes to see and worship the Lord.⁵

As mentioned in Chapter 1, Muruga is the very fountain-head of the three branches of Tamil literature—Prose (Iyal), Verse (Isai) and Theatre (Natakam). Arunagirinatha reiterates this aspect in several Thiruppugazh hymns, Verse (Isai) is an important concomitant of Fine Arts. Muruga loves music - "Isaip priyan" as Arunagirinatha calls Him. In a *Pazhani Thiruppugazh*⁶, the saint addresses the Lord as "the Lover of Music Who destroys the penury and enmity of those who expound and recite Thiruppugazh and blesses them for success." In Kandhar

Andhadhi (Stanza 98), Muruga is depicted as 'Raaga Vinodha' or One Who loves music. In Thiruvavinan Kudi Thiruppugazh, 'Naada Bindu Kalaadhi', the saint portrays Muruga as 'Geetha Kinkini Paadha', since the anklets adorning the Lord's Feet are tuneful. As the saint addresses Muruga as 'Isaip priyan' and 'Raaga Vinodha', and he himself fantasises offering Him a garland, mentally created by him in his tongue⁷ (Paa-malai), it becomes clear that the Lord gets immensely pleased when devotees sing Thiruppugazh in melodious tunes.

Not only does Muruga love to hear music but He Himself is adept in the art of music. We come to know of this fact from what Arunagirinatha says in Puya Vaguppu (Stanza 17). Says he, "the holy Hands (of Muruga) which aptly play the mellifluous ragas, Kaisikai, Gowda Varali, Dhanyasi, Dhesi, Bhairavi, Kucchhari and Panchuram on the Veena with knowledge of the grammar of these ragas."⁸ There is a reference to Muruga's playing flute and Veena in Thirutthani in Skandha Puranam.

It is noteworthy that several Thiruppugazh songs possess the characteristics of prayers in the form of Namaavalis. In Namaavalis or archanas in Sanskrit, names of deity Who is worshipped usually end with 'Namo' or 'Namo Namah'. A scintillating Thiruppugazh verse, which has assumed the structure of archana with appellations of Muruga ending in Namo Namah, starts with 'Veda Vitthagaa'. What is remarkable about this verse is that in addition to the prayers of Muruga, there are in-built worshipful praises of the Goddess too in this piece. The prayers in their entirety read thus :

"I worship Thee, worship Thee, the Lord Who possesseth profound knowledge of Vedas!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, the most Valiant who holdeth Velayudha!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who directed the frightening Chakra Vyuha (in the battle-field)!

The Brave Who constitutes Bindhu-Naadha!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who hath the holy Feet matching lotus flowers!

Kaumara and Arunagirinatha

97

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who wears garlands of Koodhala flowers!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, the Lord with complexion of clouds, mounted on the peacock!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who is the Essence of Jnana of those who hath attained the inexplicable State of Jnana!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who shines as the Five Elements⁹ and others!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who constitutes a Whole!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who resides in all lofty and unpolluted mountains!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Who possesseth broad shoulders, double of six¹⁰!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Whose handsome chest is adorn'd with ornaments!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, the Darling Offspring of Mahadevi (Parvathi), Saraswati¹¹ seated on lotus,"

before Whom

Beauteous Lakshmi seated on lotus with red petals,

Indrani¹² and the whole celestial dames (gathered along with them)

Stand and sing the praises every day

As "the Goddess adept in Vedas!

"Awesome!, Detached!

"Who holdeth in hand Veena, sublime and elegant!

"Who in the mighty Meru (mountain) abides gracefully !

"Who shares Siva's Body!

"Who hath applied sweet-smelling substances on the body!

"Primeval Shakti! Goddess who is eulogised by Saama Veda!

"Parvathi! Neeli! Goddess who adorns specked snakes that are huge!

"Mother! The Everlasting! and

"Durga with matted locks!"

I worship Thee, worship Thee, (Muruga), Who won fame by slaying Soora!

I worship Thee, worship Thee, Lord! Who is treasured by Vedic scholars!"

Arunagirinatha in several of hymns gratefully remembers the Upadesa he received from Muruga and darshan the Lord gave in various shrines. The overwhelmed saint, standing before the deity at Kudavaayil,¹³ recalls his favourite Lord manifesting as Preceptor (Guru) before him and giving him the assignment to expound to the world, the stable, lofty and unknowable Parama maaya which stands revealed as Veda, (Tamil) prose and as its extended form, and possessing multi-lingual linkages; maaya that forms the very fundamental as well as the Centre and which is greatly supportive, renunciative, moralistic, expansive and the resultant; maaya which constitutes the bliss experienced by sanctified Jnaanis, and which breaks forth as cloud and the downpour, as the Sun shooting out rays of seven colours, the Moon, as the plentiful, widespread Stars, Ether, and Light; and maaya which represents a stage where days and nights do not recur. Arunagirinatha wonders whether he got this special favour as a result of the austerities he performed in his previous births.

While praying at Neruvoor¹⁴ shrine of the Lord, Arunagirinatha remembers the occasion when Muruga appeared before him in Vayaloor, seated on the peacock and conferred His divine blessings on him; the grateful saint says that he would never forget in his wakeful and dreamy states, the lotus-like holy Feet (perceived by him then), where because of the fragrance that emanates, a variety of bees swarm about. He says yet in another song¹⁵, "(Muruga!) Whether I sink in the ocean or I lose my self, I wouldn't forget the majestic and matchless Upadesa Thou offered to me with compassion, once in Arunainagar (Thiruvannamalai) and Thy twin holy Feet."

Similar thanks-giving is found in Thiruppugazh hymn "Murugucheri kuzhal" (Thiruvannamalai) too.

A Thiruppugazh hymn sung at Vazhuvoor¹⁶ incorporates details relating to Arunagirinatha's receiving Thiruvadi Deeksha (Blessings of Lord's twin Feet) as also Upadesa. In this prayer, the saint has given a graphic illustration of many favours he received at the gracious Hands of Muruga. The saint reminisces the Lord's placing of His Feet on his head in the early days of his life, the Lord's rendering Upadesa to him lovingly and His teaching of triple branches of Tamil (Iyal, Isai and Natakam) to him, which the saint says, even gods did not know. The saint acknowledges that it was Muruga who put him in the company of Lord's devotees and Who gave him the blissful divine Yoga experience and Who manifested before him fondly, sitting on the back of the peacock with brilliant plumage.

In the Seergazhi Thiruppugazh "Kongulaaviya", the saint recalls his beholding the Lord's twin holy Feet adorned with brilliant and melodious anklets and the Chakshu Deeksha (the blessing by casting a glance) he received from his favourite Lord and affirms that he would never forget in his sleepy and wakeful moments this divine gesture, which was aimed at ending the increase in the futile days of his living.

Arunagirinatha presents a beautiful picture of the divine appearance of Muruga in his Thiruppugazh verse "Poomaad-hurame Ani", sung at Seergazhi. The song is in effect a quintessence of Skandha Puranam and is marked for its literary elegance. The epical anecdotes relating to panicky gods rushing to Lord Siva for help when threatened by demons led by Soora, the fervent entreaties of the harassed celestial subjects to the Lord for removal of their distress, the divine emergence of Muruga, Muruga's whirlwind trip around the seven worlds, the annihilation of Soora are all brought out admirably in this hymn; besides it contains the saint's own sincere prayers to Muruga. The hymn in its entirety, goes thus :

"*Thirumaal, Who contains Sri Lakshmi*¹⁷ in His chest,

(Brahma) The four-mouthed who recites Vedas,

(Indra) The leader of legion of gods

And sages and others;
 Went into hiding
 Frightened by the mighty battling demons
 Who explored not the (holy) Texts
 That quest and explain
 The essence of spoken Vedas;
 Assemble did they all terror-stricken
 And adorning (Siva) with garlands of paeans¹⁸
 Entreated (the Lord) to bless them with an Adversary
 (To destroy the inimical demons)
 And prayed :
 "Oh, Lord! lustrous is Thy Body
 Spread with the Ash sacred,
 And Thy matted locks are elegant with Honey-filled Konrai flowers,
 Jhaanvi¹⁹ with water bubbling handsomely,
 The comely Crescent, Cobra and pomegranate flower
 And leaves such as Bilvaa, Naaval and Vilaa;
 Thou alone art our succour!"
 "(Siva) out of boundless compassion
 Gave Thee, Velavaa!²⁰ (to the tormented world)!
 "(Oh, Muruga!) Mounted on the blue-feathered peacock
 Thou in a moment
 Came round the earth and six (other) worlds!
 "Thou hath been the Commander Supreme of gods!"
 Roams about this spiteful man Devoid of Thy loving worship as
 " The Lord Who is handsome as Manmatha²¹

" Whose six Faces match six (full) moons,

" Who wears the fragrant kadappa²² garlands

" And who possesseth dazzling brilliance!".

" Protect me, Velavaa! the Lord

Who resides in the cloud-enveloped Seergazhi

Who holds the sharp spear

Which smashed once (Soora) the demon king!".

As was mentioned earlier, the primary purpose of Muruga's divine emergence in this Universe was to annihilate the demons led by Soora and free gods from their captivity. *"Having gone astray from the righteous path, Soora ruled the kingdom making the Sun, Moon, Yama, Indra, the Fire God (Agni), Nirrithi, Kubera, Vishnu Who wears the garland of dark Thulsi and the eminent Brahma, one and all - run about".*²³ Arunagirinatha refers to the heroic acts of the Lord and His vanquishment over the tyrannical demons in several of his hymns. The author came across a hymn,²⁴ where the saint has given a graphic account of the destruction of Soora and his men. With the valiant Muruga attacking the forces of demons, "the heads (of demons) that were adorned with garlands reddened (with the flow of blood); (their) protruding sharp teeth glowed white and (their) victorious shoulders blackened; the opposing Soora's chest was crushed and became charred; spirits leapt with joy at the sight of heaps of flesh strewn over the battle ground; demons collapsed on the ground, screaming in anguish²⁵ with scorched throats, blood flowed as a stream; the ocean shrank and dried with the heat of Spear (of the Lord); the (Krowncha) mountain which had indulged in tricks came down tumbling, pious men (gods, sages etc) sang the praises of glory²⁶ of Muruga."

What an impressive presentation of the battle scene! The intensity of Muruga's ire towards the foes and the supreme power of His 'Vel'²⁷ could well be imagined from a reading of the saint's narration. The Lord's all-powerful weapon (Vel) not only pierced through the golden-tinged Krowncha mountain²⁸, it did not also spare "the demon (Soora) who out of fear, jumped into the sea where the sharks collide with white conches and wash them away, and hid himself."²⁹ Arunagirinatha brings to our notice a notable anecdote relating to Skandha Purana, namely Veerabaahu Thevar's diplomatic mission to Soora in another hymn.³⁰ In this hymn, the saint eulogises Muruga, as the Lord who is favourite of Veerabaahu Thevar, who, withdrawing from the Lord's forces, swiftly crossed the seaway between Tiruchendhoor and Mahendrapuri, the capital city of the demon king and entered the city as the emissary of Muruga without any fear of the demons and returned as elegantly as the Sun with red rays.

In Chapter 1, a detailed account of Muruga's holy wedlock with Valli was given. Valli was the foster-daughter of King Nambeesa of Chithoor, the head of hunter tribe. Even at the very young age, Valli had set her heart on Muruga and was determined that she would have none other than Muruga as her Lord Paramount. Simple and childlike³¹, she had surrendered absolutely at the lotus Feet of the Lord, having no iota of the sense of 'I' and 'my' in her mind. Identifying herself as an integral part of Muruga, the Almighty, she pined for fusion with the Divinity. This is indeed the ideal and sure way of attracting Muruga and winning His infinite grace. As Arunagirinatha has underscored in several of his hymns, Muruga readily and willingly responds to the appeal of devotees showing absolute and unqualified devotion towards Him.

Arunagirinatha refers to a unique phenomenon called 'Valli Sanmaarga' (the noble path adopted by Valli) in a Thiruppugazh song³² sung at Vallimalai - the holy spot where Muruga wed Valli after a series of interesting encounters. We understand from the saint's lines in this verse that it was the concepts of 'Valli Sanmaarga' that Muruga expounded to His Father, at the request of the latter. Arunagirinatha glorifies Muruga here as the youthful Lord Who in the wink of an eye speedily preached into the ears of His Father, the true hidden meaning of 'Valli Sanmaarga', when the latter (Siva) requested for it.

Thiruppugazh songs abound with narrations relating to Muruga's various playful activities as a prelude to His marrying Valli. The hymns also reveal how dear the Lord held Valli, for the reasons stated earlier.

It was in pursuance of the news conveyed by Sage Narada that Muruga set about His mission to wed Valli. Arunagirinatha reminisces this part of the story in some of Thiruppugazh hymns.³³ The Lord's assuming different forms, viz. hunter, bangle-vendor (Chetti), Vengai tree and trembling old man, before getting the hand of Valli in marriage is referred to in a Pazhani supplication.³⁴ The saint calls Muruga as "the skillful Skandha Who transformed Himself as the Vengai tree in the Thinaï forest to the astonishment of the mountain-dwelling red-complexioned hunters who exclaimed "what a wonder!" (at the sight of the giant tree which was non-existent) and as handsome Vela Who is dear to Vallinaayagi," in one Thiruppugazh song.³⁵

Muruga's extreme affection towards Valli comes into sharper focus in a hymn sung by the saint in Thiruverakam.³⁶ Says he in the concluding part of the verse : "Muruga! Thou art the highly endearing youthful Lord, Who in a happy state of mind said to Valli, brought up in the hunter tribe which reigned the jungles: "Having cast a spell on me, thou doth not realise that the arrow that is thine eye stretching out to thy ear pierces into my heart; give up thy pride and bestow thy grace for the deliverance of my soul!."

Arunagirinatha glorifies the holy Hands of Lord Muruga in the adorable hymn "Puya Vaguppu" as the Hands which engaged in leelas with Valli in Thinaï forest; which held the Banner of 'Cock'; which played delectable tunes in Veena; which possess the inexplicable beauty, dazzle, valour and benevolence; which pierced the chest of the horse-faced bhootha to help Nakkeerar³⁷; which ripped apart Soora's chest and became reddish with blood; which even surpass Chintamani, cluster of clouds, Kamadhenu, Sangha Nidhi, Padhuma Nidhi and the quintuple divine trees in granting boons to devotees; which drive away the messengers of God of Death helter-skelter in order to put an end to the cycle of births of devotees; which totally suppress the five sensory organs which shoot up and make one say egoistically "all actions were completed because of my efforts, not with the help of others!" and which slew the mighty army of demons, restored the heavenly kingdom to Indra and protected the land of gods who surrendered unto the Lord. Arunagirinatha towards the end of this admirable supplication says in all humility that the Lord's holy Hands accepted and wore without any disparagement the garlands that are the silly-worded verses in matchless Tamil created by him with the right of a bonded slave, meditating upon the holy Feet of Muruga.

The holy Feet of Muruga are the solace and comfort of His devotees who are subjected to a variety of trials and tribulations in this world. Arunagirinatha on several occasions underlines the potency of the Lord's holy Feet, which alone are capable of giving deliverance to the human beings who are shrouded in the veil of illusion. Muruga's holy Feet are capable of even changing the course of destiny of human beings as ordained by Brahma at the time of their births; Arunagirinatha tells us so: *"Because of the touch of Muruga's holy Feet, the writings of Ayan (Brahma) on my head here have been erased."*³⁸

The Lord's holy Feet are an enigma to those who try to comprehend them. While singing before the Lord at Uttharameroor,³⁹ the saint reminds us that Muruga's holy Feet are incomprehensible to "Vedas, Upanishads, Aagamaas, the Guards of eight Directions, seers, Seven unblemished sages, the triple Luminaries, the unexplainable Prakriti and Purusha, the nine Protectors (Naathaas), subjects of distant starry world, vedic scholars, crores of fine cults, gods, hundred crores of disciples, Vishnu, Brahma and one crore masses of people, who all congregated and endeavoured repeatedly to comprehend Them."

Arunagirinatha emphasises the glory of the holy Feet of the Lord in yet another hymn⁴⁰, which is characterised by a high degree of poetic imagination, besides being pregnant with meaning. Here he fantasises an offering of a garland, created by himself, at the Feet of Muruga. This is just not an ordinary garland. This is how the saint describes his floral offering:

"Muruga! would this man intensely devoted to Thee, get the privilege of offering at Thine graceful, coral-like crimson holy Feet, a flower garland which is of my mental creation - a beauteous garland having at its centre the lotus flower that is my mind, made artistically at the place that is (my) tongue, using love as the thread and applying on it the sweet aroma of Jnana - the garland (thus created) shining brilliantly and the bee of faultless wisdom buzzing around it!". The saint by narrating the fantasy of offering the garland made mentally,⁴¹ points out in effect the essential requirements for god-realisation; these are : intense devotion, conquest of the mind which is the source of wandering thoughts, selfless love, the tongue that is attuned to singing of the glory of the Lord, Jnana or knowledge about the attributes of the Almighty, the wisdom, the discriminating faculty, and finally the absolute surrender unto the Holy Feet of the Lord.

While Arunagirinatha has delineated the factors which help the mortals in winning the everlasting grace of Muruga, human beings, despite being endowed with proper faculties, often fail to utilise them to their benefit and thus continue to suffer indefinitely. The saint refers to this phenomenon indirectly when he laments:

*"Oh, the zealous and mighty, handsome Lord of Thanigai, Who pierced the mountain (krowncha)! What harm did I do to Vedha (Brahma), who is never unjust, for his creating exclusively for me the head that does not bow in reverence at Thy holy Feet, the eyes that do not see (Thy handsome Form), the hands that do not offer worship (at Thy holy Feet) and the tongue that does not sing (Thy glory)? "*⁴²

Arunagirinatha's devotional outpouring which goes under the caption of Seer Paadha Vaguppu relates entirely to Muruga's twin holy Feet and their matchless potency. This composition is regarded as most sacred by devotees to whom the Lord's holy Feet are far more paramount than the Lord Himself. And there are perfectly valid reasons for this perception, judged by the saint's lucid descriptions of the Lord's lotus Feet, in Seer Paadha Vaguppu, a few of which are enumerated in the succeeding paragraph.

Muruga's holy Feet radiate with brilliance of hundred crore Suns emerging from the ocean, on the back of the Peacock (the Lord's mount) at the end of yuga (aeon); They serve as a boat that enables me (says the saint) to cross the ocean of births which is a repository of sinful deeds and where I am tossed about by the waves that are wife and children; the holy Feet which shine at the top of beautiful crowns of great gods; the Feet which are imperishable; well-suited to my (says the saint) mind; the Feet which strolled along the Thinai forest which was the abode of young Valli, well-trained in the art of shooing away parrots which flew in to eat the ripe Thinai corn, seated on the rostrum raised by hunters; the holy Feet that drive away the messengers of the God of Death defeating their mission; They show the way to attain the divine grace; Feet which help in fulfilment of desires; They strike at the root of innumerable hurdles that confront the devotees; the Feet which exude flowery fragrance; They bless (devotees) in securing the first place in all (arts); and They get drenched in the flow of tears of devotees who sing His glory, dance (in ecstasy), shed tears and surrender unto His Feet imploring: "Muruga! The six-faced Lord who was breast-fed by six Kirthigai maidens! Kumaraa!".

For devotees of Muruga, the Lord's hallowed weapon, Vel (Spear) has been a source of strength and solace and they worship the divine and powerful weapon of the Lord with as much earnestness as they worship the Lord. In fact in many-a-shrine, Vel is installed as an alternate to the idol of the Lord, and is worshipped.

Arunagirinatha has sung the praises of Vel repeatedly in his psalms. It is Jnana Vel as stated in one of the earlier chapters, given to Muruga by His holy Mother Parvathi with blessings to annihilate Soora and his army.

Arunagirinatha says:

"Realising that the soola held by the Lord (Siva) whose throat contains the lethal venom, the dazzling, triumphant Discus in the Hands of handsome Thirumaayan (Vishnu) and the Kulisaayudha of the King of gods (Indra) are (all) incapable of striking at the root of Soora and his kinsmen, gods and the Four-headed Lord (Brahma) stood and beseeched (Thee Muruga): "Oh, the Warrior! Let victory be unto Thee!"; the prodigious Vel (which surpassed all the three divine weapons in the Hands of Siva, Vishnu and Indra) possessing an unparalleled might pierced through seven mountains and the body of Soora in the wink of an eye "⁴³.

The saint calls the Lord's Spear *Vancha Vel*⁴⁴ (spiteful spear) - the spear which protects the virtuous who take refuge under Him and punishes the wicked⁴⁵. It acts as poison to the demons and nectar to gods⁴⁶.

In Vel Vaguppu, an exclusive composition devoted to Vel, Arunagirinatha provides a vivid picture of the Lord's sharp-pointed spear. Apart from describing the material attributes of the divine weapon, the saint brings out its several characteristics which reveal that it is 'Vancha Vel' referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Muruga's Vel, according to Arunagirinatha, resembles the eyes of Valli, the Lord's divine Consort. It follows that Vel would give the devotees all the favours that accrue out of Valli's gracious look. It has the brilliance of Sun, Moon and the fire that suppresses the ocean waters.

Vel protects the virtuous in several ways. The saint reminisces the Nakkeerar episode.⁴⁷ Did not the powerful weapon in the hands of the Lord free His favourite poet-devotee Nakkeerar who was locked up in the mountain-cave? The anguished poet's fervent outpouring which came in the form of *Thirumurugatruppada*i prompted the Lord to send out His Vel which pierced through the impenetrable mountain. The Lord's Vel again went to the rescue of Indra; the King of Gods and shattered the shackles that bound his legs. Vel wards off obstacles and does away with the fruits of past deeds of gods, sages, Indra, Brahma and mortals. The sacred weapon would stand by the devotees, as Siva's Lotus Feet, when Yama, the Lord of Death, appears before them. It would provide food to all the living beings in the Universe.

Arunagirinatha says that the Lord's Vel would "guard me, nights and days, from all directions when I walk alone." This is true of all devotees who worship Muruga.

Let us look at the way Vel punishes the wicked as Arunagirinatha narrates. Highly inimical to the vicious demons who dared to confront its divine Possessor, Vel provided food of human flesh (of demons who were killed in battle with Soora) to the delight of ghosts which fed on them and it wore the intestines of demons like garlands of red flowers. With an extreme poetic aesthetics, Arunagirinatha tells us that the transcendent Vel smashed the ocean bounds, emptied the waters and after plugging the breaches it rejoiced by filling the area with the blood of demons. It flew speedily as a winged-mountain and attacked the demons even as their bodiless heads giggled and gnashed their teeth, their eyes displayed vacant looks and throats shrieked. The saint cautions that Vel would strike at the root of the kindred of those who display malice towards devotees of Muruga; and, it would remain the mainstay of devotees.

Arunagirinatha reminds us of the greatness of Thiruppugazh too in this hymn. He tells us that Vel would start off with rage to put an end to the enmities facing those who recite the inexplicably glorious Thiruppugazh and would help in stabilising Dharma.

Next to Vel, it is the Peacock, the holy mount of Muruga, that is venerated by devotees with utmost religious fervour. The beautiful bird which bears on its back the brave Lord is fortunate in that it is one of the three sacred spots⁴⁸ which experience the heavenly bliss arising out of the tender touch of Muruga's elegant Feet. Perhaps the avian creature is more fortunate than the other two since the touch of the Lord's Feet on its body is not restricted to only one time, but it occurs on every occasion the Lord travels which is not infrequent. The Lord's whirlwind trip around the Universe in a bid to get the gifted fruit from His Father⁴⁹ and His rushing to His ardent devotee Arunagirinatha, who challenging his opponent Sambhandhandan had promised Muruga's manifestation to King Prabudadevaraya⁵⁰ are two such momentous occasions. Arunagirinatha constantly remembers the divine Bird and praises its prettiness and prowess in several Thiruppugazh songs and fervently prays for the darshan of the Lord, along with His two Consorts seated on the back of His gorgeous Peacock. We get a clear mental picture of the Peacock by the vivid descriptions given by the saint in his hymns.

The Lord's mammoth Peacock is as huge as the Meru mountain with its height scaling that of Thirumaal (Vishnu) in His cosmic form (*Visvaroop*a). It flashes the bluish dazzle of river Yamuna which emerged from the holy Hands of the Goddess. Its feet are adorned with pearls and corals. The velocity with which the mighty bird traversed the entire Universe surrounded by oceans in a split second made the unparalleled elephant (Ganesa) trumpet. The plumaged bird dances gracefully to the delight of Nataraja, Who performs the cosmic dance.

Arunagirinatha portrays the unsurpassed strength and greatness of the Lord's mount, when he says, "Oh, the Peacock! Thou art the triumphant and glorious Muruga's (mount)! If only the Lord permits Thou to go alone to mitigate the hardships of the worldly beings, thou would cross the Meru mountain in the North, go to the other side of the ocean by spreading thine plumage in a round shape, travel beyond the Sun and the Moon and the golden-coloured Chakravaala mountain!"⁵¹.

The saint further adds: "The shocks caused by the attacks of the portly Peacock of the Lord of Thiruchengodu (Muruga), with thunderous roar on the hoods of Adisesha make the following lie scattered at the bird's feet, namely, the cluster of carbuncle gems, Thirumaal who protects the Universe (and Who reclines on the Snake-Bed), His Discus and the Conch Shell"⁵².

Arunagirinatha has extolled the glory of Muruga's divine avian carrier in a scintillating work captioned Mayil Vaguppu. It was mentioned in an earlier chapter⁵³ that when no supplication succeeded in moving the young Muruga from His Mother's lap, it was Arunagirinatha's Mayil Vaguppu dedicated to the Lord's mount that ultimately brought the Lord to the scene, much to the relief of His devotee. In this composition, the saint says that "the Peacock which remains worshipping the Lotus Feet of Lord of Thiruchendhoor (Muruga) lovingly", "lets off the two venomous serpents (Raahu and Kethu) which cause distress to the Sun and the Moon by devouring and then releasing them"⁵⁴, "when the two serpents cry out of fear and yell that the Six-Faced Lord (Muruga), the Five-Faced Lord (Siva) and the Elephant-faced Lord (Ganesa) are the Gods Whom they worship; struck forcefully at the thousand and outstretched gem-studded hoods of Anantha (Adisesha) on whom the primeval Lord, Thirumaal, who distributed nectar to gods on churning of Ocean (of Milk) reclines and make them bleed profusely and its entire body to quiver; "fell uproariously on the fierce Garuda, which snatched the Naaga paasa

(snake noose) flung by Indrajit, the son of Raavana, the dear brother of Vibheeshana, at Lakshmana, the inimitable younger brother of Rama, adept in all vedas; "tilled the soil of the entire Universe with talons of its feet even as the giant Adisesha carrying it swooned; "flew with fiery rage subduing the Eight Serpents (Ashta Naagas) living in eight directions as their boundaries; "humbled the joyous Swan with coral-like crest, which had worshipped fittingly with floral offerings the supereminent (Brahma) who had married the Maiden seated on the lotus flower (Saraswati) and which adorned the Banner of Brahma; "won all the battles waged even as bhoothas, Gandharvaas, Naadhaas and Kimpurushaas along with the entire body of ganaas stood worshipping and pounced upon several herds of elephants which felt as though they had lost their lives; and "made loud noise hearing which fear-stricken serpents worn by Siva, having an eye on the forehead, Who looked angrily at the upright Manmatha, the possessor of five flowery darts, and burnt his handsome body, collected and went inside the pits; (having done so, the Peacock) said to the Cock : "Hail thee (friend) who bodes the end of night!" and explained to it which stood in harmony with it, the war techniques that led to its (Peacock's) victory.⁵⁵"

We shall now delve for a while into yet another magnificent masterpiece of Saint Arunagirinatha - "Kandhar Anubhoothi". This collection of hymns comprising 51 stanzas reflects the saint's blissful experience of Jnana (Knowledge) flowing from Muruga's divine grace. This unique composition brings forth the loftiness of the Lord's Upadesa to the saint and the supreme efficacy of Muruga's grace on the devotees.

Kandhar Anubhoothi is a prayer which richly deserves to be recited as often as possible. This encompasses the quintessence of philosophical thoughts that have arisen in Arunagirinatha's mind with the advent of Muruga's grace on him. The hymns are marked for their literary grace, meaning and substance, besides devotional fervour in an abundant measure. The constant chanting of this prayer, verily considered as a mantra text, would help human beings in casting off their ignorance and delusion and in realising the Eternal Truth of the Supreme Parabrahma.

In this composition, Arunagirinatha makes entreaties to his beloved Lord Muruga to free him from the worldly bondages of spouse and children. The saint laments that despite his repeating the holy name of Arumuga, he had not been able to win over delusion that is the world and wonders if the lotus flower that is the Lord's holy Feet would ever blossom in his mind that is hard as a rock. He advises us that if we are to destroy sorrow and pain that afflict us, it is necessary that we give charity (Daana) and meditate upon the holy Feet of the Lord holding the sharp-edged spear (Vel). The saint implores Muruga to appear before him seated on His peacock when Yama, the Lord of Death, presents himself on the back of black buffalo to capture him. The saint reminds us that Muruga has no births or deaths and reminisces that when the Lord directed him "to remain silent", he forgot about all the worldly things. He tells his mind to eschew all desires and get rescued by remembering the Lord's holy Feet. Arunagirinatha exhorts us to sing the glory of Muruga, since it is He who has given us learning and knowledge; it is our duty to surrender these in His service because He has given us these faculties and this alone will be the wise act.

Reminding us about the fleeting nature of life, Arunagirinatha deplors his destiny because of which he is engrossed in the life in this world which resembles lightning which appears and vanishes in a moment's time. He says that the experience of self which has discarded the egoism and stands aloof stably is inexplicable.

The saint has offered a 'defamatory prayer' (Nindhaa Sthuthi) in this composition, when he says "Oh, the God of peacock mount! Thou hath destined I should fall into the mighty whirlwind that is this miserable life. I don't know the reasons for being trapped so; could there have been any faulty actions on my part in the past (to justify this)? Be that as it may, long live Thee!". The Valli Sanmaarga ideology referred to earlier⁵⁶ also finds an indirect reference in stanza 36 of Kandhar Anubhoothi where the saint requests Muruga to preach him what the Lord preached to Siva.

Underscoring the greatness of Sat Sangh (assembly of virtuous men), Arunagirinatha asks his mind to join the congregation of holy men engaged in service of Lord Muruga and strike at the root of egoism with knowledge that is patience. The saint bemoans: "When would the triple desires⁵⁷ perish, thereby putting an end to the mighty seven births!"⁵⁸". This gives us a precious clue that abandonment of attachment over mundane objects leads to cessation of cycle of births entailing different life forms. We learn from one of the requests of the saint to Muruga that he does not wish to go and beg before those men who do not disseminate to others the knowledge they have acquired out of their learning. Declaring that Muruga is his Mother and Father, the saint makes a fervent appeal to Muruga to wipe out all his mental worries. The saint wonders whether he would achieve the exalted position that transcends the thirty-six Thathivaas (Principles). Muruga, says Arunagirinatha, is dear to Jnanis who have shed the bonds arising out of worldly attachments and attained a state when the darkness of Ajnana (ignorance) has been removed.

The saint concludes this supplication seeking the grace of Muruga who manifests Himself as the Eternal Teacher (Guru), as one with Form, the Formless, the Existent, the Non-Existent, the Fragrance, the Flower (that spreads the fragrance), the Gem, the Dazzle (that emerges out of the gem), the Embryo, the Life Force, the Shelter and the Destiny. This concluding stanza enumerates all the essential attributes of the omnipotent and omnipresent Muruga.

The message that Arunagirinatha conveys to us through Kandhar Anubhoothi, in sum, is : Discard egoism, throw off worldly attachments and desires remembering the transcendence of life, seek the company of devotees of Muruga and sing His glory - these will lead to a lasting blissful state of the mind and body, in perfect unison with God - the Anubhoothi stage which Arunagirinatha attained.

One can analyse the facets of Kaumara cult reflected in Thiruppugazh and other verses endlessly. So vast and varied are these that it is beyond one's capabilities to contain them in their entirety even in a treatise. To Arunagirinatha, Muruga is the sole and absolute Parabrahma. He did not think of any other deity except in association with Muruga. The saint derived immense pleasure, pleasure that is ever-lasting, in singing the glory of his favourite Lord. This he does in his own distinctive style - a style which proclaims his rare individuality. It is this stamp of individuality that makes the soul-stirring Thiruppugazh songs instantly appealing to one and all. And the deep bhakti bhava (devotional fervour) makes them doubly attractive.

Muruga, as stated earlier, symbolises youthfulness, handsomeness, valour and fragrance. Arunagirinatha gives wide-ranging narrations on these attributes in several hymns. These narrations are combined with apt epical anecdotes. In fact one can easily visualise the scenes that the saint is describing, while singing the verses. Arunagirinatha reiterates on several occasions that Muruga is ever-compassionate to His devotees and fulfils their wishes in an abundant measure. As if to bring home this fact to us, he gratefully reminisces the occasions when Lord Muruga bestowed His grace on him successively. These brief autobiographical sketches serve as a pointer - that those who make sincere entreaties to Muruga lovingly and devoid of ill-feelings and with a sense of absolute surrender unto His holy Feet can win His grace. The divine Thiruppugazh and other supplications serve as a sure means to achieve this objective.

Foot Notes

1. "Mudiyaap Piravi Kkadalil Ppugaar Muzhudhum Kedukkum
Midiyar Padiyil Vidhanappadaar Vetri Vel Perumal
Adiyaarkku Nalla Perumal Avunar Kulamadanga
Podiyaakkiya Perumal Thirunaamam Pugalbavaré."
2. "Thaarakaasuran" (Thiruppugazh)
3. It is interesting to know how different gods and goddesses were enchanted with the various facets of the beauty of Muruga. This is contained in the verse "Kambai Murugan Pillai Thamizh".
"Sri Lakshmi, who is acclaimed by everyone as one possessing extreme facial charm, keeps looking at the beautiful face of child Muruga realising that Muruga's alluring face exceedingly outdoes Hers; Vishnu, having the complexion of dark clouds, who is described as the 'lotus-eyed' Lord, admires the beauteous eyes of Muruga, which are much more captivating than His; Saraswati, noted for Her melodious voice, listens avidly to the sweet voice of Muruga, finding that Muruga's mellifluous voice easily surpasses Hers. The three-eyed Siva sees the beauty of the substance of the utterances of Muruga, who shines as the Preceptor to Himself (Siva); Brahma, on whose head Muruga once knocked with closed fists, is attracted by the beauty of Muruga's hands; Indrani, Devendra's consort, reminiscing the valour of Muruga Who by vanquishing demons protected her maangalya, is struck by the beauty of Muruga's shoulders; Devendra marvels at the beauty of Vel (spear) which annihilated the demons and gave him the heavenly kingdom; the pious devotees look reverentially at the Holy Feet of the Lord; Gouri (Lord's Mother) is delighted seeing the beauty of the Child's back and the Sun who looks at Muruga, appears diminutive before the enormous radiance of Muruga."

4. "Seeraana Kolahala..."
5. Kandhar Alankaram (Stanza 90).
6. Karuppu Vilil...
7. See p. 104 of Chapter 10.
8. Veena is regarded as the sacred and divine musical instrument in that it is in the Hands of the Goddess of Learning, Saraswati; Siva plays the instrument as referred to in a Sambhandhar Thevaaram; Goddess Parvathi holds Veena in Her hands as Arunagirinatha declares in a Thiruppugazh hymn and Muruga plays the instrument as seen in Arunagirinatha's Puya Vaguppu. And the holy traveller of the three worlds, Naarada, has Veena with him at all times.
9. Earth, Water, Fire, Air and Ether.
10. Twelve.
11. Arunagirinatha calls Her 'Naa Maadhu', "meaning the Goddess who dwells on tongue."
12. Indra's consort.
13. "Surudhiyayai..."
14. "Guruvum Adiyavarum..."
15. "Makaram Erikadal"... (Thiruvavarunai)
16. "Thalai Naalir..."
17. Arunagirinatha calls Her "Poo Maadhu", meaning "Maiden who is seated on the (lotus) flower".
18. Paa maalai (Paa - hymn; maalai - garland)
19. Jhaanvi - River Ganga; since the river emanated from the Sage Jhannu, it is named Jhaanvi.
20. Velavaa - The Lord who holds Vel (spear)
21. God of love in Hindu mythology, whom Siva reduced to ashes with fire emanating from His third eye on the forehead, when he attempted to disturb the Lord's trance.
22. A flower.
23. "Ani Vazhia"... (Thiruchendoor Thiruppugazh)
24. "Olamitta"... (Thirukkazhukunram)

25. Arunagirinatha says that the demons screamed "Ayyo! Ayyo!" - the words that come out when one is in deep agony or pain.
26. The laudatory words used by the saint are "Ayya! Ayya!", the respectful way of addressing someone.
27. "Sharp Spear (Vel) which sends out rays as those of a hundred crore rising Suns in procession, integrated as one". ("Avaamaru Vinaa" - Thiruverakam Thiruppugazh)
28. Kandhar Alankaram - Stanza 19
29. "Padhittha Chenchandha" - Thirupparamkunram Thiruppugazh.
30. "Kongaip Panaiyir" - Thiruchendhoor Thiruppugazh
31. Arunagirinatha qualifies Valli as "Kocchai Mozhicchi" (one who speaks unintelligibly) in a hymn. ("Pacchilai Ittu" - Thiruvakkarai).
32. "Kallakkuvaal"....
33. See for instance, "Yevinai Nervizhi".. and "Tholodu moodiya".., both Thiruchendhoor verses.
34. Vaadham Pittha...
35. "Aniccham Kaarmugam..." (Thiruchendhoor)
36. "Aanaatha Pruthivi"...
37. Chapter 1, page 8.
38. Kandhar Alankaram - Stanza 40.
39. "Suruthi Maraigal"
40. "Aasai Koor"..
41. "Maathirugaa Pushpa Malaa"
42. Kandhar Alankaram - Stanza 76.
This stanza is reminiscent of "Thiru Angamaalaip Padhigam" of Thirunaavukkarasu Swamigal (Appar), in which the saint tells different parts of his body to engage themselves in worshipful praise of the various facets of Siva, suited to their assigned activity.
43. Vel Viruttham - Stanza 2.
44. "Madhikku Nerenum".... (Thirumaanikuzhi Thiruppugazh) and "Kongulaaviya" (Seergazhi Thiruppugazh).
45. Compare Lord Krishna's declaration : "To protect the pious and to put an end to misdeeds (of wicked), and to establish Dharma, do I incarnate age after age." (Bhagavad Gita, Jnana Karma Sanyasa Yoga, Chapter 4, Stanza 8).
46. "Aalamai Avunarukku Amaraarukku Amudhamai"...
(Vel Viruttham - Stanza 5).
47. See Chapter 1, Page 7.
48. See Chapter 4, Page 26
49. See Chapter 1, Page 4.
50. See Chapter 2, Page 19.
51. Kandhar Alankaram - Stanza 96.
52. Kandhar Alankaram - Stanza 97.

53. Chapter 2, Page 18.
54. It is believed that such 'capturing' of Sun and Moon by Raahu and Kethu causes Solar and Lunar eclipses at periodic intervals. The enmity arose at the time of gods and demons partaking of nectar got after churning of Ocean of Milk, when one demon sat among gods and started taking the divine liquid surreptitiously. Upon Sun and Moon pointing out this to Vishnu (in Mohini form), the demon was cut into two by Vishnu. Since the demon had by then already consumed the nectar, the severed portions of the body continued to have life in them. The bodiless Raahu later got a snake's body fitted on to it while the headless Kethu got head of a snake, when they both did penance seeking Vishnu's grace.
55. Free translation of the Mayil Vaguppu in its entirety.
56. Chapter 10, page 102.
57. Spouse, children and wealth.
58. Gods, human beings, animals, birds, reptiles, aquatic organisms and plant life.

Azhagar Koil (Pazhamudircholai)

CHAPTER 11

EPILOGUE

Muruga 'rose' in this planet, so that the Universe might get rescued. The immediate cause for the Lord's incarnation was to protect the heavenly subjects from the tyrannies of the mighty Soorapadma and his kinsmen who tormented the former and held them in captivity. The cruel demon leader was slain by the powerful spear of Muruga in the wink of an eye. This heroic act of the divine Supreme Commander put an end to the egoism and pride associated with these asuras.

The second reason for the Lord's incarnation, which is perhaps more significant, is His concern for resuscitation of the distressed mortals in this earth, who are tossed about by a multitude of difficulties and hurdles, besides being affected by a variety of bodily diseases through successive births. To achieve His purpose, Muruga sent Arunagirinatha as His chosen messenger to this world to spread love and peace among the people through His worship. The soul-stirring Thiruppugazh and other compositions in praise of Muruga, which came instantaneously from the holy tongue of the saint, served as the medium for the noble task which Muruga had assigned to Arunagirinatha, who also pleaded with his Lord for annihilation of human sufferings.

What is remarkable about Arunagirinatha is the manner in which he went about his mission. He took a positive and realistic approach while extolling the glory of his favourite deity and elaborating the virtues associated with the worship of the Lord. His ambition was to become a "Siva Swaroopa Maa Yogi", where there was no room for yogic practices involving self-inflicted pains and distresses and foolhardy endeavours to prolong the transient human life.

Arunagirinatha displayed equal respect for all religious cults and venerated deities relating to these cults with a sense of belonging. He becomes a saivite savant while worshipping Lord Siva, Shakti upasaka while singing the glory of Goddess and an Azhwar while singing the praise of Lord Vishnu. This wholesome approach proclaims the magnanimity of his heart and provides a shining example for us to follow.

Arunagirinatha exhorts the worldly-minded through his supplications to eschew hatred, enmity and egoism and surrender unto the Lord's holy Feet. His exhortation for maintenance of amity and love among people is as relevant today as it was during the saint's life time.

Thiruppugazh is designed to bring about a tranquil and peaceful atmosphere, which serves as a soothing balm to the tormented souls. This is particularly noticeable when these songs are rendered in melodious ragas in chorus by an assembly of devotees in perfect harmony and chandham (specified time measurements), with single-minded devotion. The ecstasy experienced by devotees in such congregations bridges the gap between them and the Divinity. Simultaneously, the negative traits like hatred, egoism, pride, enmity, anger and jealousy vanish from their minds. The absolute strangers get bound by the sacred bond of Thiruppugazh. Gradually, the circle of such people widens and they begin to realise that they are leading a harmonious life characterised by love, happiness and peace - the noble way of living shown by Arunagirinatha - enjoying all the good things in life that one could reasonably aspire. The true personal experiences of many-a-Thiruppugazh devotee bear testimony to this fact. Verily Thiruppugazh is an ideal and easy means to secure the infinite grace of Muruga, the ever-merciful Lord.

APPENDIX I

TRANSLATIONS OF SELECT THIRUPPUGAZH SONGS

1. Invocation To Lord Ganapathi

*(Oh! Ganesa,) Bless me Thee
 With kindness on my life
 To drink many-a-time,
 With my heart melting away
 Like the celestial trees,
 (Kaama)Dhenu and (Chinta)Mani,
 The sweet essence of cognition
 Springing up (in my mind)
 That resembles the mellifluous nectar
 Which surfaced the dazzling ocean !
 (You're the) Lord who enter'd the forest
 For the sake of the younger Brother (Muruga);
 The Lord who secured the divine fruit
 By circumambulating (Thy) Father (Siva);
 The Lord Who manifests as
 The stable support of devotees;
 The Lord who hath five arms
 And the head of an elephant !*

('Vumbar Tharu Dhenu Mani')

2. Thirupparamkundram

*Offer I do not prayers at Thee every day
 Nor I speak of Thy noble attributes,
 Worship I do not aptly Thy holy Feet
 With flowers of many-a-kind;
 Performed haven't I any austerities;*

Knoweth I not the dwelling spot of
 The devotees possess'd of hearts
 That've won Thy ceaseless grace;
 Come around do not I your Hill willfully,
 Nor I yearn to sing Thy glory joyously;

(Muruga !) Come Thou in a moment's time
 Seated on the back of the peacock to remove my fear,
 When messengers of Yama,
 The dark complexioned, and the highly enraged,
 Appear (before me) close sitting on the neck of
 The mountainous and mooing buffalo that comes by,
 And encounter (me) with the rope that is flung (at me)
 And the mace that inflicts pain
 And I suffer (at their hands) with actions involving despair and the substance that decays restlessly, fading away

Oh! Vela! Waged war Thou against
 The demons known as those with flowing hair,
 Even as the vultures fed on the scattered flesh
 That broke away from (the corpses') bodies
 'Cause of the rejoicing dance of ghosts at the battlefield;

Oh! the Lord! Thou hath mountains of arms
 Which carry the fragrance-laden sandal and kasturi,
 Caused by the pressure on the saffron-worn bosom
 Of (Valli), the beautiful girl of hill tribe and
 Who hath voice that of a cuckoo
 Which practises many-a-tune;

*Oh, the Lord! Thou get pleased when Brahma, well-versed in the four Vedas
 Bathe Thee as ordained (in scriptures)
 And offers flowers aplenty,
 And the celestial subjects and Sages who have won over anger
 Worship Thee daily!*

*Oh! the Lord of Saravana residing in Thirpparamkundram
 That abounds with glorious gardens
 Where bees which make musical notes
 Consume honey lovingly until they get choked!
 ('Unait thinam Thozhudhilar')*

3. Thiruchendoor

*Know not I the reason why some (men)
 Dote on this delusory body
 That decays with lust, anger and niggardliness
 And the deviltry of the Five Elements;
 And (also) to the worldly things as the mind dictates!*

*(Alas! They are in this pathetic state)
 Without loving deeply
 The status which transcends the countless Vedas
 That show the way to attain
 Thy lotus Feet which yield happiness and are handsome;
 And the (exalted) status where hatred is non-existent
 And the moral code enshrined with virtues!*

*Oh! the Lord of Chendhil! The brave (Lord)
 Who wears Kadamba (flowers) and Who directed*

*The blue-necked and plumed peacock chariot
Which reduced to dust the ocean, Soora and Meru
And which carries on its legs the venomous snake;
Oh! the Son of Devi who bestows abode to
Those who perform austerities unfailingly;
The holy Preceptor who expounded yoga practices
And the leader of (all) dumb* gods!*

(‘Chemakkomala Paadha’)

4. Pazhani

*If'er Thou make me fall into the birth
That's akin to the dark sea and the hell,
(Muruga) Bestow Thy grace and have a mind
To enslave me so that
The dumbness, blindness, bodily deficiencies
And even the slightest penury do not near me,
And the (lustrous) form of gods,
Lofty lineage, wisdom and just conduct accrue to me;
(You're the) Lord who directed the spear which made
The heads of vanquished demons
In the battlefield roll by,
The mighty ocean scream,
And the long (Krowncha) mountain smash!
The Nephew of the lotus-eyed (Thirumaal)
Who slumbers happily on the fierce snake-bed!
Kumara! the Son of (Siva), the dark-throated!
The leader of gods, who resides in Pazhani!*

(‘Thimira Uldhadhi’)

* Arunagirinatha says it in a literary manner to focus Muruga's versatility and His supreme knowledge of all arts.

5. Thiruverakam

Oh! Kumaresa, (Who was) born out of grace of
 The Lord with matted locks (Siva)
 Who wears the Crescent, river (Ganges) and flowers;
 (You're) The Husband who strokes the feet of hunter girl (Valli)
 Who possesseth sugary and fruity voice !

The Nephew of Maayan (Thirumaal - Sri Rama) Who Blessed (Kaakasura, the crow) by making it
 (A bird) with a severed eye!

Let Kaala (Yama) not near me,
 (Muruga) Bless me Thee (with wisdom) to surrender
 At Thine Twin Feet.

Oh! The Youngster who came surrounded by gods
 Mounted on the dancing peacock,
 After freeing Adi Ayan (Brahma) and gods from their captivity
 Enabling them thus to reign the heaven!

(You're) the Lord Who resides in Swamimalai
 Teeming with mango groves
 The Lord Who was deft to direct the spear
 Which pierced Soora's body and drained the ocean !
 ('Paathi Mathi Nathi)

6. Thirutthani

How many births (have I taken)
 (which were contained)
 In the bodies of (the size of)
 Little til, thinai* and minuscule sand!

* Millet

How many times did I get life
 And live beneath the reverberating ocean!
 Several varieties (of aquatic creatures)
 Like the giant shark!

Not content with that
 How many births have I had!
 In mountains and ponds!
 How many physical forms did I assume
 Which fancied on the trashy bosom!
 (Wonder I) If there is any limit at all for Yama
 To snatch away the (successive) lives!

How many treacherous thoughts
 (Did I nurture) in my heart!
 How many families did I ruin!
 How many living beings did I torture
 In a beastly way!
 Incalculable!

How many incidents (have occurred)
 Which did not go astray from the destined course!
 For my heart to melt at Thy lotus Feet,
 (Muruga) Bless Thee henceforth (this man)
 Who is mosquito-like, stubborn,
 One in the company of dullards
 And (Who's) possess'd of lust devoid of wisdom!

Vela! Thou did encounter (Soora)
 Standing on the lumps of flesh

Even as vultures and wolves fed on (them);
 And elephants, demons, horses and bows tore apart;
 And blood springing at the battle field
 Where the war was waged with ire
 Swelled uproariously;
 And the voice of victory of Maddhalam* and Dhamaruka*
 Which sounded singularly thus:
 "Dhanattha natthana Dhana Dhana Dhana Dhana
 Dhimitthi Mitthimi Dhimi Dhimi Dhimi Dhimi
 Dhaguttha Kutthagu Dhagu Dhagu Dhagu Dhagu Dhagu
 Dheedheedho
 Dharittha Ritthari Dhari Riri Riri Riri
 Dhaduttu Duttudu Dadu du du Dudu Dudu".
 Resounded like the roaring sea.

Oh! the Lord Who resides in Thirutthani
 Whom the propitious and virtuous saivite savants
 And the galaxy of sacred sages
 Worship with honey-filled flowers!
 The Consort of (Valli) the hill tribe girl!
 ('Chinatthilatthinai')

7. Pazhamudhircholai

(Muruga !) Come before me
 Performing the dance of Jnana
 That was not witnessed earlier
 (Even) By Narayana and Brahma,
 In order that (this man)
 Who was born in this world
 Resulting from past deeds

* Percussion instruments

Gets deliverance

With Thy kind assent to prevent

Kaala from nearing me!

Oh! the Lord Supreme of Devasena,

(The foster-daughter of) the Elephant (Iyraavatha) who is

As sweet as the bountiful nectar!

Oh! the Lord Who possesseth

Six holy faces and twelve eyes!

The Lord holding the dazzling spear

Which emerged victorious

Vanquishing the gang of Soora!

The Lord Who resides in Cholaimalai !

(‘Kaaranamadhaaga Vandhu)

APPENDIX II

Glossary of Thiruppugazh Songs

No.	Hymn beginning with	Location of temple	Chapter No.	Page No.
1.	Aalahaala	Thiruchengodu	8	75
2.	Aanaatha Pruthivi	Thiruverakam	10	115
3.	Aangudal		4	41
4.	Aasai Koor		10	115
5.	Adhi Madham Kakka	Kancheepuram	9	90
6.	Alaga Bhaaram Aalaindhu	Thiruchendoor	6	62
7.	Amudhamooru	Thiruvurunai	7	71
8.	Ani Vazhia	Thiruchendoor	10	115
9.	Aniccham Kaarmugam	Thiruchendoor	10	115
10.	Anichevviar	Vadamullaivayil	4	41
11.	Anitthamaana	Thiruvaanaikka	4 8	28 85
12.	Anjana Vel Vizhi	Thiruvaanaikka	5	47
13.	Apagara Nindhai	Thiruvavinankudi	1	12
14.	Ari Ayan aria	Vadugur	2	20
15.	Ari marugoné	Vayalur	4	29
16.	Aruvarai	Vayiravivanam	9	92
17.	Athala Chedanaar Aada		2 2 8	20 21 81

18.	Avaamaru	Swamimalai	4	41
19.	Avaguna Virahanai	Chidbamaram	6	51
20.	Ayilappu	Kancheepuram	1	11
21.	Bhakthar Gana Priya	Thiruchengode	4	41
22.	Bhumiyathanil	Kailaimalai	6	52
23.	Bhuvikkun		10	94
24.	Cheer Chirakku meni	Pazhamuthircholai	5	46
25.	Chemakkomala	Thiruchendoor	Appdx I	122
26.	Chinathavar Mudikkum	Thirutthani	4	41
27.	Chinathilatthinai	Thirutthani	Appdx I	125
28.	Dasaiyaagiya	Karuvoor	4	29
29.	Edhamuru	Viralimalai	4	40
30.	Eluppu Thol Mayir		6	62
31.	Enai adaindha	Thirutthani	2	20
32.	Ethir porudhu	Kodumkunram	4	40
33.	Gathiyai Vilakku	Pazhani	9	90
34.	Guruvum Adiyavarum	Neruvoor	10	114
35.	Iru Kanaga	Pazhani	7	71
36.	Iru Kuzhai meedhodi		8	77
37.	Irul alaga	Thiruvarunai	6	62
38.	Irumalu Roga	Thirutthani	4	41
39.	Iruppaval	Thirutthani	6	55,

Appendix II

129

40.	Jothi Mandhram	Thiru Ambar	9	92
41.	Kaalanaar	Thiruchendoor	8	80
42.	Kaaranamadhaaga	Pazhamudhirscholai,	Appdx I	126
43.	Kaavi Uduythum	Chidambaram	4	40
44.	Kacchani	Thirutthani	8	78
45.	Kadalai Pori Aval	Pazhani	5	45
46.	Kaithala Nirai Kani		1 5	12 44
47.	Kalabamani	Thirumayilai	8	81
48.	Kalabham Ozhugiya	Thiruchendoor	8	86
49.	Kalahavizhi	Periamatam	4	40
50.	Kallakkuvaal	Vallimalai	10	115
51.	Kamala maadhudan	Thiruchendoor	4	41
52.	Kanakan thiral	Thirupparamkundram	4	41
53.	Karunai Chiridhum	Thiruvarunai	7	72
54.	Karuppu Vilil	Pazhani	10	114
55.	Karuvadaindhu	Thirupparamkundram	9	90
56.	Karuvin Uruvagi	Pazhani	6 6 8	51 57 80
57.	Kodaadhavanaiye	Viralimalai	4	41
58.	Kodiya Maraliyum	Thiruchengodu	6	61
59.	Kombanaiyar	Thiruchendoor	7	66

60.	Kondhala Olai	Ilanji	6	62
61.	Kongaip Panaiyir	Thiruchendoor	10	115
62.	Kongulaaviya	Seergazhi	10	99
			10	115
63.	Kumbhakonamodu		1	13
64.	Kunagi Oru		8	76
65.	Kurudhi Mala Jala	Pazhani	9	89
66.	Kurudhipulaal	Thiruvaanaikka	8	80
67.	Kuyilo Mozhi Ayilo	Vayalur	9	91
68.	Maadhar Mayal		8	81
69.	Maaya Vaadai	Thiruchendoor	5	46
70.	Maccha Mecchu	Chidambaram	6	60
71.	Madhikku Nerenum	Thirumaanikuzhi	10	115
72.	Madhiya Mannguna	Chidambaram	6	52
73.	Makaram Erikadal	Thiruvarunai	10	114
74.	Modhu Marali		8	77
75.	Moolum Vinai	Thiruchendoor	2	21
			7	65
76.	Mughilum Eraviyum	Thirutthani	4	40
77.	Muruga Mayoora		8	80
78.	Murugu cheri kuzhal	Thiruvannamalai	10	99
79.	Naadha Bindhu	Thiruvavinankudi	6	59
	Kalaadhi		10	96

Appendix II

131

80.	Naraiyodu Parkkazhandru		6	56
81.	Neittha Churi Kuzhal	Vayalur	6	57
82.	Ninathu Thiruvadi		5	45
83.	Nirai Tharu	Thirumayilai	9	92
84.	Olamitta	Thirukkazhukunram	10	115
85.	Oru Vazhi Padaathu	Somanathan Matam	3	22
86.	Oruvarai Chirumanai	Virinjipuram	4	41
87.	Paathi Mathi Nathi	Thiruverakam	4	41
			4	41
			8	77
			Appdx.I	123
88.	Paatrukkangal	Paakkam	8	81
89.	Pacchai yon giri	Thirunallar	4	41
90.	Pacchilai Ittu	Thiruvakkarai	10	115
91.	Padar Bhuviyin	Thiruchendoor	1	12
92.	Padhittha Chenchandha	Thirupparamkunram	10	115
93.	Pagartharkkaridhaana	Pazhani	8	78
94.	Pakkarai Vichitramani		5	45
95.	Pancha Paathakan	Pazhani	9	92
96.	Piraviyaana	Chiruvai	8	77
97.	Poomaadhurame Ani	Seergazhi	10	99
98.	Punamadandhaikku	Kancheepuram	5	46

99.	Seeraana Kolahala	Viralimalai	9	92
100.	Seeralasdan	Pazhani	4	31
101.	Seetha Vaasanai	Madurai	6	59
102.	Sikaram Arundha	Mayapuri	6	52
103.	Sivanaar Manam Kulira	Thiruvavinankudi	1	12
104.	Surudhi Mudi	Pazhani	9	92
105.	Surudhiyayai	Kudavaayil	10	114
106.	Surul alaga bhaara	Pazhani	9	90
107.	Suruthi Maraigal	Uttharameroor	10	115
108.	Thaarakaasuran		10	113
109.	Thakara Narumalar	Pazhani	4 8	40 79
110.	Thalai Naalir	Vazhuvoor	10	114
111.	Thalai Mayir Kokkukku	Pazhamuthircholai	1	12
112.	Thalai Valai	Kancheepuram	7	72
113.	Thidamili	Pazhani	4	31
114.	Thimira Udhadhi	Pazhani	Appdx I	122
115.	Tholodu moodiya	Thiruchendoor	10	115
116.	Thondhi Chariya	Thiruchendoor	8	76
117.	Udukka Thugil Venum	Kathirkamam	4	41
118.	Unaitthinam	Thirupparamkundram	Appdx I	121

Appendix II

133

119.	Vaadham Pittha	Pazhani	10	115
120.	Vaatpada	Aykudi	6	55
121.	Vadhai Pazhaga		5	46
122.	Valivaadha Pitthamodu	Thiruvarunai	4	41
123.	Vanchanai Minjiya	Pazhani	8	79
124.	Varikkalai Inigaraana	Thirutthani	4	40
125.	Veda Vitthagaa		10	96
126.	Velaippol Vizhi		9	92
127.	Vidha misaindhini	Pazhani	9	92
128.	Vizhaiyum manidharaiyum		10	94
129.	Vumbar Tharu Dhenu Mani		5	44
			App.-I	119
130.	Yevinai Nervizhi	Thiruchendoor	10	115
131.	Yezhu kadal manalai	Chidambaram	1	11

The deeply - stirred emotions of Saint Arunagirinatha before Lord Muruga, his saviour and beloved deity, took the form of sacred mellifluous Thiruppugazh. This study analyses the unique features of these hymns and highlights its devotional fervour and poetic beauty. The study also focuses on the unbiased outlook of the saint-poet towards cults other than the one he apparently professed and his profound concern for the well-being of humanity at large. The book is designed to serve as a guide to the devotees of Lord Muruga and lovers of Thiruppugazh.

Shri S.R.S. Ayyar hails from Suchindrum (Kanyakumari District) in Tamil Nadu. He has had a long and distinguished banking career before retiring as Executive Director of Industrial Development Bank of India (IDBI) in 1995. Next to finance, his interests are reading, writing, lecturing and music.